All but Ten Democrats for It, While Majority of Republicans Vote in Negative.

NO AMENDMENTS ALLOWED

Reductions Demanded Will Be Taken Care Of in Free List, Democrats Reply to Taunts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—At half-past 7 o'clock to-night the House passed the Canadian Reciprocity bill by 264 to 89, with 38 members not voting. The vote last session on the identical bill on March 14 was 221 to 92, with 71 not voting.

The vote to-day stood:

| | For. | Against. |
|---|---|---|
| Democrats | 196 | 10 |
| Republicans | 67 | 78 |
| Socialist | 1 | .. |
| Total | 264 | 89 |

Victor Berger, the Socialist member from Milwaukee, voted for the bill. Dr. Akin of New York, the independent member, voted against it.

Of the five Democrats who last session voted against the measure, Estopinal and Broussard of Louisiana changed over to the affirmative, and stood with their Democratic colleagues for the bill. Hammond of Minnesota, Webb of North Carolina, and Pujo of Louisiana, all of whom last session voted against the bill, stood by their colors, and again voted against it. The Democrats who voted against the bill were:

Bathrick, Claypool, and Whitacre of Ohio; Doughton, Gudger, and Webb of North Carolina; Fowler of Illinois, Pujo of Louisiana, Hammond of Minnesota, and Rucker of Colorado.

How Republicans Voted.

The following Republicans voted for the bill:

Ames, Andrews, Anthony, Austin, Barchfeld, Bartholdt, Bingham, Bowman, Burke of Pennsylvania, Butler, Calder, Cary, Catlin, Cooper, Crago, Crumpacker, Danforth, Dyer, Farr, Foss, French, Fuller, Gillett, Green, Griest, Harris, Heald, Higgins, Hill, Howland, Hubbard, Kent, Knowland, Lafferty, Lawrence, Longworth, Loud, McCall, McCreary, McKinley, Madden, Madison, Mann, Matthews, Miller, Mitchell, Moon of Pennsylvania, Murdock, Needham, Nye, Olmsted, Parran, Porter, Roberts of Massachusetts, Roberts of Nevada, Spear, Stephens of California, Stevens of Minnesota, Sulloway, Switzer, Taylor of Ohio, Tilson, Utter, Weeks, Wilson, Wilson of Illinois, and Young of Michigan.

The Republicans who voted against the measure are:

Anderson of Minnesota, Bradley, Burke of South Dakota, Campbell, Cannon, Copley, Currier, Dalzell, Davis of Minnesota, De Forest, M. E. Driscoll, Dwight, Esch, Fairchild, Focht, Fordney, Foster, Gardner of Massachusetts, Gardner of New Jersey, Good, Guernsey, Hamilton of Michigan, Hanna, Hartman, Haugen, Hanley, Hayes, Helgesen, Hinds, Howell, Humphrey, Jackson, Kahn, Kendall, Kennedy, Kinkaid of Nebraska, Kopp, Lafan, La Follette, Langley, Lenroot, Lindbergh, McGuire, McKenzie, McLaughlin, McMorran, Malby, Martin of South Dakota, Mondell, Moore of Pennsylvania, Morgan, Mott, Nelson, Norris, Patton, Pickett, Plumley, Powers, Pray, Prince, Prouty, Rees, Rodenberg, Simmons, Slemp, Sloan, J. M. C. Smith of Michigan, S. W. Smith of Michigan, Steenerson, Sterling, Thistlewood, Towner, Volstead, Warburton, Wedemeyer, Willis, Woods of Iowa, and Young of Kansas.

Amendments Blocked.

The House spent the day reading the bill for amendments, and fully twoscore amendments were offered by the insurgent and standpatter enemies of the agreement, only to be steam rollered down flat before the big Democratic majority.

The insurgents were in dead earnest in their efforts to amend the agreement so as to obtain free lumber and meats, and they contested stubbornly against the contention of the friends of the measure, who insisted that any amendment adopted would sound the death knell of the agreement.

The brightest amendment proposed came from Mr. La Follette of Washington, who moved to strike sheep out of the list of animals to be allowed free entry into the United States from Canada.

"Don't you see that you are in effect putting wool on the free list?" asked the Washington member. "Under this clause Canadian flock masters can drive their sheep over the international boundary and shear them, and then drive them back after having got the wool into the country free of duty."

A wild shout broke out from the Democratic side of the chamber and derisive jeers for a moment silenced La Follette, but when he could be heard he shouted his defiance and said:

"You can hoot at that all you please, but there are men out in my country who will do it and under this bill, if it becomes a law, you can't stop them. We have over the line out our way flocks of from 1,000 to 5,000 and more, and their owners can save a pretty penny by doing just what you have here provided they can do."

The next minute the amendment went down under the steam roller with a short squeak and the Clerk was sonorously reading on into the bill.

Mr. Madison and Mr. Norris led for the insurgents to-day to try to get lumber on the free list. Mr. Madison taunted the Democrats with being bound and shackled by their caucus, and said that if they were not there would be a majority for free lumber.

Underwood Wards Off Taunts.

To every assault Mr. Underwood came up smiling with the reminder that there was a "farmer's free list" bill coming on next week, and all these omissions from the Reciprocity bill would be found in that, and every one would have a chance to vote for free lumber and free meats, and the proposal would be sweeter far than this, because that bill provided for free meats and free lumber and other free articles from all the world.

Standpatters and insurgents found themselves aligned side by side in the demand that the bill be amended. Over and over the Democratic leaders declared that to amend the bill would defeat it. Ex-Speaker Cannon scouted this and called attention to the second section, which was an amendment put on by the Ways and Means Committee at the suggestion of Mr. Mann.

"Great heavens!" exclaimed Mr. Cannon, "by what grapevine telegraph did you learn that this House, which under the Constitution has the power to originate bills for revenue—except this one—cannot amend a bill without the consent of Canada. If that is so let's bring Canada down here and surrender the whole country to her."

Mr. Mann said he thought the bill could be safely amended, but he should vote against all amendments and against the bill.

Mr. Fordney of Michigan, who belongs to the unregenerated group of standpatters, strove long and hard to force on amendments to let in agricultural implements free, and when he finally gave up baffled, he gasped as he sat down: "I will vote for any amendment that will destroy the infernal thing," at which the House roared joyously.

Mr. Davis of Minnesota, aggravatingly asked the Democrats why they had not

Dimes, Quarters, and Bills Scattered in Broadway by a Mining Man.

Throwing dimes, quarters, and bills to the winds of Broadway, A. P. Ennis, who says he is a mining man staying at the Hotel Imperial, almost created a riot around the Hotel Normandie, where a thousand youngsters collected to gather the coin. Ennis does not know what he actually threw away, but he does know that he stopped the excitement when his pocket was picked of a $100 bill.

Ennis said later that he started out to have a good time. What he did before he started throwing money away is of little consequence. Just as soon as he began to let his money fly children came flocking from all directions. Ennis passed up Fortieth Street from Seventh Avenue to Broadway giving "chicken feed" on all sides. He walked down Broadway, the crowd gathering every minute and only pausing to pick up the money that Ennis scattered. By the time he got to the Hotel Normandie Ennis had run out of small change and after giving small bills for a while he went into the hotel and got some more change. He came out loaded down with nickels, dimes, and quarters, which he tossed in glee and stopped only to watch the scramble.

One boy pressed up to him and held a paper close to his face, while another slipped his hand into Ennis's hip pocket and extracted a hundred dollar bill. Ennis felt the hand in his pocket and swung around with his silver top cane, but failed to hit or catch either of the boys.

He then decided that they were an ungrateful lot and would give no more.

Policeman Pomerine of the West Thirtieth Street station thought there was a riot. Ennis explained what he had done and what had been done to him and Pomerine asked him to go to the station. Ennis consented, and still followed by a constantly increasing crowd, walked down Broadway.

Ennis said he could see no harm in giving the "kiddies" money. He was well dressed in a dark suit, white vest, and white gloves. He wore a carnation in his coat lapel.

KIERAN TO SURRENDER.

Will Plead to Grand Larceny Indictment To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

NORWICH, N. Y., April 21.—District Attorney James P. Hill has arranged with Shire & Jellinek of Buffalo, attorneys for Patrick J. Kieran, indicted for the grand larceny of $10,000 from the First National Bank of Earlville, for the defendant to appear to-morrow and plead. The report that he had been arrested in New York proved erroneous.

The transaction which culminated in the indictment of Kieran began early in 1908 when L. C. Boyce, now of Buffalo, came to Earlville and represented himself as being associated with Kieran, who then had an office at 115 Broadway. He had securities for sale consisting of notes made by the priests of certain Catholic Churches in Western Pennsylvania. Attached to the notes were resolutions signed by the Bishop of that diocese authorizing the borrowing of money to build parochial schools.

The Earlville Bank took $15,000 of these notes. As time went on the interest was not paid. Guy Clark, the Cashier, went to Pennsylvania and visited the alleged makers of the notes, but was unable to get any information from them, even as to whether the notes were genuine. Mr. Clark also had several conversations in New York with Kieran, as a result of which Kieran came to Earlville on March 18, 1909, and appeared before the Board of Directors of the bank.

He assured them that the notes were good, but to relieve the bank of worry he was willing to take them up and substitute other notes indorsed by himself. Incidentally he suggested that the amount of the new notes be made $25,000. He filed with the Directors a written statement giving a list of securities owned by him amounting to $1,405,467, and closing with the words: "My personal liabilities will not exceed $25,000, and my contingent liabilities, including all indorsements, &c., will not exceed $350,000."

The Directors, agreeing to his proposal, he gave to the bank three notes for $8,333, one made by L. C. Boyce, one by the Federal Construction Company, and another by a man whom he said was an employe of his company.

The indictment charges that the time the statement of assets was filed Kieran was indebted to the Carnegie Trust $346,255 as maker and $155,125 as indorser of notes and to various other trust companies.

HARRISON BLOCKS HEARST.

Chicago Mayor Upsets Editor's Plan to Control City Patronage.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 21.—What some consider a move by William Randolph Hearst to gain control of city patronage hitherto held by Roger C. Sullivan for the Democrats, in furtherance of a plan to capture the next State delegation for Hearst, has been balked temporarily, it is declared, by "old line" Democrats. Demands by Hearst that he be allowed to name the new Chief of Police and other important officials have been refused by Mayor Carter H. Harrison, and Harrison and Hearst are now deadlocked.

Although the present deadlock is apparently over city patronage, the real reason is seen in the declaration that A. M. Lawrence, Hearst's political captain, is to be a candidate for Democratic National Committeeman against Sullivan. To secure this Lawrence will need all the patronage possible, as Sullivan, although beaten in Cook County, is still strong in the rest of the State. Harrison, it is reported, has declared that he is going to repay his own personal followers before giving any more appointments to Hearst.

IN WOMAN'S DRESS ON A BET.

Policeman Made Broker's Clerk Lose by Arresting Him—Fiancee to Rescue.

John Underhill, a broker's clerk, of 67 West Thirty-eighth Street, bet his chum, James McCormick, last night that he could walk from his boarding place to Madison Square and back along Fifth Avenue in woman's attire without being arrested. Policeman Bly of the West Thirtieth Street Station helped McCormick win the bet by arresting Underhill.

As soon as he got to the Tenderloin Station Underhill asked to use the telephone to communicate with his fiancée, Miss Emma Walsh. Miss Walsh and her father, Myles Walsh, were in Yorkville Night Court when Underhill in his feminine rig was brought out of the detention pen. They heard Patrolman Bly tell how the young broker's clerk had fallen and bumped his nose when he tried to escape arrest by running.

Magistrate Breen discharged Underhill with a warning. He left the court with his fiancée and her father. Patrolman Bly went along to see them safely home.

CUMMINS IS FORCED TO TELL ABOUT HYDE

Answers Grand Jury Questions Only After Threat of Punishment for Contempt.

REICHMANN ALSO TELLS

Have Denied in Their Talks with Friends Using City Chamberlain's Name to Get Loans.

When the inquiry into the case of "the People of the State of New York against Charles H. Hyde" began yesterday William J. Cummins and Joseph B. Reichmann, officers of the Carnegie Trust Company, appeared as witnesses before the Grand Jury which indicted them twenty-four hours before on grand larceny charges.

At first both refused to answer questions regarding their acquaintance with City Chamberlain Hyde. They were taken before Justice Vernon M. Davis in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court and told that refusal to answer would constitute contempt of court, and that they would have to abide by the consequences.

Then Cummins and Reichmann consented to tell the Grand Jury their version of their relations with City Chamberlain Hyde and others whose names have figured in the inquiry into city deposits in banks which loaned large sums to the Cummins syndicate. Although the secrets of the Grand Jury room were closely guarded, the Cummins and Reichmann versions of their dealings with the City Chamberlain and others are well known to their friends.

Cummins had insisted to his friends that he knows Mayor Gaynor. He denies that he knows Mayor Gaynor's son Rufus, who according to the story told on Thursday by Chief Bank Examiner M. W. Hutchins, was also claimed as a friend by Cummins. He says he met Mayor Gaynor at a dinner more than a year ago, was introduced by one of the "big men" of New York, and had a long talk with the Mayor. Mr. Gaynor denies ever having met Cummins. Cummins's counsel, Stephen C. Baldwin, also says that so far as he knows Cummins and Mayor Gaynor were not acquaintances.

His Friendship with Hyde.

Cummins admits a close friendship with City Chamberlain Hyde. He denies that he ever gave Mr. Hyde any consideration in return for the large amount of city money which was deposited in the Carnegie Trust Company following a letter of introduction written by Jordan J. Rollins, counsel for the State Banking Department, to City Chamberlain Hyde, in which he paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Cummins, and called Mr. Hyde's attention to the high qualities as a banker which Mr. Cummins was supposed to possess.

Mr. Cummins says $1,000,000 was deposited in the Carnegie Trust Company by City Chamberlain Hyde partly because of Hyde's friendship for him and partly because the City Chamberlain believed the Carnegie Trust was a safe institution in which to place city funds. Mr. Cummins asserts that his dealings with the City Chamberlain were based entirely upon friendship, and that he has never been guilty of a dishonest act. He says that Andrew Carnegie is well aware of his integrity of purpose, and that Mr. Carnegie could inform the Grand Jury if he chose to do so "that there is not a crooked hair in William J. Cummins's head."

Mr. Cummins says that he met the City Chamberlain in the early Spring of 1910, before the letter of introduction was written for him by Mr. Rollins. It was only a few days after this letter was received by Mr. Hyde in March of 1910 that the city deposits began to flow into the Carnegie Trust Company.

Denies Robin's Story.

As to the meeting between Joseph G. Robin, Cummins, Reichmann, and City Chamberlain Hyde in the later's law office, at 60 Wall Street, on the evening of Aug. 23 last, Mr. Cummins says that the gathering was merely to introduce Robin to Mr. Hyde. Robin, says Mr. Cummins, had expressed a strong desire to meet the City Chamberlain. This was the day on which Robin agreed to loan $130,000 to the Carnegie Trust Company. Robin says he loaned the money only after he had met the City Chamberlain and been assured that his Northern Bank would be looked out for in the matter of city deposits.

Mr. Cummins denies emphatically that anything was said about the Robin loan during the meeting in Mr. Hyde's law office. The meeting, he says, took place at 8 o'clock in the evening. Earlier in the day, at the Carnegie Trust Company, Robin had agreed to lend the Carnegie Trust $130,000, and the introduction to Hyde in the evening was in the light of a reward to Robin for his kindness in advancing the loan at a time when it was needed badly.

Mr. Cummins says that at the meeting in Mr. Hyde's office Robin said he would like to get some city money, and that the City Chamberlain laughed and exclaimed: "Oh, they all want a piece of that!" That is all Cummins remembers about the meeting. His story is said to differ considerably from that told the Grand Jury by Robin several weeks ago.

It was learned yesterday that City Chamberlain Hyde has explained to his friends that he was with Robin, Cummins, and Reichmann only a few minutes on the evening of Aug. 23, and that after meeting Robin he left the three and went to talk over some business matters with his law partner, Mr. Kellock.

Cummins says that the large loans made to himself and friends by the seventeen banking institutions which received liberal city deposits were made as good business risks and had absolutely no connection with city deposits. He says that he never used the City Chamberlain's name in obtaining these loans, that such a mention was not necessary, as the various large properties controlled by himself and friends were sufficient guarantee for the loans.

The Reichmann Version.

Mr. Reichmann's version of the Robin affair is that he called Robin to the Carnegie Trust Company on Aug. 23, 1910, because the Carnegie Trust needed money, and its Directors believed that Robin who had formerly been a Carnegie Director, would be willing to advance the required sum if sufficient guarantee of its repayment were offered. He says that Robin had been asking him for an introduction to City Chamberlain Hyde, as he wished to meet him in a social rather than a business way. It was Reichmann who walked with Robin from the Carnegie Trust Company to the City Chamberlain's Wall Street office. Cummins and Chamberlain Hyde met them there.

Mr. Reichmann says he cannot remember clearly what conversation took place, but he, like Cummins, denies that any threats or promises were made to Robin in an effort to get him to lend the Carnegie Trust Company $130,000. Mr. Reichmann asserts that in introducing Robin and the City Chamberlain, Mr. Cummins mentioned the fact that Robin had been a good friend to the Carnegie Trust, and that the Carnegie Trust had also befriended Robin on past occasions.

It is said that Reichmann has told his friends that Hyde placed his hand on

APPRAISER'S OFFICE FEELS A SHAKE-UP

Assistant Appraisers Kline and Skinner and Three Examiners Are Said to be Let Out.

OTHERS ARE TO JOIN THEM

Reorganization by Order of Secretary MacVeagh Supposed to be On and the Oldest Employes Are Uneasy.

There was some uneasiness in the United States Appraiser's Stores yesterday when it became known that the resignations of two Assistant Appraisers and three examiners had been called for. It was said that this was the forerunner of a reorganization and that it would be followed by many more resignations. It was said that Francis W. Bird, the present Appraiser of the Port of New York, desired to carry out the recommendations of the committee appointed by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh last April to investigate conditions in the Appraiser's office, and that reorganization was the preliminary step. The committee recommended in some cases a reduction of salary and in others dismissal of employes. Ever since the resignation of George W. Wanmaker there has been a feeling of uncertainty as to what his successor would do.

The two Assistant Appraisers whose resignations were said to have been called for are Col. Adolph A. Kline and Charles R. Skinner. Each of them has served four years. The examiners asked to resign are Col. Scott of the Fifth Division, examiner of millinery and gowns, who has been in the department twenty-five years; Howell of the Fifth Division, examiner of woolens, who has served twenty years, and Brunjes of the Third Division, who has served twenty-five years.

Appraiser Bird would neither confirm nor deny the reports of these resignations. He admitted, however, that some changes were contemplated in the personnel of his department. He said he would have a statement to make to the press either to-day or within the next few days.

An official of the department said last night: "The reorganization of the Appraiser's office is in line with a policy of Secretary MacVeagh. Employes who know about the recommendations made by the special committee regard them as prejudiced and unfair.

"Old employes were to have their salaries reduced and some were to be dismissed from the service. At Washington there was a feeling that the system was becoming antiquated, and that some radical changes should be made.

"It was said that some of the men who had been in the employ of the Appraiser's Stores for years had become careless in their work.

"It is seldom that the Secretary of the Treasury has recommended changes in the Appraiser's office unless such changes were suggested to him by the Appraiser of the Port. The report of this investigating committee lay buried for months, and now that a successor to Wanmaker has been appointed the report has come to life, and Washington is taking an active interest in it. That explains it all.

"Mr. Wanmaker was extremely popular with the rank and file in his department. They had a friend in him on whom they could rely. There was a feeling among the men that when he left things would not run quite as smoothly for them."

Before Mr. Wanmaker resigned there was talk of friction between him and Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, but as a reason for his retirement from the service Mr. Wanmaker said he wished to devote his time to his private business.

There are about 1,100 employes in the Appraiser's Stores. More than 600 of them are in the employ of the Appraiser's office, the rest are under the Collector of the Port of New York. Few of them would discuss the changes in the service.

GIRL RAN BEFORE AUTO.

Mother and Angry Neighbors Threatened Woman Riding in the Machine.

Running across the street in front of her house to escape her mother, who wanted to reprimand her, eleven-year-old Celia Rosenthal of 116 East 115th Street got directly in the path of ex-Judge W. K. Olcott's automobile, which was driven by James McMaster, last night. The girl was struck, receiving a fractured arm and a scalp wound.

Mr. Olcott, who lives at 58 West Eighty-fourth Street, was not in the machine at the time. The rear seat was occupied alone by Mrs. McMaster, the chauffeur's wife.

Mrs. Rosenthal upbraided Mrs. McMaster for the accident, which the police say was unavoidable. Other women gathered, and there was some excited talk among them about pulling Mrs. McMaster from the automobile. Luckily Policeman Schlichternlein came up about that time.

The Judge was not at home last evening, and Mrs. Olcott, who was visiting friends in West Ninetieth Street, said that McMaster had her permission to take the car out. He was not arrested.

BOYS BURN AN ASYLUM.

Imperil 200 Lives in an Effort to Escape from Orphans' Home.

TROY, N. Y., April 21.—Five boys, the oldest only 13 years of age and the youngest 10, confessed to Magistrate Valentine of this city to-day that they attempted to burn the Fairview House, an orphan asylum at Colonie, Albany County, of which they were inmates. They gave as a reason that they wished to get away from the institution.

The fire, which started at an early hour, destroyed part of the building and imperiled the lives of 200 children. The young incendiaries are being held at the Humane Society rooms.

CHLOROFORM WOMAN, STEAL HER SAVINGS

Two Men in Building Department Uniforms Get Away with $2,000, All She Had.

LEFT TIED AND SENSELESS

Her Little Boy Gave the Alarm to Neighbors in the Flat Below—Police Seeking the Robbers.

There was a pounding yesterday afternoon on the door of Mrs. Teresa Massara's flat at 307 East Eleventh Street. The woman, coming to the door, heard a child crying outside. She opened the door to find nine-year-old Rocco Mayo, who lives with his mother and father and seven sisters and brothers in the flat below, crying and sobbing so that he was almost incoherent.

The woman managed to learn from him that two men had tied his mother, threatened him with a revolver, and robbed the house. When they had gone he climbed upstairs for help. Mrs. Massara hurried down to the Mayo flat and found Mrs. Mayo lying on the floor in the front room, her hands and feet bound with rope. She was unconscious.

Mrs. Massara untied her friend and after many minutes brought her back to consciousness. The woman was hysterical, however, and it was much later before she was able to give a lucid account of what had happened.

Then she said that she had been alone in the house with her son, Rocco, her husband, a barber, being at work, and her other children at play in the street. There came a knock on her door and when she opened it two men stood outside dressed in the drab uniform of Building Inspectors and wearing shields on their coats.

"We're Building Inspectors," the men told her, and at their demand she let them into the house.

They went to the rear first, she said, and examined all the rooms until they reached the parlor, where Rocco was playing. Evidently satisfied by their examination that the woman and child were alone in the house, the men suddenly grabbed Mrs. Mayo, one of them clutching her by the throat.

They choked her until she was nearly insensible and could not scream. Then they dropped her on the floor, one of the men binding her hands and feet, while the other took a handkerchief from his pockets and held it pressed to her nostrils. It was wet and smelled of chloroform, Mrs. Mayo said, and presently her senses left her. She knew no more till Mrs. Massara aroused her.

It was nine-year-old Rocco who continued the story from that point. Frightened nearly senseless himself by the actions of the men, he stood by while they bound his mother. Then they turned on him.

One of the men, the child said, drew a revolver from his pocket and, thrusting it almost beneath the boy's nose, ordered him to go into another room and sit down.

"He told me he'd kill me if I made a sound," said the boy, "and I was so frightened I did just as he said."

While the lad sat trembling in terror he could see the men busy in his mother's bedroom. They emptied all the bureau drawers on the floor and spread their contents about in a search for money.

Young as he is, the boy knew that $2,000, the savings of the family for ten years, lay in one of the drawers. Presently he saw one of the men draw the roll of bills from the concealment of a bundle of clothing in which it was tucked.

The man who found the money jammed the bills into his pocket and then started about the flat, looking for anything else of value. His companion, meanwhile, selected various garments from the bureaus and the closets of the flat and made these up into three bundles.

The first man had found two children's banks, meanwhile, and these he put into his pockets. One of them contained $12 and the other $8. After first threatening Rocco, the men paid no more attention to the boy until they had searched the flat thoroughly and had collected the packages they had tied up. Then they turned toward the door, first threatening the boy with death if he moved or made an outcry. Too frightened to do more than stare, the youngster watched the men step quietly outside the door and close it behind them.

It was several minutes later before he got up courage to move, and then he ran to his mother. He called her name, and, finding that she did not reply, he became panic-stricken. He broke into tears, and for a moment struggled with the ropes that held his mother's hands and feet. Then in a frenzy of fear lest she was dead, he rushed upstairs to Mrs. Massara, forgetful in his panic of the threat of the men to kill him if he moved.

The story startled Mrs. Massara more than it might have done any one else in the house, for at its conclusion she exclaimed:

"Why, those must have been the same men who called at my flat this afternoon. They said they were Building Inspectors, and wanted to look over my house, but just as they stepped inside the door my dog barked and one of them said:

"'Oh, I guess your home is all right. We won't bother to go over it.' And they went out."

When Angelo Mayo, the husband, returned last night from his work he found his wife in a serious condition after her experience. He notified the police of the occurrence, and got a doctor for his wife. She was hysterical still, and it was said she was in a dangerous condition because of the shock to her nervous system.

Detectives from Headquarters, armed with good descriptions of the men, set out last night to look for them. It is not believed that they were real building Inspectors, but probably used the uniforms as disguises.

MRS. DENT CALLS POLICE

To Help Her Hold Her Villa Against Her Husband's Detective.

The Pelham Manor police were startled yesterday by a hurry call for the reserves from Mrs. Anita Dent, who recently sued her husband, Thomas Ashley Dent, for a separation. Mrs. Dent declared that a detective had been trying to get into her home to dispossess her, under direction of her husband.

Mrs. Dent is occupying a villa at Pelham Manor which she says was built with her money but which her husband declares he owns. The question of ownership is now pending in the Supreme Court.

When the police arrived they found Mrs. Dent on guard at the front door, with a big stick in her hand, backed up by a servant, who was also armed with a club. The police drove the supposed detective away, and then Mrs. Dent said:

"My husband has committed contempt of court. The house is still my home and I am going to hold it until the courts decide otherwise.

"This detective was sent to drive me out. He had a note from my husband, which directed him to take possession. When I opened the door he shoved his foot inside and tried to prevent me from closing it.

"I seized a stick and so did my servants and we drove him back and slammed the door in his face. My husband is trying to make Catholics out of my children, and endeavoring to drive me out into the cruel world, but I am still holding the fort. If anyone representing my husband tries to get in the house I will use a club on him."

VASSAR GIRLS BRAVE FIRE.

Save Books and Furniture from Burning Home of Professor.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, April 21.—Hundreds of Vassar students responded to a fire alarm this morning when a Japanese servant discovered that the top of Prof. Abigail Leach's new cottage on Raymond Avenue, opposite the campus, was ablaze. His timely awakening saved the lives of Prof. Leach and four girls who were asleep on the top floor.

Before the arrival of the firemen, who were summoned from Poughkeepsie, two miles away, Vassar girls had braved the smoke and fire and saved much of Prof. Leach's valuable library and furniture.

The fire originated, it is thought, from a defective electric light wire, and crept up between the walls from the first floor, igniting the woodwork and spreading out at the top, where the flames burned through the roof, which fell in. Firemen finally extinguished the flames after a damage of about $8,000 had been done.

PAPER MEN FEAR RECIPROCITY

President Hastings Working Up Sentiment Against It in the West.

CHICAGO, April 21.—A meeting of officers of the American Pulp and Paper Association was held in Chicago to-day with the avowed purpose of working up anti-reciprocity sentiment among producers and users of wood pulp paper. In discussing the object of the meeting President A. C. Hastings of New York said:

"We want our Western members to join in a fight against reciprocity. We are the goat in this game of tariff. The duty is removed on our product, paper, but is left on other things, which we have to purchase and we receive no benefit, instead have to face Canadian competition."

Resolutions opposing the proposed reciprocity trade agreement with Canada and protesting against any reduction of the tariff on paper, pulp, and similar wood products were adopted at an executive meeting of the American Paper and Pulp Manufacturers' Association. Pledges were given by members present to begin a movement to prevent free trade with Canada.

OBJECTS TO WIFE'S WILL.

Contains "Scandalous References to Him," Meyer Tells Surrogate.

Denying his wife's right to will away their child, and objecting to her "libelous, contumelious, scandalous, and opprobrious references to him" in her last testament, Leopold Alfred Meyer of Bensonhurst asked Surrogate Cohalan yesterday to refuse to probate certain parts of the document.

Meyer said he did not object to his wife disposing of her property to her mother and sister. His wife died on April 9, at Stamford, N. Y.

Among the things which Meyer wants eliminated from the will is a paragraph in which she directs that he shall have nothing to do with her funeral arrangements.

CATCH TWO MACKAY AUTOS.

Clarence H. and Mrs. Mackay Were Speeding Home to Dinner.

While returning in automobiles from Manhattan to their home in Roslyn, L. I., Thursday evening, both Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay were held up by Motor Policeman Gilbert M. Meehan on a charge of speeding, and their two chauffeurs appeared yesterday before Magistrate Fitch in the Jamaica Court and were fined $50 each.

Mrs. Mackay encountered Meehan first. She was in her limousine in Hillside Avenue, and after a long chase Meehan overhauled it and ordered her chauffeur, White J. Barton, to appear in court.

Meehan got back on his post again just in time to chase a second limousine in which Mr. Mackay was riding. This machine was driven by James Gillespie, who was also notified to appear in court. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mackay were hurrying home to keep a dinner engagement.

CONSPIRACY, UHREN CHARGES

Sues His Nephew, a Lawyer, and the Lawyer's Family for False Arrest.

David Uhren, a retired manufacturer, who was interrupted while eating luncheon at the Holland House on March 6, taken to Bellevue for observation, and later arraigned and discharged in the Night Court, has brought suit for false arrest against Dr. David L. Sohn, his nephew; Moses Esberg, a lawyer; Carrie F. Esberg, his wife, and Helene Esberg, his daughter.

Uhren alleges that a conspiracy was formed to rush him to an asylum in order to vitiate his testimony in a suit for fraudulent practices against Moses Esberg, the suit then having been begun, but not answered by Esberg. Uhren puts his damages at $2,000 for legal fees made necessary by the actions of the defendants and $50,000 for humiliation and dis- [illegible] three hours in Bellevue in a "detention pen," in which were common criminals, drunkards, and felons."

Mexican President May Turn Over Government to Foreign Minister on May 5.

HARMONY WITH WASHINGTON

Corrections of Note and Release of Converse and Blatt Evidences of a Desire to Avoid Trouble.

BY STEPHEN BONSAL.
Special Correspondent of The New York Times.

Copyright, 1911, by The New York Times Co.

MEXICO CITY, April 21.—I have come into the possession of interesting information which may or may not be true, but which ought to be true in view of the source from which it comes.

According to this informant, soon after Vice President Ramon Corral reaches Europe, which should be in a few days, he will cable that his consultations with the distinguished physicians whom he is going to see have resulted unfavorably; that a longer rest and greater care of his health are required than he had thought; that, under the circumstances, he deems it to be his duty not to await the termination of his six months' leave of absence, but to resign his office by cable, thus making room for a more active man.

In this way President Diaz would be relieved of his greatest incubus, and at the same time Señor Corral would be relegated to obscurity without the personal mortification to which, at the suggestion of political expediency, President Diaz in his loyalty has refused to subject him.

Diaz to Go on Anniversary.

The story then runs that President Diaz on May 1 will proceed to Puebla to review the troops gathered there, and that on May 5, the anniversary of his memorable victory over the French at that place, will formally resign the reins of power into the hands of the Minister of Foreign Affairs, who under the Constitution would become the acting President charged with the duty of issuing the call for new elections in a few months. My informant further says on this occasion Gen. Diaz proposes to make a farewell address to his people after the fashion of Washington.

May 5 is not far away, but is not too early a date for the good news to come to this distracted country. One thing is certain, that should he take his departure this way, he would receive popular acclaim greater than has ever been his since he continues to be first in the heart of his country and actual shaper of its destinies so long as he lives.

Courtesy Shown to United States.

The entirely spontaneous withdrawal by Señor de la Barra, Minister of Foreign Affairs, of several of the more serious charges preferred against American officials in connection with the fighting at Agua Prieta in the note in reply to American requests for the safeguarding of the population of border cities has cleared the international atmosphere wonderfully. It has shown once again that, though their acts are sometimes susceptible of misinterpretation, the high officials here as well as in Washington are leaving no stone unturned in their efforts to maintain and even to improve the present cordial relations between the two nations.

President Diaz this morning made his own gracious contribution to the era of good feeling. Having ascertained that it would not be disagreeable to the President, Ambassador Wilson sent H. C. Converse of Los Angeles—father of Lawrence F. Converse, who, with Edward H. Blatt, has been held in prison at Juarez for some days as a filibuster—to Gen. Diaz's house this morning. He was accompanied by an official of the Embassy. The President received the grief-stricken father in a most gracious way, and listened courteously to the recital of young Converse's juvenile waywardness. Suddenly the old warrior began to [illegible]

"Hold on, Señor," he said. "I was a boy once and was fond of fighting. Perhaps only because we are proverbially lenient with our own failings I think there are worse faults than that. Now, I like fighting boys, and [illegible] full pardon for your son and Blatt. But [illegible] that they [illegible] you must promise me that they shall not return to take part in our unhappy family quarrel."

As may be imagined, the promise was gladly made by Mr. Converse, who is to go to Juarez with a letter to the authorities there which will cause the release of the two youths.

It can be said to-day for the first time in many days past that no tension exists between the United States and Mexico, and that the manner in which these vexatious complications have been surmounted augurs well for the future.

Admirable Attitude of People.

I must bear my testimony to the admirable attitude of the people here, both high and low, poor and rich, during days of tension happily relaxed. Our colony here is composed largely of orderly and cultured people, but here, as elsewhere, we are not distinguished for self-effacement or for the tricks of conciliation. Yet, during the last six days, while the newspapers of the largest circulation were filled with pictures and descriptions of the large numbers of American citizens who have been, as is undoubtedly true, either killed or wounded or taken prisoners in recent engagements, during these days, when, except to those accustomed to sifting evidence, it appeared that opponents of the Government in the North were exclusively Gringoes, and that they certainly constituted the bulk of the revolution, I have not heard of an insulting word or a menace directed at any of our countrymen here. For myself, I have received courtesies never exceeded in my experience in other world-cities.

Tactical Error in Sonora.

On the other hand, the Government continues to make tactical mistakes. After having given the rebels in Sonora a good drubbing, they have postponed the State elections there which were to take place next month until July. The revolutionists say, of course, that these elections will never be held; that no elections will be held until the Government is beaten.

Disorders in the higher schools of the capital have been handled so awkwardly that the whole student body is in revolt against their educational superiors and are suspected of being inclined to throw their fortunes with the anti-Government forces.

Congress Discusses Elections.

In Congress this afternoon the proposed changes in electoral methods for Deputies were discussed. That project, which is supposed to have Government approval, requires candidates to be Mexican citizens, 25 years old, and not members of any ecclesiastical body; but the great desideratum—more so in this country where distances are so immense and the provincial characteristics are so different from those in the United States—that the Deputies should be residents of the districts they represent, or at least occasionally visit them, is nowhere provided for.

How one influential body in the republic, and one hitherto not particularly distinguished for the warmest support of the Diaz administration, stands toward the revolution and the actual situation in the interior is shown by an Episcopal letter issued by the Archbishop of Mexico and read to-day in all the churches.

The venerable prelate orders all parish priests to read at every mass and at all other religious ceremonies prayers for the early restoration of peace and concord throughout the republic.

Insurrectos Strong in Puebla.

Battle bulletins, while continuing to chronicle Federal victories around Puebla, continue also to demonstrate that the revolutionary forces are very numerous, enjoy a military organization, and hold territory within 125 miles of the capital. Despite the official bulletins of Federal victories in this quarter, which were published broadcast this morning and which are largely confirmed from independent sources, I saw the Eleventh Battalion of Infantry, some hundred strong, with camp equipment, ready to take the field, march through the city to the railwaystation, and there en train, as I was informed, for Puebla.

The appearance of the troops was smarter than any I have yet seen, but they did not seem at all gay over the prospects of active service, and their march through the thronged business streets at a funeral pace excited no enthusiasm among the spectators, though the purpose of the movement was well known.

Rush to Fortify Puebla.

Reports from American sources convince me that relatively large bodies of Federals are being concentrated near Puebla, and that the fortification of this naturally very strong, strategic point is being pushed with feverish activity. There is much reason to believe that should the civil war continue the Federals will constitute that place their military base.

The recruiting of the Federal Army is now proceeding quite briskly. I have seen some 200 recruits myself at barracks, and they wore neither the traditional hobbles nor handcuffs of hemp. Some think that the inducement of increased pay to $1 a day accounts for the better results obtained by the recruiting Sergeants. My opinion is that the possibility of war with the gringo, happily to-day more remote than yesterday, is attracting volunteers.

REBELS BLOW UP A CHURCH.

Soldiers Who Took Refuge in Parras Edifice Are Killed.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, April 21.—Unofficial reports received here say Mexican rebels attacked Parras, in Coahuila, yesterday. They are said to have blown up a church with dynamite when Federal soldiers took refuge in the structure. It is said that many Federals were killed.

The town of San Pedro, in Coahuila, was captured, and is said to be still in possession of the rebels.

Yesterday a force of cavalrymen was sent down the Rio Grande on reports of fighting near Guerrero.

MEXICO GETS MORE ARMS.

Swiss Concern Begins Delivery of Rifles on a Large Order.

BERNE, Switzerland, April 21.—The Swiss Arms Manufactory at Neuhausen is now turning out a big order of modern arms for the Mexican Government. A Mexican army officer recently left accompanying the first consignment of rifles to Mexico.

Several other Mexican officers have arrived at Neuhausen to watch over the execution of the balance of the order.

Rebel Recruits Sought in Canada.

QUEBEC, April 21.—Recruits for the Mexican insurrecto army are being sought in Quebec by a Mexican, who has approached several members of the artillery and infantry corps here. So secretly has he conducted his campaign that the measure of success attending it cannot be ascertained.

EFFORTS FOR PEACE STOPPED BY MEXICO

Unofficial Envoys Sent to Madero Break Off Negotiations Under Orders from the Capital.

JUAREZ ATTACK DELAYED

Elder Madero Arrives at Son's Camp and the City Is Safe for Another Day.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, April 21.—Gen. Francisco I. Madero's demand for the immediate resignation of President Diaz as a preliminary to peace negotiations was answered to-day by the summary termination of unofficial negotiations by the Mexican administration. Oscar Braniff and Esquival Obregon, prominent residents of the Mexican capital, who had been representatives of high Government officials in endeavoring to reach an agreement with the rebel leader, received a message from the capital which put an end to their activities. They would not say from whom the message came, but admitted that it declared that Madero's terms were such that they could not be entertained. They issued a statement to-night throwing the blame for continuance of the civil war on Gen. Madero.

An attack on Juarez by the rebel army will not take place for another twenty-four hours. Francisco Madero arrived this evening at his son's camp and to-morrow will dictate peace proposals. The Maderist lines drew more closely around the city in the evening.

Gen. Madero waited all day to hear that President Diaz had resigned. His unvaried statement to reporters was that nothing had developed to make him change his decision of yesterday. He busied himself receiving messages from the El Paso Junta, visiting with his wife, who came from San Antonio today, and receiving callers.

Protest of Peacemakers.

Señors Braniff and Obregon, the Peace Commissioners, ended the uncertainty when they told of their instructions from Mexico City and gave out a statement telling of their proposals for settling the trouble, which they declared represented a "perfectly defined public sentiment" in Mexico. The statement says:

> The public demands are: First, That concrete guarantees be forthcoming from the Mexican Government that the promises and reforms, already partly executed, will be implanted and developed as rapidly as practically possible.
>
> Second, That with this guaranty perfected, the armed rebellion has carried its avowed principles into triumph, and as a consequence ceases thereafter to be justified and its persistence renders it dangerous to our future peace and welfare, and therefore unpatriotic and undeserving of further public support.
>
> Third, That the retirement of President Diaz is not necessary to insure compliance by the Government with its promise; but on the contrary, would reinstate the demoralizing precedent of constituted authority yielding to force of arms.
>
> Fourth, That a compromise would not only demonstrate to the world the good sense, coolness, and patriotism of the Mexican public and thus obtain a complete retrieval of its momentarily lost prestige and credit abroad, but would result in the creation of political parties similar to those that have brought about in the United States the effective government by the people and for the people.
> We have presented the above resolution to the directors of the revolution and pointed out the terrible responsibility to fall on them if they cast aside these public demands for conciliation and plunge our country into calamitous adventures.
>
> We know that the gentlemen are patriots, and that, if left to think and feel for themselves, will listen to the call of their brethren and avoid dangerous rocks ahead; and our only fear is in the possibility of their yielding to influences other than their own.

Gomez's Negotiations Unsuccessful.

Efforts on the part of Mexicans who are negotiating with Dr. Vasquez Gomez, the Washington agent of the insurrection, to change the decision of Gen. Madero, appeared to be vain. Dr. Gomez, according to dispatches from Washington in his negotiations with Mexican officials, has gone on the assumption that matters could be arranged without the immediate retirement of President Diaz. It is declared that this was the basis for the armistice which Gen. Madero rejected yesterday with the ultimatum that Gen. Diaz must retire at once.

A decided reply to one of Dr. Gomez's messages was sent through the El Paso junta to-day. The Washington agent sent a fresh argument for an armistice in which he took issue with a remark made by Gen. Madero yesterday to the effect that such an arrangement at this time would be used by the Mexican Government to bring troops to the relief of Juarez. He set forth that under an armistice all military movements on both sides must cease immediately, and conditions would be exactly the same at a future period if hostilities should be resumed.

Gen. Madero, however, apparently was not prepared to accept any assurances that came from the Diaz Government. He sent word to Dr. Gomez that he fully understood the nature of an armistice, but he would not enter into one unless fully safeguarded against betrayal. He declared that if possession of Juarez was given to him he would consider such a measure, as then he would be in a position to meet any situation.

When a message from Washington was shown to the rebel leader purporting to quote Dr. Gomez as still declaring for an armistice Gen. Madero showed some impatience. "Ridiculous!" he exclaimed. He showed the message to his brother, Raoul Madero, and to Giuseppe Garibaldi, his Chief of Staff, and they laughed.

Council of War Is Held.

There was little activity in the insurrecto camp during the day. Many insurrectos lounged about the river banks in the sun. At noon there was some moving about of insurrecto troops northwest of Juarez, but no apparent attempt to march upon the city.

A conference of war was held at Madero's camp this afternoon, at which the plan of battle was discussed by Madero and his chiefs, including the Strategy Board. A map of Juarez was considered in detail, and the supposed location of the Federal mines along the approaches marked for the information of the attacking party. Shells for three cannon that are stationed on Orozco Hill overlooking Juarez have been smuggled across the river from El Paso and taken to the insurrecto camp. A large quantity of ammunition is also thought to have been taken across.

Juarez's garrison and people prepared for an attack at sunset, when double and single files of men could be seen coming through the mountain passes to the west. It was believed that this was a general movement of rebel troops. The column swung down to the river, however, and proved to be Panco Villa and his 800 men, who are a strong part of the fighting force of Madero. They had arrived from Rancho Flores to take part in the assault. They set up camp on the river flat opposite the El Paso smelter, and within hailing distance of the American side. Their camp fires can be seen from the city, and their songs and shouts of "Viva Madero!" in answer to the cheers from the American side can be plainly heard in the residence section.

Cowards, Says Federal Commander.

The Juarez military officials appear confident of the completeness of their fortifications, and American army officers compliment them as excellent examples of engineering work. Not only is the town fortified, but it has several field guns and three or four rapid-fire guns calculated to prove most effective in scattering the enemy.

"They say they are coming into Juarez, but they are liars and cowards," declared Col. M. Tamborell, commandant of the Federal garrison this afternoon, speaking of the insurrectos.

All shop windows have been boarded up, not to prevent breakage of glass, but to prevent theft in case the glass is broken by bullets. Few families remain in Juarez, and only Americans having business there visited the town to-day. The saloons in Juarez were ordered closed at noon by the Federal officials, and will probably remain closed pending the result of the expected attack.

The United States troops that have been in camp near Fort Bliss have moved down into the city and are now camped close to the border. These troops are in addition to those on active border patrol.

Mrs. Francisco Madero joined her husband at his camp in the Rocky Canyon this afternoon. It was the first time they had met for several months and the meeting was a happy one. Mrs. Madero went across the small footbridge beyond the smelter and was escorted to the Mexican side by a bodyguard of rebel soldiers. She was met at the international line by Gen. Madero and they embraced affectionately. Mrs. Madero went back to the camp with her husband and remained there until dark. She had come from San Antonio, where she had been staying since the trouble started.

Mrs. Ernest Hughes, sister-in-law of Miss Frances Hughes, who was engaged to Capt. Oscar Creighton, went to Madero's camp for luncheon with the Provisional President. She received the dead officer's sabre and side arms and was told that the Provisional Government would issue a pension to Creighton's relatives as soon as it was triumphant.

AGUA PRIETA, Mexico, April 21.—Soldiers of the Federal garrison began to-day to strengthen the fortifications of the town. They set to work building heavy adobe breastworks and ramparts to the south and east of Agua Prieta. Large forts made of adobe bricks were being constructed at various points along the trenches abandoned by the rebels.

Col. Reynaldo Diaz announced his intention to move at once all the wounded to Cananea, where they will be cared for in the barracks hospital. Special trains were being made ready for this purpose.

NACOZARI, Mexico, April 21.—Antonio Bejas, with 250 rebels, entered this town to-day. The appearance of the insurrecto army caused some excitement, but did not interfere with the operations of the Montezuma Copper and Phelps-Dodge Companies. The rebels seemingly were well equipped with funds and purchased for cash large quantities of supplies at the copper company stores.

Nacozari has been isolated for several days because of the destruction of all railroad bridges in this vicinity, but there are enough provisions and coal to last two weeks, when it is believed the bridges will be repaired.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., April 21.—"Red" Lopez, one of the leaders of the Sonora insurrectos who fought at Agua Prieta, has not been court-martialed and shot, as reported from Albuquerque. The rebel feeling against Lopez is strong, but no violence has been done him.

GERMAN PRESS CRITICAL.

Calls the Government's Attention to Diaz's Reply to Taft.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 21.—President Diaz's defiant answer to President Taft's representations has attracted the widespread attention of Germany. That section of the German press which has persistently attacked America since the inception of the Mexican troubles rejoices in Gen. Diaz's "refreshing" tone, and commends it to Governments like Germany, "which have in the past met the wishes of the United States with slavish readiness."

The conservative Post, which eats Americans alive every morning for breakfast, says to-night:

"Diaz has torn the mask from the face of the United States, and astonished Europe sees that the land of peace, angels, and arbitration treaties is a great intriguer, which tries to attain its objects through Mammon because it is too cowardly to draw the sword."

The Liberal Vossische Zeitung thinks that Mr. Taft's refusal to be stampeded by Gen. Diaz's note is due to the War Department's realization of American military weakness. The Zeitung points out that volunteers would have to be relied upon for the invasion of Mexico, and says these may have good fighting qualities, but for large operations they are of "highly doubtful value."

The German Government insists that it in no respect sympathizes with the anti-American outbursts of the German press in connection with Mexico. The Government points out, however, that so long as the American Government refuses, as it has up to this hour, to take the European Cabinets frankly into its confidence with regard to the true inwardness of the Mexican situation unfriendly imputations are unavoidable.

OPTIMISM AT WASHINGTON.

Mexico's Attitude Is Appreciated—Gomez Still Hopes for Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Several dispatches from Ambassador Wilson, at Mexico City, were received by the State Department to-day, which tended to increase the optimism over the Mexican situation, which has been maintained there for the last two or three days under somewhat adverse circumstances.

One dispatch reported that the Ambassador had been informed that the Mexican Government desired to make some alterations in the draft of its reply to the American demands of April 14, extracts from which were telegraphed from Mexico on Wednesday by Stephen Bonsal and published in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday. Another dispatch from the Ambassador came this afternoon giving the cheering news that President Diaz had personally ordered the release of Blatt and Converse, the two men who were arrested some time ago near the international boundary, and whom Mexico claimed to have taken on her own territory.

The State Department had requested the release of Blatt and Converse some time ago, but the Mexican Government had delayed acting in the matter pending a decision by the International Boundary Commission as to which Nation owned the spot where they were arrested. The action of Gen. Diaz in releasing was interpreted as showing a desire on his part to demonstrate a conciliatory attitude toward the United States.

It was suggested at the State Department that the alterations in the Mexican note were due to the receipt by the Government of further information about the fighting at Agua Prieta. It is not expected now that the note will be received here before the middle of next week. Not until it does come can it be taken up for detailed consideration. In the meantime the War Department has set about getting the fullest official information as to just what happened at Agua Prieta.

Secretary Dickinson has also taken precautions against a repetition at El Paso of the situation at Douglas last week. He has sent orders to the commanding officers of the troops there to do everything possible to keep Americans out of the danger zone.

Dr. Vasquez Gomez, the revolutionary agent here, still hopes that the Mexican revolutionists will yet find it unnecessary to attack Juarez. An armistice within a few days between the Federal and insurrecto forces is still a probability.

Dr. Gomez sent several telegrams tonight to Mexico, but the only information as to the contents was given in a statement which he issued.

"It is impossible for me," he said, "to reveal the nature of negotiations in which I am to-night engaged. All I can say is that within a few days I may be able to communicate something of great interest to the Mexican people. It is absolutely essential, however, that these negotiations be kept secret, as we are dealing with some delicate points."

Dr. Gomez is said to have made such strong representations to the insurgent leader that the attack on Juarez may be deferred even for several days.

Dr. Gomez sent a long telegram to Gen. Madero to-day, in which he pointed out that it was necessary not to confuse the armistice proposition with the peace proposals which were to follow. He declared that neither side would gain nor lose by an armistice, the primary condition being that the status quo be imposed on all military operations, which would include, of course, the shipment of arms or the bringing up of reinforcements to the north of Mexico, a thing which Gen. Madero yesterday said was probably the Mexican Government's idea in favoring the armistice.

Dr. Gomez is said to be of the opinion that while the retirement of President Diaz is an ultimate necessity for the complete restoration of tranquillity in the republic, a state of Anarchy and lawlessness would be likely to follow any announcement or assurances that Gen. Diaz would abdicate the Presidency. It is said that Dr. Gomez believes an assurance that President Diaz would resign should be given only after all the other conditions of peace are arranged, which he thinks would occupy at least a month, during which time the country would be returning to its normal condition.

BIG RISING IN PUEBLA.

Slaughter by Federals Resented—Student Disorders in the Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, April 20.—The hornet's nest has been knocked from the limb in the State of Puebla. Following the fight near Matamoras on Wednesday, in which the Federal machine guns did terrible execution among the poorly armed and undrilled insurrectos, the whole countryside is reported to be swarming to take revenge.

Despite the fact that the battle was fought within 150 miles of Mexico City, no word of it was received here until yesterday. The latest reports to-day have it that 1,300 Federals attacked the rebels, who had gathered near Matamoras, and that in the neighborhood of 100 were killed. The official report gives no details of the fighting, simply saying it was an overwhelming victory. It was undoubtedly the bloodiest fight so far in the insurrection.

The Federal position at Matamoras probably will not be attacked for several days, but with the large addition to the insurgent forces hard fighting is bound to come.

Student disorders in the capital have assumed serious proportions. There has been restiveness among the students for some time, but in the last few days the disorders have grown worse. A demonstration was attempted last night and several youths were wounded by the police in dispersing the crowds. This circumstance has added fuel to the flames, and it is declared that the demonstrations will be renewed and that resistance will be made if the troops attempt to stop them. It is understood that student leaders have been warned that the troops will fire if the movement is carried too far. Should this action be taken a serious outbreak might follow. Nominally the movement among the youths is supposed to be in the interest of reforms in the school regulations, but it is probable that this is merely pretense, and that the object of the leaders is to help overthrow the Government.

In the dissatisfaction that is evident in the capital there are no real expressions of hostility to foreigners, but in case of intervention in Mexican affairs by the United States the situation, to say the least, would be made uncomfortable to Americans. However, violence to those using reasonable caution is not probable. In any event the worst danger would face those who are in the capital. The Americans in the smaller towns and in the mining camps are practically as safe as they would be in the United States. Here the students and other irresponsibles might cause some trouble.

There are again reports that Gen. Bernardo Reyes has been ordered to return from his mission in Europe to take charge of the Government's military forces. Officials refuse to confirm the reports, but if they are true it is practically certain that the Government is playing its last card and has determined on a finish fight.

OPPOSE DR. GOMEZ'S PLANS.

Members of San Antonio Junta to Urge Further Fighting.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 21.—Gustavo Madero and Juan Sanchez Azcona, members of the local insurrecto junta, left for El Paso to-night, from which city they expect to get into communication with Francisco I. Madero, Jr., leader of the insurrectos. The understanding here is that they will advise Gen. Madero to hold to his plan to fight until President Diaz has resigned or has been deposed.

José Vasconcelos, another member of the junta, left for Washington this afternoon. He said that among the things he would try to accomplish would be the recognition by the United States of the belligerency of the insurrectos in Mexico. He is known to be opposed to the peace measures proposed by Dr. Vasquez Gomez, the insurrecto agent in Washington.

Emilio Madero, a loyalist, brother of the revolutionary leader, has been imprisoned at San Pedro, Mexico, according to advices received by members of the family in San Antonio. Emilio, they declare, has held aloof from the revolution, and relatives here express themselves at a loss to explain the cause of his reported arrest. Their informant did not go into details. San Pedro is on the line of the National Railroad of Mexico in the State of Coahuila, between Monterey and Torreon.

FLEE FROM ENSENADA.

Prominent Residents, Fearing Attack by Berthold, Go to San Diego.

ENSENADA, Lower California, April 20, via San Diego, Cal., April 21.—The steamer San Diego sailed to-day for San Diego with many of the most prominent residents of the city aboard. Gen. Simon Berthold is said to have sent word to Gov. Vega that he will attack Ensenada within twenty-four hours.

The armed forces of the town consist of about 140 soldiers, in addition to the crew of the Mexican gunboat Guerrero. The Captain of the gunboat has stated that he is ready to send an armed force of 250 men ashore. The San Diego made a special trip to this port upon receipt of a telegram describing conditions, and expressing the desire of a number of prominent residents to get away before fighting began.

NO CONFLICT, SAYS GOMEZ.

Has Merely Transmitted Proposals of a Third Party to Madero.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Dr. Vasquez Gomez, head of the Mexican Revolutionary Committee in Washington, to-night made a categorical denial of reports of differences between Francisco Madero, the provisional President of the revolutionary party, and himself.

"The rumors that have been brought to me are absurd on their face," was his comment. "In the first place, President Madero and I have no difference of opinion on the subject of an armistice. I have not attempted to initiate any plan for an armistice, and I have no 'peace programme.' I have served as the medium of transmission of suggestions for an armistice, and that is all. These tentative proposals, coming from a third party, whose identity I do not care to disclose, I have sent to the Commander in Chief. He has full authority, delegated by the chiefs of the revolutionary movement, to accept or reject them.

"I am in constant touch with President Madero by telegraph. It is true that our communications are not exchanged as rapidly as they would be in time of peace, but our correspondence is proof of our friendly relations and our harmony of purpose. If President Madero ever applied the word 'ridiculous' to any purported interview from me, it merely meant that he knew I could not have given such an interview. He knows that I have never made any statement favoring a request from the revolutionists for an armistice.

"The news of the departure of Señor Vasconcellas from San Antonio is not a surprise. He is coming East on an errand which may bring him through Washington, although he will go on to New York. His business in the East has no relation to the diplomatic phase of the situation."

Dr. Gomez said that the proposals for an armistice which had been transmitted to Gen Madero had not advanced to any understanding.

"They are still pending," he said.

BRITISH TALK OF MEXICO.

Spectator Warns Us of the Difficulties Intervention Would Bring.

LONDON, April 22.—The weekly newspapers comment on the formidable task that would be involved in American intervention in Mexico.

The Spectator make sa comparison of the situation on the North American Continent and Great Britain's difficulties in the South African war. It asks that if Great Britain needed 400,000 men and two years of operations to subjugate 1,000,000 Boers occupying a region half the size of Mexico, how many troops would the United States require to deal with 14,000,000 Mexicans? The article expresses the greatest friendliness for the United States and hopes that country will not abandon the Monroe Doctrine, but it urges that there is imminent danger in insisting on Monroeism without having the means to make good the doctrine.

PARSONS GUEST OF THE MEN WHO WERE

Former Officeholders and Those Who Might Have Been Make Merry Together.

OLD ELEPHANT NOT DEAD

So Says Stimson, Whom Griscom Says the People Really Wanted for Governor—A New Party Introduced.

Some 300 Republicans, including many former State and Federal officeholders, gave a dinner to ex-Congressman Herbert Parsons at Reisenweber's last night. Ex-State Chairman Ezra P. Prentice presided. Speeches were made by Henry L. Stimson, Henry W. Taft, brother of the President; Chairman Griscom of the County Committee, John Henry Hammond, ex-leader of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, and Sheriff Shea. Ex-Senator Depew was to have been present, but a toast was drunk to his empty chair. Messages of regret were read from Senator Root, Mr. Depew, President Taft, and Otto T. Bannard, who ran for Mayor on the Republican ticket two years ago.

Mr. Parsons' valedictory remarks were brief. He reviewed his career, saying he had enjoyed his long term in Congress, had been retired by the will of the people, and was now to retire to private life to practice his profession.

Mr. Prentice spoke of the large gathering of Republicans present to do honor "to Mr. Parsons at the close of his Congressional career for the time being."

In introducing Mr. Stimson, Mr. Prentice spoke of him as the man whom, "if we had our way, would now be Governor of the State." A little later Mr. Griscom followed this up by referring to Mr. Prentice's remarks and added: "Yes, and who would be Governor of New York to-day if the people had had their way."

The dinner was uproarious, and when Mr. Stimson rose to speak he said: "It seems that there is a good deal of life left in the old elephant yet."

When he had finished a gentleman in the back of the room arose and called for three cheers for him. They were given, and then a man on the other side of the room called for three cheers for Schneider. This was followed by several cries of "Who is Schneider?" The person who had first called for cheers was County Clerk Schneider.

Mr. Griscom enlivened a long dissertation on the glories of the Republican Party, past and present, with the remark that he had heard of a new political party being organized. "It is the Damnitidid Party," said he. "When I heard of it I asked what the party was and whom it was composed of and was told that it is made up of the men who voted for Dix, who reply, when they are asked if they did this, 'Yes, damn it, I did.'"

All the better known district leaders of the party were present, and others including Ex-Senator Agnew, Municipal Court Judge Blake, Secretary Boyle of the County Committee, Ex-Alderman Brown, Gherardi Davis, Alderman Folks, United States Marshal Henkel, Ex-Alderman Johnson, Ev-Secretary of State Koenig, Harry W. Mack, Deputy Controller Mathewson, Ex-Attorney General Mayer, Ogden L. Mills, Ex-Deputy State Excise Commissioner McKee, Senator Newcomb, Ex-Assemblyman Robinson, Ex-Judge William H. Wadhams, Felix M. Warburg, Secretary Whitney of the Public Service Commission, Public Works Commissioner Whittle of the Bronx, and Immigration Commissioner Williams.

put sugar as well as salt on the free list. Mr. Fordney had taunted the Democrats by saying he could buy a ton of salt in his State for 75 cents, and the farmers did not see much help for them in putting it on the free list.

To Go After Sugar Tariff.

Mr. Underwood said that they would take care of sugar in a separate bill.

"We found," said he, "that sugar brings the Treasury $60,000,000 revenue, and we could not take off that revenue without getting it somewhere else. We will in due time take care of sugar."

Mr. Nelson of Wisconsin made a strong fight for the dairy interests when the butter and cheese paragraph was reached. He said that the output of the world for export was 485,000,000 pounds last year, and Canada exported 170,000,000 pounds, while the United States exported only 10,000,000 pounds. The difference of prices between Canada and the United States was uniformly 4 or 5 cents in favor of the American dairyman, and now he was to lose that.

Mr. Nelson tried to get the other side to recognize the helplessness of the American potato against Canadian competition. Mr. Langley fought for the American hen and refused to see the egg go on the free list without protest. Julius Kahn struggled hard when the whale was reached on the free list. He said that the Canadian ships engaged in the whale fisheries were built in Norway and cost on an average $23,000, while the American ships were built in this country and cost $80,000.

The Canadian ships were manned by Chinese and Japanese, who received an average of $40 a month and boarded themselves, while the American ships were manned by "white men," who got $75 a month and were boarded by their employers. But the hard-hearted majority by this time had become so delirious in the fun of running the steam roller back and forth that they could not stop, and they ran over the egg, the whale, and the potato at one fell swoop.

The crowning aggravation of the day came when Mr. Lenroot offered the "Farmers' Free List" bill as an amendment. He urged that the Democrats were unwilling to vote for an extended free list on the Reciprocity bill, which every one knew was sure to become law, and were willing to postpone every amendment with the promise to vote for it in the free list bill, which no one believed could become law.

To this Mr. Underwood, the Democratic leader, retorted:

"The free list bill will become law, or the Republican Senate that kills it or the Republican President that vetoes it will never be heard from again."

The Steam Roller Goes On.

Mr. Lindberg of Minnesota offered an amendment to postpone the operation of the agreement until Jan. 1, 1912, so that the crops that were raised this last year should not be depreciated by ex-post facto legislation. This was rolled as flat as its predecessors.

Mr. Hubbard of Iowa brought in a unique amendment based on the Canadian law that a foreign inventor must sell his patent to the Government if demanded or go to Canada to manufacture. Mr. Mann thought it was too much to ask Canada not only to ratify the agreement, but to amend her patent laws to suit us, and the Democrats again steamrollered with a gay and resonant yell.

Representative Lafferty of Oregon showed originality by offering an amendment providing that the United States might at any time alter, amend, or repeal the agreement, and cited the agreement of 1854. Notwithstanding the fearful possibility that the amendment might go on forever, the Democrats again shouted "No!" as loudly as they had for thirty-odd times before, and that amendment went down.

At just 7 o'clock Mr. Sherley, who was in the chair, reported the bill from the Committee of the Whole. Mr. Norris made the last effort to stem the tide by moving to recommit the bill to Ways and Means, with instructions to amend by putting lumber on the free list. This was the last victim of the day, and it soon went the way of all good amendments—the House refusing to have a yea and nay vote on it. Then on the final vote the yeas and nays were had, and at 7:35 the House adjourned to Monday, when the free list bill will be taken up.

McCall Defends the Bill.

In the closing debate on reciprocity, Representative McCall of Massachusetts, declared that the farmers of the United States had been pushed forward to hide the real interests opposed to the agreement.

"The advantage of this reciprocity agreement will be not that of reducing the price of a single bushel of wheat," he said, "but when the time of scarcity comes, it will prevent the rise in price by giving us free access to the Canadian supply."

In a final attack on the bill, Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania, declared the agreement had been made without authority of law, that it had been made without popular desire for it and under the guise of a measure to reduce the cost of living. He held that neither the President nor Congress had the right to make an agreement with a foreign country involving revenue questions. He characterized the agreement a "bungling piece of statesmanship," and an "open, avowed, free trade measure," which would threaten the whole policy of protection to American industries.

Underwood Defies Steel Trust.

Mr. Underwood followed Mr. Dalzell with a strong defense of the measure, asserting that it marked an era in the economic life of the Nation.

In reply to a statement made by former Speaker Cannon in a recent speech to the effect that the United States Steel Corporation favored the reciprocity bill, Mr. Underwood said:

"I am in receipt of a telegram saying that the United States Steel Corporation has stopped work on important mills in my district, throwing 3,000 men out of employment and giving as its reason that I stood here advocating the tariff reductions on steel included in this bill. I say to the gentleman from Illinois that now I know where the United States Steel Corporation stands.

"Two years ago in my district," he continued, "the Steel Trust interests opposed me because I favored the reduction in the steel tariffs, and they threatened to turn me out of Congress if I voted for such reductions. I voted for them just the same and they failed in their efforts to turn me out."

CANADIAN LIBERALS REJOICE.

Will Themselves Ratify the Reciprocity Agreement Soon.

OTTAWA, Ontario, April 21.—News of the heavy majority given reciprocity at Washington was received with much satisfaction by the Government and the Liberal members. The opponents of the measure are now placing their faith in the hope that the United States Senate will long delay the bill or kill it.

"The vote at Washington to-day will be a great aid to the Canadian friends of reciprocity," said a member of the Dominion Government. "I expect to see the opposition at Ottawa collapse in the course of a few days, and I believe the measure will be passed by Parliament as soon as it is finally dealt with at Washington. If there was a limitation on the length of speechmaking here we would have passed the measure long since.

"The only recourse the opposition in Canada has is in long speeches. They have provided twenty-four-hour speeches for the last three days, but that sort of thing cannot be kept up much longer, and unless there is an indication at Washington that the Senate will possibly defeat reciprocity, the fight against it is likely to be dropped here."

GRAFT AT DANNEMORA.

Buckwheat Coal Paid For at Pea Prices—Lumber Cutting Perquisites.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., April 21.—Commissioner George E. Van Kennen, who is investigating affairs of the State Prison Department, endeavored to show by witnesses at to-day's hearing that the State is paying too much money to the lumberman who is furnishing lumber to Clinton Prison from timber cut on State land in Clinton County, set aside for prison purposes. The State owns the saw mill and pays Louis Dupuis to cut the timber, saw it, and deliver it to the prison at fixed prices for various grades and sizes. Within the past year these prices have been slightly increased, as the timber to be cut was not accessible as in former years.

Two lumbermen from St. Lawrence County, John Bird and George Heffron, testified that in their opinion the price paid by the prison authorities was more than was necessary for cutting lumber in their county.

Dupuis admitted that he had sawed logs at times for some of his neighbors and had pocketed the proceeds. One of those mentioned by the lumberman for whom he had sawed logs was ex-Sheriff James Cunningham, Democratic leader of Clinton County. The witness said he had also sold pulp wood from State lands to private individuals. This, however, was after he had been advised by a representative of the Forest, Fish, and Game Department, who had looked over the ground, that it would lessen the danger of forest fires if the tree tops were removed. He had not yet been paid for the wood, he said.

Warden Cole said that on several occasions he had forbidden Dupuis to saw logs for individuals.

John H. Signor, clerk of the prison, who had charge of the financial transactions, was questioned as to the acceptance at the prison of buckwheat coal instead of pea coal, as called for in the contract. Commissioner Van Kennen wanted to know how it was that with advices from the mines that buckwheat coal had been shipped, and a report from the man who weighed the coal upon its arrival that it was buckwheat coal, it had been paid for at the pea coal price. Mr. Signor said he had called the Warden's attention to it, and had been authorized by him to pay the bills.

CAPTURE OF FEZ REPORTED IN SPAIN

Garrison of Moorish Capital Said to Have Been Massacred and Sultan a Fugitive.

INTERVENTION IS PROBABLE

French Commanders and Their Forces in Dangerous Plight—Europeans and Americans Also in Peril.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 21.—The gravest anxiety is now felt as to the safety of the European residents of Fez, the capital of Morocco, which for weeks past has been besieged by tribesmen in rebellion against the Sultan, Mulai Hafid.

The distance from Fez to Tangier can usually be covered in three days, but no news has been received at the coast from the capital for eight days past, and the last reports indicated that the plight of the Sultan and the city was well-nigh desperate.

The Sultan's army of 2,500 men, under command of the French Colonel, Brémond, is, according to the latest news, in a pitiable and helpless condition, at a point twenty-five miles northwest of Fez, where it is being harassed in the rear by the rebel, Sherardas.

An army was sent out from Fez at the end of February to fight Sherardas, but was recalled a few days ago, owing to the dangerous situation of the capital. The men are now camping in deep mud, they are short of food and of ammunition, their horses are sick, and they are on the brink of revolt.

Reports are current that two smaller forces, under the command of Major Rueff and Capt. Moreau, who are seeking to carry supplies to Col. Brémond, have been attacked and their progress impeded. There is no other relief nearer than a hundred miles. French officers are organizing a Moorish relief expedition among the Shawia tribes on the west coast of Morocco, and this will be dispatched in the direction of Fez as rapidly as possible. French troops are being massed on the Algerian frontier and no doubt is entertained here that the Paris Government will take military action the moment it becomes convinced that there is need of its intervention to protect Europeans in Fez, where there are also two American missionaries.

It is not expected that Germany will raise any objections to a step like this, which would be one of common humanity. Some reports state, indeed, that the Berlin Government has already expressed full approval of the measures which it is proposed to adopt in case of necessity. Nevertheless the French Cabinet is showing the greatest care in dealing with an exceptionally complicated issue, where international jealousies are so keen.

LONDON, April 22.—Up to an early hour this morning no confirmation had been received here of the reported fall of Fez and of the massacre of the garrison.

MADRID, April 21.—The Government has received a telegram stating that a native has arrived at Tetuan, who says that the Moroccan rebels have stormed Fez and massacred the garrison, and that the Sultan has taken refuge in the French Consulate. No confirmation of the report, however, is obtainable here.

PARIS, April 21.—A telegram was received to-day by the Foreign Office from Capt. Bremond of the French military mission in Morocco, dated April 12, asking that ammunition and money be sent him, but not stating whether his position is critical. The Government will comply with the request.

Capt. Bremond, who is commanding both the French division and the forces of the Sultan, is the chief hope of Mulai Hafid. The Captain, according to recent reports, is attempting to reach Fez, but is harrassed by the rebel tribesmen. Earlier advices have described the position of his army as desperate.

France is rapidly reinforcing her troops in Morocco, and Spain is planning an extensive campaign for the protection of her interests there. There are reports that France and Spain are not in accord as to measures to be pursued, and that German influence is being exercised at Madrid in a manner unfavorable to the French plans.

FOUND THROUGH LOST AD.

Miss Constance Collier Has "King" Back Through Its Aid.

Constance Collier, the actress, who is playing here in "Thais," is rejoicing in the recovery through THE TIMES Lost column of King, her white Boston bulldog, which she lost several days ago not far from Times Square. King was returned to her yesterday, and after he had been petted a lot Miss Collier sat down and penned a note of appreciation.

"I have again used your Lost column to advantage," she wrote. "The advertisement in THE TIMES for my valuable dog resulted in restoring him to my possession in a few hours' time."

A. G. Odell of 622 West 135th Street is counting on the same means to restore to him his pocketbook, which had in it $18 and some bond coupons worth $72 when it passed out of his possession about 6:30 o'clock last evening as he was riding uptown in the Subway. The train was a crowded Broadway local, and Mr. Odell missed the pocketbook at the Sixty-sixth Street station. Then he remembered that just before the train pulled in a passenger had jostled against him. He promptly notified the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station and advertised in THE TIMES Lost column. He offers a reward for the return of his missing property.

WILSON SCORES AGAIN AS LAWMAKERS QUIT

"A Remarkable Record," He Says After Public Utilities Measure Is Passed.

FIGHT ON COMMISSION BILL

Automobile Reciprocity Fails — All School Reform Plans Adopted — Cold Storage Legislation Killed.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 21.—The New Jersey Legislature wound up its work to-night with practically all of the big reform measures advocated by Gov. Wilson passed.

The Public Utilities bill, the last of the four big measures for which the Governor had been contesting, was passed by both houses to-day.

The bill had been in conference and there was a cheer when the conference report unanimously passed the House after it had gone through the Senate. The bill continues in power the present Utilities Commissioners to the end of their terms and gives that body many additional powers for regulating public utilities. Among these is the power to regulate rates.

Gov. Wilson, discussing the work of the Legislature, said he felt that he was simply expressing a universal sentiment in saying that the session just closed was one remarkable for good feeling and achievement.

"I think it will always be remembered," he said, "as extraordinary in this, that it witnessed the fulfillment by the Legislature of every important campaign pledge.

"The Employers Liability and Workingmen's Compensation act has given the State a statute more serviceable and more consistent with justice in the field to which it applies than perhaps any other in the Union.

"The Primary and Election bill has worked a thoroughgoing reform of the whole electoral process of the State, and has put every process of choice directly in the hands of the people.

"The Corrupt Practices act is singularly thoroughgoing and will undoubtedly prove most effective. It will do, perhaps, more than any other piece of legislation on this notable list, to purify elections and secure unbiased action of the people at the polls.

"The Public Utilities act goes the full length of reform in respect of the control of public service corporations. It is a thoroughly businesslike act, well conceived and well constructed, and ought to afford a means of settling some of the most perplexing questions connected with the control of corporations.

"Add to this list the regulation of cold storage, the substitution of indeterminate for determinate sentences for criminal offenses; the rectification of the abuses in connection with false weights and measures; the administration reform of the school system, and, it must be admitted, it constitutes one of the most remarkable records of legislation, I venture to think, that has ever distinguished a single legislative session in this country."

What proved to be the bitterest fight in recent years in the Senate developed when Republican whip Prince tried to force through his automobile reciprocity bill to give free license privileges to tourists and other non-residents who would limit their Jersey travel to fifteen days a year. There arose a question as to the bill's effect on penalties for violations and an opinion was had from Attorney General Wilson, who said that in this respect it would neither repeal nor modify the act of 1906.

Senator Frelinghuysen offered an amendment increasing by 50 per cent. the license fee on resident autoists to make up for the loss of non-resident fees. Senator Hand took a fling at the autoists by calling them "cheap guys who want everything for nothing." Senator Gebhardt confessed that he owned an auto, but characterized autoists who object to fees as "cheap sports" and "hoggish." Senator Leavitt flayed the automobile clubs for attempting to play politics, and Senator Edge hotly retorted that the purpose seemed to be to amend the measure to death. The bill was finally lost by a vote of 10 to 10, Senator Brown casting the deciding vote against it after remaining silent until his name had been repeatedly called.

The House passed Senator Osborne's bill to abolish contract labor at the State prison; the Senate resolution creating a ship canal commission; the Senate bill abolishing the present State Board of Education and providing for the appointment of a $10,000 a year State School Commissioner, together with a series of Senate bills reforming financial methods of the public school system; Senator Bradley's bill providing three-year terms for all officials of second-class cities, and Assemblyman James's resolution for an investigation of cold storage plants. The James resolution was killed later in the Senate, where objection was raised to the $10,000 appropriation clause it carried.

WILSON'S APPOINTMENTS OUT.

Kalisch on Supreme Bench — Record Made a State Assessor.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 21.—Having held back practically all appointments until the big administration reform measures had been enacted, Gov. Wilson had an unusually long list of nominations to send in to the Senate in the closing hours of the Legislature to-day.

He named Allen B. Endicott of Atlantic, as Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals. He retired Supreme Court Justice Alfred Reed of this city, who has been a member of the State Judiciary for nearly half a century, and appointed Samuel Kalisch of Newark. This is the first time a Jew has been named to the Supreme Bench. Justice Reed is to get a pension of $3,300 a year under an act passed for his benefit at this session.

The Governor retired Theodore Strong, the Middlesex boss, from the State Board of Assessors, and in his place appointed George L. Record, progressive Republican leader in Hudson County. In the past few years Mr. Record has been identified with both the Democratic and Republican parties and with practically all of the factions of each. Recently, he has been a progressive of the most pronounced type.

Another unusual appointment was that of Martin P. Devlin of this city, to the Mercer County Tax Board. Mr. Devlin bitterly opposed the nomination of Gov. Wilson and took no part in the campaign leading up to his election. He takes the place on the Tax Board of W. Holt Apgar, Counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The Governor provided for some of his Princeton University associates, among them Moses Taylor Pyne as member of the Public Library Commission, and Prof. Winthrop Moore Daniels to be a member of the Public Utilities Commission. Prof. Daniels succeeds former Sheriff Frank Sommer of Newark.

The Governor issued to-night a statement praising the good work of Public Utilities Commissioner Sommer and Justice Reed. The latter was retired because of his age and poor health.

CITY INFORMATION BUREAU.

Borough President Wants One Opened to Receive Complaints and Inquiries.

Borough President McAneny has announced that he will soon recommend to the Board of Estimate the establishment of a central Bureau of Information for the benefit of citizens.

Inquiries and complaints regarding all branches of the City Government are made by citizens every day. Sometimes they are addressed to the right source, and more often they are not. The Borough President's idea is that there should be some central place where citizens can go with these complaints and inquiries, and that the establishment of the bureau would at the same time be of benefit to the various city departments.

TELLS ALL FOR "MARSE JIM."

Son Accused of Murder Always a Good Boy, ex-Slave Assures Osborne.

Peter Osborne, 81 years old, of 13 Cornelia Street, looking like a stage "Uncle Tom," was the principal witness yesterday in behalf of his son, Edward, on trial before Judge Crain, in General Sessions, for the murder of Louis Spencer at Sixth Avenue and Carmine Street on Nov. 13 last. The son is being defended by James W. Osborne. Old Peter was a slave on the plantation of Mr. Osborne's father, near Charlotte, N. C. After the prosecution had closed Mr. Osborne summoned Peter to the stand and told him to speak so the jurors could hear him. Smiling broadly at his former master's son, Old Peter said:

"Yassuh, Marse Jim, yassuh; I am goin' to tell 'em anything you say."

"Remember, though, Peter, you must tell the truth," said Mr. Osborne.

"Marse Jim," said Peter, looking hurt, "yo' know Ol' Peter ain't goin' t' tell nuffin else. Ain't I done gawn an' swore mahself on de Good Book? No, Marse Jim, yo' know right well Ah ain't tellin' no lies."

Old Peter looked proudly around the crowded courtroom, and then related a long story about the days when he was a slave and how after the war he had come to this city to look after "Marse Jim." He said that Edward had always been a good boy and that he had fourteen children.

"Once Ah got a foolish notion in mah head that Ah wanted t' go t' Liberia," he said, "and Marse Jim's father guv me th' money, but Ah soon cum back, fo' life ain't worth living away from Marse Jim, nohow."

Peter identified the coat his son had worn on the night of the shooting, and said it was one his master's son had given to him.

Edward Osborne testified that on the night of the shooting he had been attending a party, and was going home when he was attacked by a number of other negroes and stabbed, after which he had drawn his revolver and shot to protect himself. He bared his back and showed the stab wound he had received and produced the clothes he had worn and showed the hole where the knife had gone through.

George Johnson, another negro, backed up Edward's story, saying that an old negro known only as "Grandpop" had done the stabbing. The case was adjourned until Monday, when it will be submitted to the jury.

CARING FOR THE JEWISH POOR

Dr. Silverman Tells Public Good Society of the Work.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman addressed the Public Good Society in the north ballroom of the Hotel Astor last night on "The Good Work of Jewish Societies." Dr. Silverman explained that the great problem confronting the Jewish population in New York is to provide for the large numbers of exiles fleeing oppression in Russia. Most of these, he said, have had to leave their property behind and arrive here almost penniless.

Benevolence rather than charity is the object of the relief work carried on by Jewish organizations in this city, he explained. Assistance and relief is given to enable families and individuals to get on their own feet and become self-supporting. In thousands of cases families thus assisted have joined in the work of relieving later arrivals or those who have fallen into distress. Despite the large number of Jews in New York, Dr. Silverman declared that a Jewish beggar is unknown.

About $2,000,000 a year is expended in Jewish benevolence in this city, Dr. Silverman said. This is contributed by about 100,000 persons, who thus bear the burden of about 1,250,000 population.

Dr. Silverman concluded his address with an appeal for the cessation of the massacres and oppression of Jews in Russia. Dr. Silverman declared that the enlightened nations of the earth should say to her as the United States said to Spain about Cuba:

"This butchery must cease!"

Mme. Alma Webster Powell presided. The Rev. Henry Frank spoke on "The Poor and Their Future." The set meeting was followed by dancing.

SPEECHES BARRED AT DINNER

Texas Club Has Vaudeville Instead and Thinks It Escaped a Bore.

The dinner with vaudeville, all speeches being strictly out of order, appeared as a State society function at the annual dinner of the Texas Club of New York at the Plaza Hotel last night. Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier, in inviting Texans and New Yorkers who once were Texans to the function, assured them in advance that they could depend on not being bored by speechmakers. Her substitute programme consisted of "carnival" features, beginning with the first course of the dinner and lasting well on into the evening.

As the diners took their seats dancing flower girls in Mexican costumes passed quickly up and down the aisles, distributing large bunches of flowers. They also sang Mexican and Southern songs. The flowers, it turned out later, had a purpose, for at the end of the dinner the "Battle of the Flowers" was announced, a function in which those at one table had to see how quickly they could shower their flowers upon those at the adjoining tables. As the "battle" reached its height a large electric sign, designed after the pattern of the famous Alamo, flashed out on the northern wall, and as the battle began to subside an American flag fluttered out from the Alamo's roof.

Six cotillion figures, representing the six eras in Texan history, were danced after the tables had been removed. In the figures were included soldiers, Indians, cowboys, farmers, and finally university students and statesmen.

"We could have had speakers galore," said Mrs. Sevier, "but who hasn't condemned his luck after going to speechy, stupid dinners. This was planned to be something different. I hope it proves a precedent."

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 21.—Rumors to the effect that the Great Northern Railroad had made traffic agreements with the Grand Trunk system, and that through trains from the East would be run through St. Paul to connect with the new line of the Grand Trunk system at Crosby, N. D., have been current here for some time, and are given credence by the fact that the Grand Trunk is now installing a city ticket office in this city.

The Regina to Crosby extension of the Grand Trunk, which is to connect at Crosby with the Great Northern Crosby line, has been provided for in the annual budget of $13,000,000 for improvements, and will be built this Summer. From Crosby it is said the Grand Trunk trains will be hauled by the Great Northern to Minot, N. D., thence to Fargo, N. D., over the new proposed Great Northern Air Line, which it is said will be built this Summer, in order to shorten the haul to the Pacific Coast some sixty miles.

From Fargo the Grand Trunk trains will probably be run east over the Breckinridge Wilmar line of the Great Northern, and it is presumed that the Burlington Route from this city to Chicago will be used in the event that the deal now pending goes into effect. In both Canadian and Northwestern railroad circles it is generally believed that the details of the proposed traffic arrangements have already been made.

OLDEST POLICEMAN TO PATROL NO MORE

James Farley, 53 Years on the Force, Was Late at Roll Call Only Once.

ON THE BLIZZARD MORNING

Walked from Harlem to the Arsenal and Was 15 Minutes Late—78 When He Quit, but Took No Favors.

James Farley, for fifty-three years a policeman, and now 78 years old, was retired from the force at midnight last night at his own request. He was the oldest policeman in the city's service. Plans had been made to give the old man a sort of reception when he lined up with the other members of his platoon for the last time at midnight, but Farley himself spoiled these. For the first time in years the old man went off on sick leave yesterday afternoon. Before this leave expires he will have ceased to be a member of the force.

Farley's health has been somewhat poor of late, owing to his advanced years, his friends say, but there were some last night who surmised that perhaps the old man had been frightened by the farewell ceremonies which he knew he would have to face at the station. Every man who was not on duty had planned to be there to bid farewell to Farley, and there were many citizens and children who called yesterday in the hope of seeing the old man only to be told by Capt. James Post that he had left the station as a policeman for the last time.

Farley became a member of the regular police force when the "sparrow cops," as the park policemen were called, were amalgamated with the regular force. He was appointed to the park police on March 22, 1858, and after more than thirty years of service in Central Park was transferred to St. Mary's Park, at 141st Street and St. Ann's Avenue, in the Bronx.

The old policeman has never left this post, for with consolidation he went to the Alexander Avenue Station, and because of his already advanced age he was assigned to the post through and alongside St. Mary's Park. The only change was in his uniform, the dark blue being substituted for the gray.

To every man, woman, and child in the neighborhood Farley was a friend. The children called him "Mr. Farley," never policeman, and their elders were as careful of the old man's dignity. Those he had known as children were the fathers and mothers of the youngsters Farley still kept off the grass in the park, and as he could call all of them by name it never needed more than an admonition from him to make the youngsters behave.

"Harry, I'll tell your father," Farley would declare, and Harry, senior, was likely to greet his offspring later with the remark: "Mr. Farley tells me you were disobedient."

It wasn't often, however, that the threatened report was made to the parents. The youngsters of the neighborhood obeyed Farley as well, if not better, than they did their parents.

As his age increased the old man's superiors in the department tried to lighten his tasks. Some of them came near incurring his everlasting displeasure. Special favors were something Policeman Farley abhorred. Capt. James Post of the Alexander Avenue Station agreed with his men that in the event of a hurry call for reserves late at night, it would be a shame to awaken Farley.

So they told Farley: "You're getting old and it's needless to bother you about every little thing. There's a room in the house you can have for your own; there's no need to sleep in the dormitory, and when the men turn out, unless it's especially urgent, you needn't be disturbed."

The news nearly laid old Farley on his back. Had the good intentions of his comrades been carried out, the old man might not have withstood the blow to his pride. But they weren't carried out. In a perfectly respectful tone and yet one which Capt. Post knew was final, he declined the favor.

"While I'm on the force I'll earn my money," said the old man. When they tried once to slip out of the house without him on a call for the reserves, he tumbled out before his comrades could leave the house, storming at their "treachery." It was the same when they tried to persuade him not to do house duty, and the same, too, when Deputy Police Commissioner Bugher tried to give him an easy detail at Headquarters three years ago.

Commissioner Bingham heard of the old man and sent for him to come to Headquarters. The order worried Farley exceedingly. In his whole career he had had just one complaint against him, and he dreaded another. That was in the blizzard year of 1888. Farley reached the Arsenal Station in Central Park fifteen minutes late on March 12. He was brought up on charges and explained then for the first time the reason for his tardiness. He lived in the Bronx and usually walked to 129th Street, where he took a bus that ran to Central Park.

On the night he was late he reached 129th Street to find that the 'bus had surrendered to the storm and was stalled in its barn. Farley walked the whole distance to the arsenal through the worst snowstorm of years. That he was only fifteen minutes late bore testimony to the promptness with which he would have reached the station had the 'bus not failed him.

But it was not to reprimand him that Commissioner Bingham wanted to see Farley. It was to compliment him on his years of service and to invite him to a seat of honor beside the Commissioner when the police parade was held. It was then that Mr. Bugher saw him and the nine stripes on his coat sleeve.

But Farley would have none of the detail. Up to last night he went on post every time his platoon was sent out, did reserve duty when the turn came to him and performed his share of house duty. But at the stroke of midnight all this ended and Policeman James Farley who was, walked out of the Alexander Avenue Station House a plain citizen.

The old policeman is going to Europe this Summer. He has saved money in his years on the force and declared last night his dearest wish was to see the old country—Ireland—before he died. He has three sons and two daughters. His wife died six months ago.

Sergt. John Farley, attached to the Tremont Station, is a son of the old policeman. Until a few months ago he was stationed at the Alexander Avenue house, where day and night he made inspection rounds, watching to see if his father, among others, was on post. But they do say that the old man did the inspecting, holding Sergt. Farley to account if he were a second late at the inspection meeting point.

'SAILOR' NEVER WENT TO SEA.

Magistrate, Who Was Somewhat of an Old Salt, Sends Impostor to Brig.

Magistrate Freschi showed that he was somewhat of an old salt himself in the Yorkville Court yesterday, when he denounced as an impostor a Broadway beggar who asked clemency by asserting that he was a sailor. The Judge sent the man to the brig. Frank McNally, the prisoner, looked about as much like a sailor as a Connecticut farmer could.

"I hope you will be merciful to a down-and-out but honest sailorman," he wailed.

"A sailor?" the Magistrate querried. "Your address?"

"The sea's my home, your Honor. I came in from a cruise, and they took my last nickel and then turned me out. If you let me go back to my ship, on my word, your Honor, I won't come back for a year."

"What ship do you belong to?" asked the Magistrate.

"No particular ship, boss, but I could get a job on most any of 'em. Just let me go this time and I'll go to Cuba."

"Now, if you're a seaman, tell me, could you furl the main to'gallan' sail and splice the spinnaker?"

"I sure could."

"Did you ever splice the main brace?"

"Sure, your Honor, a sailor does most anything."

"And tell me, sailor, is the binnacle abaft the lee scuppers or is it forward of the chart coop?"

"It's nigh the scuppers on my ship, your Honor."

"Now raise your hands and show the court your palms."

They were soft and white.

"You're an impostor. You never saw the sea," the Magistrate said, and added: "Jailer, take this fake sailor to the brig."

The prisoner was held in default of $300 bail for a month's good behavior.

Samuel Untermyer Calls Reopening of Divorce Suit Blackmail.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 21.—Attorney Samuel Untermyer of New York, counsel for William Guggenheim, declared before Judge Tuthill that his client is a victim of blackmailers, and that the suit to annul the divorce gained by Guggenheim against Mrs. Grace Guggenheim is an effort on her part to get money from him. The argument was made on a motion to dismiss the suit of Mrs. Guggenheim. The decision will be given next week.

Mrs. Guggenheim at the time she was granted the divorce was awarded $150,000 alimony. Some time later she was married to Jules Roger Wahl of New York, but four years later Wahl went to France and obtained an annulment of this marriage.

Mrs. Guggenheim has been in the court for over a year seeking to have the decree awarded her set aside. She contends that at the time she was granted the divorce she was not a legal resident and therefore the divorce is not legal.

Attorney Untermyer after reviewing the case briefly, said: "This is nothing but a blackmailing proposition. What is her motive in having this decree set aside? It is very plain. If the decree is set aside then she is guilty of bigamy. All she wants to do is to stir up the present domestic relations of Mr. Guggenheim for the purpose of getting money."

Robin's shoulder and said he was glad to know that Robin was going to aid the Carnegie Trust Company, as some of its Directors were friends of his.

Mr. Reichmann says he met the City Chamberlain through Cummins. It is asserted that the meeting took place in the Carnegie Trust Company during the time Reichmann was President of the institution.

The Clash With the Grand Jury.

Cummins and Reichmann, in obedience to their subpoenas, arrived at the Criminal Court Building at 2 o'clock accompanied by their counsel. They made the trip in Mr. Cummins's automobile. Reichmann was called at once into the Grand Jury room, where he was joined by District Attorney Whitman, Assistant District Attorney Clark, and the Grand Jury stenographer. Forty questions which had been prepared in advance were read to Reichmann. Judging by what transpired later in open court Reichmann must have refused to answer each of these on advice of counsel based upon constitutional grounds. While Reichmann was in the Grand Jury room Mr. Baldwin remained in the corridor.

"I have advised my clients not to answer any questions," said Mr. Baldwin, "I have advised them so for reasons which were beautifully expressed by all the great Judges from John Marshall down, that a man who is perfectly innocent in testifying to an innocent thing may supply the link that may lead to indictments.

"What a marvelous machine they have here for indictments. Do you know that some of those indictments returned yesterday were simply repetitions of old indictments? Mr. Whitman may know what he is doing, but I have noticed that in every instance where a district attorney has caused a lot of indictments to be drawn those indictments have failed in the State courts."

"How about Joseph G. Robin?" a reporter suggested.

"Why Robin has escaped punishment, hasn't he?" asked Mr. Baldwin. Some doubt was expressed by the reporter as to this and Mr. Baldwin continued: "I am sure he will, for has not the District Attorney taken him into partnership?"

Mr. Baldwin had hardly finished when the door of the Grand Jury room opened and the jury filed out, accompanied by Reichmann, District Attorney Whitman, and Mr. Clark. They proceeded at once to Justice Davis's court, where a trial was in progress. It was suspended for a moment, while the District Attorney mounted the bench and whispered to Justice Davis for a few moments.

"I understand that the Grand Jury has a communication to make," said Justice Davis when Mr. Whitman finished talking. "Return here at 4 o'clock and the room will be cleared of every one except the Grand Jury and the witness."

This announcement came as a surprise to Mr. Baldwin, who had anticipated that he would be allowed to represent his client at all conferences with the Justice. Again District Attorney Whitman and Justice Davis conferred and it was agreed that the proceedings at 4 o'clock should be in open court.

While Reichmann waited in the District Attorney's office Cummins was called before the Grand Jury. The same proceeding took place in his case apparently, for at 4 o'clock when the Grand Jury reappeared before Justice Davis both Reichmann and Cummins were present.

The Grand Jury stenographer took the witness chair and read in an undertone forty questions prepared by the District Attorney and put to Reichmann and Cummins. He was also overheard to read the following statement from District Attorney Whitman to Reichmann:

"Now, I want you to understand, Mr. Reichmann, that this proceeding is not against you but is against Mr. Charles H. Hyde, and that nothing you may say will be used against you."

"These questions have been asked the witness Reichmann and he refuses to answer," said District Attorney Whitman to the court.

"The court has heard read the proceedings of the Grand Jury while the witness Reichmann was being examined," said Justice Davis, "and after a careful consideration I decide that all the questions asked were proper and pertinent, and the District Attorney had the right to ask them.

"In the opinion of the court they must be answered. The Grand Jury is directed to return to its room and the witness Reichmann is ordered to proceed there forthwith. I will say to the witness that if he refuses to answer he will be guilty of contempt of court, and will be so judged."

"There is another witness," said Mr. Whitman, indicating Cummins, who with Reichmann and their lawyer, sat beside the counsel's table.

Again the Grand Jury stenographer read in an undertone from his notes, and when he had finished Justice Davis made the same ruling in the Cummins case.

Mr. Baldwin requested the court that he be allowed to have a copy of the minutes, but Justice Davis refused on the ground that the request was an improper one, as the minutes contained Grand Jury proceedings.

When the Grand Jury retired Mr. Baldwin said he had instructed his clients to answer all the questions. Reichmann was in the Jury room about half an hour. Leaving the Criminal Court Building he hastened to catch a 5:30 o'clock train for Dayton, Ohio, where his presence is needed at the Platt Iron Works, of which he is President. Cummins was also in the Grand Jury room about half an hour. When he left it was with the understanding that he return for a further examination on Monday next. Reichmann is also expected back on Monday as his subpoena calls for his appearance again on that day.

Other Witnesses Heard.

The Grand Jury also heard yesterday Sterling Birmingham, former loan clerk in the Windsor Trust Company, and Joseph G. Robin. Mr. Birmingham informed the authorities prior to entering the Grand Jury room that during the time he was connected with the Windsor Trust Company two examinations were made by the Banking Department.

On both occasions, says Mr. Birmingham, the officials of the Windsor Trust Company were tipped off a day in advance of the examination. Officials of the State Banking Department announced a few weeks ago that such tips were impossible under the present system of bank examination.

Robin's presence before the Grand Jury was to correct certain parts of his former testimony concerning the meeting at City Chamberlain Hyde's law office on the evening of Aug. 28.

It is said that Rufus Gaynor will be a witness before the Grand Jury next week.

VETERANS OF 71ST RECALL WAR DAYS

UNVEIL A HERO'S PICTURE

He Was Harry Rockefeller, Who Lost Arm in First Battle, Was Captured, and Escaped to Win Colonel's Rank.

Fifty of the fifty-six surviving veterans of the Seventy-first New York Regiment who took part in the first battle of Bull Run, fought July 21, 1861, and several hundred of the younger comrades of the regiment, including fourteen Spanish war veterans, dined together at the Park Avenue Hotel last night, told stories, and cheered in honor of their leaving New York to protect the National capital just fifty years ago. Portraits of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson, as well as of Grant, Sherman, and Burnside, smiled upon the diners from all sides.

"We were lined up in a hollow square in the old armory on Park Avenue," said Col. William A. Boyd, "when the telegram from Washington was read to us. In a very few hours we were at the foot of Liberty Street, boarding the transport Robert R. Cuyler. And on the Capitol's steps paced dear old Abraham Lincoln, restless and wearied, and repeating over and over again, 'Oh, God, will they never come?'"

At the first mention of the name of Lincoln there were shouts and cheers from the younger veterans, but from the corner where the aged veterans were assembled there were bowed heads and silent prayers. Col. Boyd, directing his remarks to the silent corner, said:

"They are silent because they know best why we celebrate this day. They were the ones who left their firesides and they are thinking at this moment of the Lincoln who gave his life and of their own comrades who gave their lives that this Nation might live."

Nearly all of the old veterans, including two officers, Gen. John R. Livermore and Lieut. Henry A. Embler, gathered before a draped flag hanging on the wall in the rear of the dais. It was not the flag with which the Seventy-first started to war; that was burned in the destruction of the old armory in 1902. The impression was none the less effective when Gen. A. T. Francis, pulling the flag from the wall, revealed to view a life portrait of Col. Harry Rockefeller, presented by him to the Veterans' Association.

The older veterans all knew their dead comrade, his left coat sleeve hanging empty by his side and his right hand still grasping the sword of his regiment, and those who had not met him personally had often heard of his valor in the first battle of Bull Run, where his arm was shot away and he was taken prisoner by the rebel army. It was aged Capt. H. H. Evertson who told the story.

"He was only 19 then," he said, "but he was as brave as an American could possibly be. Our regiment was a part of the first brigade on the battlefield. Harry was a private in the front ranks. Gen. Burnside sent word that our brigade was so stationed that we were firing on our own men. The order to advance the colors fifty yards was given. Harry was right under the colors and heard the order. The Color Sergeant took the flag and Harry, as well as many others of the brave boys, followed.

"Just then there was a terrible crash, and I can't clearly remember just what happened. A shell from the enemy came ripping through the flag, tearing it in shreds. One of the fragments tore away poor Harry's left arm, and continued through his mouth and out of his cheek. He was made a prisoner and confined in Libby Prison, where they amputated the arm. But Harry was a game fellow, and he escaped in less than a year.

"He rejoined his regiment in time to participate in the battle of Gettysburg. He was recommended for his service and rapidly advanced to be a Colonel. Often would I see him riding a charger, drawing in the reins with his teeth, and saluting with his only hand. His enthusiasm represented the spirit of the Nation. He knew what he was fighting for, and he thought it was worth his life to give the service of which he was capable. His valor was the inspiration of all who came in contact with him. He remained in active service until the very end of the war and when he returned to New York in 1866 was made Major of the regiment. He died in 1872. His picture will be hung in the new armory."

In the Battle of Bull Run, which was the principal conflict in which the whole Seventy-first participated, the regiment counted sixty-five men killed, wounded, and taken prisoners.

The guest of the evening was Capt. James E. Graybell, who fought in the Battle of Bull Run on the Confederate side. Officers of the Seventy-first Regiment included Gen. Andrew H. Embler, Gen. Edwin A. McAlpin, President of the Veteran Association; Brig. Gen. William G. Bates, Cols. William A. Boyd, Charles F. Homer, Joseph J. Little, Charles H. Patrick, Eugene H. Conklin, John A. Joyce, and Capts. Joseph Pierson, and H. H. Evertson.

SICKLES GUEST OF THE 12TH.

Fifty Veterans Spin Yarns for the Benefit of the Youngsters.

About fifty white haired veterans who marched with the Twelfth Regiment to the civil war, just fifty years before, reassembled at their semi-centennial reunion at Rector's last night, together with some 250 more stalwart and youthful members of later years, all powerful of lung to cheer their honored ancients. The old men carried themselves with an erectness that still bespoke of wartime days, though in many of them a faltering step, or limping walk, or stiffened arm recalled also Bull Run, Antietam, and Gettysburg, at all of which the old Twelfth distinguished itself.

So great was the gathering that the large banquet hall on the second floor could not accommodate them all, and four additional rooms had to be thrown open for overflow gatherings. In each room the veterans fell to talking war, and the young men, grouped around them in gay regimental uniform, leaned across the tables, interested auditors of the events that made their regiment famous. A special reception was given before the dinner to the guest of honor, Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, one of the five surviving corps commanders of the war, and a one-time Major of the Twelfth. It was in his corps that the Twelfth fought at Gettysburg, a field where Gen. Sickles lost a leg.

It was nearly midnight before the dinner was finished. By the time the speaking began Gen. Sickles alone, as he presently announced, had signed no less than 1,861 autographs on as many menu cards handed to him. He said he was sure of that number, because he had been talking about it all night. So had everybody else.

They continued to talk about it almost until the wan hours of the morning, when all good veterans ought to be in bed. Gen. Sickles started off the symposium of wartime recollections, and when he asked how long he might talk, the regiment roared "All night! All night!" He and his fellow-veterans at the guest table were almost as good as their allowance.

By the time Gen. Sickles, Gen. Avery, and Col. Bird had told what reminiscences they could, every other veteran's tongue was aching toward oratory. Only the young and stalwart militiamen of the present regiment were hoarse with cheering.

All of these and some of the veterans said they would try to be at the centennial celebration fifty years hence. The active regimenters meant it.

HURLS GLASS EYE AT FEET OF JUDGE

Gaetano Esposito by His Sensational Act Causes the Camorra Trial to Suspend.

THEN DROPS IN A FAINT

He and 5 Others, Who Are Charged with Sentencing the Cuocolos to Death, Interrogated.

VITERBO, April 21.—Six Camorristi, who with Luigi Fucci and others examined this week, are said to have passed the death sentence on the Cuocolos at a Bagnoli tavern on May 26, 1906, were interrogated to-day.

The first heard was Gaetano Esposito, who, at the end of a mad harangue, tore a glass eye from his face and hurled it at the feet of the President, Commendatore Bianchi, and then dropped in a faint while the sitting was hastily suspended.

According to the State, Esposito, who is known as a usurer, is a dangerous malefactor and succeeded Enrico Alfano as the head of the Camorra when Alfano fled to the United States, there to fall into the hands of Lieut. Petrosino, and be deported in the Spring of 1907.

There was a shudder among the spectators when Esposito was called for interrogation. He is not a pleasing man to look upon at best, and his knife-scarred face is made less inviting by the glass substitute for an eye lost in his youth.

The prisoner attempted to prove an alibi so far as the meeting at Bagnoli was concerned. At that time he was traveling, he said, between Milan and Rome. He gave a detailed account of his wanderings prior to the murder of Cuocolo and his wife, and gradually wrought himself up to a fine frenzy. He concluded in substance as follows:

"It is true that I concealed myself at the time, when I learned that I was to be arrested. I was suffering as I am even now, from heart disease. In my boyhood I lost one eye. I feared that I would die in prison from the malady, which had already seized me, or what would be even worse, that I would lose my other eye."

Here self-pity gripped the prisoner, who became hysterical and sobbed violently, his face in his hands. All attention was on the man when suddenly he raised his head and with a deft movement of the hand released the sightless organ, and, throwing it on the floor before the Judge's bench, bared his disfigured face to the horrified spectators. Thus for a few seconds he posed and then with a choking cry dropped to the floor in a faint.

By this time the nerves of all in the room were on edge, and as Esposito collapsed a tumult was raised. From the steel cage the prisoners shouted, cried, and cursed. Pasquale Gargiulo, who is also a sufferer from heart disease, wailed: "You wish for our deaths in prison. We wish that at least we may die in a hospital."

One of the jurymen, who is a physician, went to the assistance of Esposito, and President Bianchi declared the sitting suspended.

When the sitting was resumed others charged with having been present in Bagnoli when the death sentence was passed upon the Cuocolos were heard. Antonio di Domizio said that he did not ask acquittal because of a fear of condemnation, as he already had been in prison for a longer period than he now could be sentenced to serve. He desired acquittal, he said, only to vindicate his honor, especially in the interest of his family, which is composed of respectable people.

Giovanni Bartolozzi, who has the eyes of a lunatic and is an epileptic, next was heard. He cynically admitted that he is a criminal and has spent his life between prisons and lunatic asylums. He had been forced to live outside prison an aggregate of two years, he said. Bartolozzi said he had no reason to hate Cuocolo.

Giuseppi Minichiello violently attacked the Carabinieri, calling their officers the real heads of the Camorra.

Giuseppi Chirico declared he was in the United States when the murder of Cuocolo was committed, engaged on the docks in unloading English steamers.

Giovanni Morelli, the last of the defendants to testify to-day, said that Abbatemaggio had made a wrong identification of him, evidently having mistaken some one else for him.

Esposito is almost as common a name in Southern Italy as Gennaro, which is the Italian form of Januarius, the patron saint of Naples, and whose blood, preserved in the Capella del Tesoro in two vessels, is said to liquify thrice annually. There are three Espositos, Gaetano, Francesco, and Pasquale, among the Camorristi, who are said to have composed the court which sentenced the Cuocolos to death, although it is not known that they are related to one another. Some famous Italians have borne the name Esposito, and there are to-day a well-known composer and a distinguished marine painter named respectively, Michele and Gaetano Esposito.

But the Gaetano Esposito, who threw his glass eye at the feet of Commendatore Bianchi yesterday, is a bird of another feather, somewhat after the character of Nicola Morra, alias "Puzzulaniello," or "Red Sandy," who is also minus the left eye—a loss he inflicted on himself thirty years ago so that he might not be obliged to serve in the army and not, as he explained to the examining Magistrate three years ago, while gallantly fighting for his country in Abyssinia.

This Gaetano Esposito, although registered as a "bracciante," or day laborer, 45 years of age, has a greater criminal record against him with less convictions than any other prisoner in the cage—save possibly Gennaro de Marinis. But his crimes are of a much lower order and reveal criminal insanity rather than a consistent yet archaic protest against modern society.

He, together with Bartolozzi, Minichiello, and half a dozen others were among the first to be arrested in the campaign of the Carabinieri in the late Winter of 1907.

It was on the night of Feb. 25, at the Caffé Massa, and while Don Ciro Vitozzi and Giacomo Ascrittore were doing their best to have Tommaso de Angelis and Gaetano Amedeo apprehended in order, it is alleged, to shield the real murderers. Indeed, only twelve days before Ascrittore had written to Carmarino, the Questore of Police at Bari, bidding him make haste against de Angelis and adding:

"After a long investigation nothing has resulted—just as nothing is expected to result from the work done by the Carabinieri.

"A fortnight later Ascrittore thought differently, for over 100 arrests had in the meantime been made by these same Carabinieri. Even then the public did not know that the 'result' had been achieved by the careful prodigious investigation of a pseudo-law clerk and a pseudo-Camorrista, who were in real life respectively Maresciallo Farris, Capt. Labroni, and Maresciallo Capizzuti of the Reale Carabinieri.

Evidently Erminio Capizzuti himself arranged the arrest of Gaetano Esposito and the others at the Caffé Massa, although he took no active part in the affair. His report, as usual, is to the point. He states simply that he was at the restaurant "vestito in abiti borghesi" (citizen's dress) when at "precisely 9 o'clock P. M." Carabinieri of the Capodichino Station entered and arrested the Camorristi, whose names he gives—"after which I went home, having first made two copies of my report, one of which I dispatched to the Procurature del Re of Naples and the other to the head of the Carabinieri also at Naples."

It is these annoying constant duplicate reports which have prevented the Camorra in its present plight from receiving the customary aid from the judiciary and police of Naples.

ACCIDENT TO PARSEVAL VI.

Voyage with Ten Persons from Berlin to Amsterdam Has Unlucky End.

BERLIN, April 21.—The dirigible balloon Parseval VI. ascended at 4:30 o'clock this morning, carrying ten persons, including two officers of the Dutch Army, who planned to make a flight to Amsterdam without a previous landing. The airship passed over Oebisfelde, Saxony, at 10:10 o'clock, going at the rate of thirty-four miles an hour, despite somewhat violent wind currents.

Ten miles north of Brunswick, however, the balloon met with a mishap and was forced to make a rough landing. The passengers escaped injury and the airship was not seriously damaged, though it lies partly in a swamp and will of necessity be dismantled and sent to Bitterfield by train.

Between Isenbuttel and Lieferde the airship was flying low when it encountered a gust of wind which compelled it to slow up. The free end of a rope caught in the branches of a birch tree and gave the balloon a shock which caused it to lose its equilibrium. This, together with the wind, rendered an immediate descent necessary.

On March 16 the Parseval VI. was badly damaged by collision with the balloon shed at Johannisthal. Following that accident the passenger trips out of Berlin were undertaken temporarily by the Parseval V. On April 2 the latter craft made a perilous descent at Halberstadt. Encountering a storm the crew was compelled to rip the envelope, and the dirigible came down in a state of collapse. No one was seriously injured.

AUSTRIAN KAISER AILING.

Return of Throat Trouble Causes Him to Suspend Audiences.

VIENNA, April 21.—Emperor Francis Joseph is again having trouble wth his throat. He gave a joint audience this morning to the Austrian and Hungarian Premiers, but later it was announced that his physicians had advised him to abandon further audiences for the present.

The indisposition is officially stated to be unimportant.

Emperor Francis Joseph celebrated his eightieth birthday on August 18 last. He has reigned since 1848.

Early in January his Majesty was indisposed, and there were persistent rumors in Vienna that he was suffering from laryngeal catarrh, accompanied by some fever. The illness was said to be similar to that which almost proved fatal three years ago. On Jan. 16 it was officially announced that the Emperor had completely recovered his health, and on the same evening he appeared at a court ball.

BRITISH COPYRIGHT BILL.

Proposed New Law Provides Imprisonment for Piracy Instead of Fine.

LONDON, April 21.—The Government's long-promised Copyright bill has passed its second reading in the House of Commons. The measure not only sets forth amendments based on the Copyright Convention of 1908, but codifies the common law on copyright and the existing statutes, numbering about twenty.

Copyright under the amended law would run as a general rule during the life of the author and fifty years after. Foreign authors may acquire copyright by making first publication within the British Dominions, but may be deprived of it by the Government if the country to which they belong refuses adequate protection to British authors.

Imprisonment is substituted for a fine as punishment for piracy, and there is a clause giving authors protection against dramatic performances of any copyrighted work from pirated copies.

Photographs, gramophone records, and perforated music rolls are to have copyright, the terms being for fifty years from the time the negative or plate is made.

JAPANESE PROMOTIONS.

Action of Mikado Said to Indicate Approval of Katsura's Policies.

TOKIO, April 21.—The advances in the peerage of Premier Katsura and others in connection with the annexation of Korea is generally approved by the press.

A change in the Cabinet is predicted in some quarters, but this is not likely to occur prior to the conclusion of the pending treaties.

The creation of Katsura as a Prince indicates the approval and continuance of his policies. Lieut. Gen. Viscount Teraushi, who has become a Count, is determined to improve conditions in Korea in the interests of Koreans, and this plan, as well as the policy advocated by Foreign Minister Komura, who was made a Marquis, of developing trade and industry through peaceful intercourse with China and other countries, appears thus to be approved by the Throne and indorsed by the Elder Statesmen.

LONDON WANTS ARBITRATION.

Chamber of Commerce Votes to Co-operate with New York Body.

LONDON, April 21.—The Council of the London Chamber of Commerce to-night passed a resolution to accede to the request of the New York Chamber of Commerce to co-operate with it to bring about a treaty of arbitration between Great Britain and the United States, as proposed by President Taft.

Czar Honors Washington Ambassador.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 21.—Emperor Nicholas has conferred the Alexander Nevsky order upon Baron Rosen, the Russian Ambassador to the United States.

Gen. Urell's Body on the Baltic.

CORK, Ireland, April 21.—The body of Gen. Michael Emmet Urell, former commander of the Second Regiment of the District of Columbia National Guard, buried at Nenagh last September, was exhumed to-day and will be taken for burial to the United States in the steamer Baltic, sailing to-morrow.

To Hear Schermerhorn Suit in Secret.

Testimony in a suit brought by Josephine V. Schermerhorn against Nathaniel E. Schermerhorn will be heard in secret before Elihu B. Frost, a referee appointed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Blanchard. This arrangement was made by the attorneys for both parties.

Special Ward for Locomotor Ataxia.

Mrs. Adolph Scheftel has given $10,000 to the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids to endow a ward for the treatment of patients suffering from locomotor ataxia. This is given in memory of Adolph Scheftel, who suffered from this disease for thirty-five years before his death.

FIREWORKS IN ROME SET FIRE TO WOODS

Alarming Spectacle from Top of Mount Mario Follows a Brilliant Celebration.

NEW FAIR SECTION OPENED

Royalties, Ambassadors, Eminent Statesmen and a Great Crowd Present at the Ceremony.

ROME, April 21.—Celebration of the opening of the ethnographic section of the Jubilee Exposition ended to-night with an illumination and a pyrotechnic display from the top of Monte Mario. Thousands witnessed the spectacle. Suddenly flames and smoke were seen through the trees on the crest of the mountain. The people believed at first that this was a part of the fireworks, but as the flames began to spread it was seen that a rocket had set fire to the woods.

Inhabitants of the near-by villas made their escape from their domiciles in alarm, while from all quarters of the town firemen and troops rushed to the spot in an endeavor to limit the conflagration. Their work is expected to continue throughout the night.

At present it is not believed that any fatalities have been caused by the fire.

The ethnographic section, another feature of the Jubilee Exposition, was inaugurated to-day by the King and Queen, Prince Arthur of Connaught, foreign Commissioners, the Diplomatic Corps, the Cabinet, Senators, Deputies, Knights of the Order of the Annunziata, and local authorities. The day was well chosen, for it is popularly celebrated as the "birthday of Rome," though, according to Varro, the foundation of the Eternal City was laid on April 20 ,753 B. C., or the fourth year of the sixth Olympiad.

The ethnographic section occupies the ancient military parade grounds at the foot of Monte Mario along the Tiber, close to St. Peter's. A new bridge over the river joins it with the international section of fine arts in the Vigna Cartone. Interesting and artistic structures are grouped together, representing different regions and times, all furnished appropriately and with attendants in the dress of each locality and period portrayed.

Notwithstanding the presence of the royalties the inauguration had a popular character, as all the associations were invited and crowded the place, applauding enthusiastically the King, Rome, and Italy. Several speeches were made. The King and the royal party left the scene to the strains of the Italian March, amid great cheering.

SOUTH'S 'SUNDAY LADY' HERE

She Is Miss Martha Berry, Who Helps Poor Boys—Roosevelt to Speak.

Miss Martha Berry, who is known throughout the mountain country of Georgia as "The Sunday Lady of Possum Trot," is due here to-day to arrange for next Tuesday's meeting of the Berry School Association at the Hotel Astor. At this meeting ex-President Roosevelt will tell of the work being carried on at this institution.

Miss Berry is a Southerner herself, and familiar enough with backwoods conditions to be in material sympathy with the boys and girls who haven't the advantages that most youngsters possess. Nine years ago she gathered a few of the one-suspender boys into a little log cabin on her estate and told them a few things that made them want to hear more. On the following Sunday she talked to a larger audience, and pretty soon the little cabin wasn't big enough for a meeting place. So Miss Berry gave a house and got two teachers to help her, and they set out systematically to spread industrial education.

In 1902 there were five students and two teachers. Now there are 200 students and 25 teachers. The school property has increased in value from $5,000 to $200,000.

Mr. Roosevelt, who has given much time and attention to the Berry School, will tell about it on Tuesday evening at the Astor. He says he believes in the school because "it was initiated and is being carried on in a spirit which combines to an extraordinary degree adherence to a very lofty ideal with the most practical common-sense in realizing it."

These Suits are of worsteds and exceedingly smart imported fabrics. A 24-inch coat with sailor collar and long revers to waist line, finished with a big button and with extra collar and cuffs of moire silk in harmonizing shades; also a white pique piping. # "An Inspiration of Genius"

THE NEW INDIA PAPER

Flexible Binding Format

of the

Encyclopaedia Britannica

(11th Edition)

THE new Encyclopaedia Britannica may be said to be the first concrete product directly traceable to the concerted constructive thought of men of many nations.

The completion of the new Eleventh Edition is the successful accomplishment of an enterprise much more important and more difficult than the making of any number of books. The result of the most original undertaking to which human energy could be applied is presented to the public in the form of a library of reference containing 29 volumes and 29,000 pages; but the mere writing and printing of these 41,000,000 words was only a part of the huge task.

The whole field of human knowledge has been freshly examined and reconsidered. The 1,500 contributors who wrote the 40,000 articles are among the leaders, British and American, French and German, of the world's thought and activity. Other authorities of equal distinction, by the advice and assistance they gave to the editors in planning and executing the work, joined in the unanimous impulse which has made it possible thus to survey, to test, and to present in convenient form the essential results of research and of productive activity in every country and in every form of endeavour. No merely commercial enterprise could have mobilized all these energies.

The power of money was not the factor that rendered it possible to make the Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica as new, as comprehensive, and as authoritative a work as it is.

Some more vital impulse generated this vast achievement. The influences that were concentrated in order that the results might be fresh and original, that the material in existing books need not be accepted as sufficient, were not and could not have been of recent creation; long accumulated forces were at work. The power lay in the name of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, which is more than the name of a book.

Its history, when we consider the educative influence of its successive editions during the past 140 years, is in some respects not unlike that of a great university. The generations of writers who built its fame submerged their individuality as completely as did the scholars whose labours established and maintained the ancient seats of learning. Not one among a thousand readers knows that Sir Walter Scott and Lord Macaulay and Robert Louis Stevenson were among the contributors of the past. Its function, like that of a university, has been not only to diffuse knowledge, but to add to the store from which it drew. Those who were called upon to teach through its agency were forced to reconsider, to collate and thus to enlarge the results of their investigations before they recorded them for the benefit of their readers.

Like a university, the Encyclopaedia Britannica has not only imparted information, but has given to those who learned from it a point of view that made their own observations and experience in after life of signal use to them. Its relation to those who learn is less close than that of a university, but it finds a swifter and more widespread distribution of its teachings.

Again, in the same way that a university enlarges its field by training men to investigate and to teach, so the Encyclopaedia Britannica has been the fountain head of innumerable books. No work is so constantly in demand in the great libraries that are the beehives of writers, none is so largely drawn upon by journalists.

Just as the men who give their lives to university work must arouse and stimulate the interest of the novice, so the contributors to the Encyclopaedia Britannica must bring home to the general reader the fascination and the practical utility of every branch of investigation.

Another similarity explains the enthusiasm with which distinguished men of many callings responded when they were summoned to co-operate in the making of the Eleventh Edition.

Like a university, the Encyclopaedia Britannica is rich in the gratitude of those to whose intellectual nurture, to whose practical efficiency it has contributed. Those who have taken part in the great task just completed may well have felt that they owed the Encyclopaedia Britannica some service in recognition of the help it had given them in the past.

The originality and freshness of the new work is in truth the fruit of 140 years of growth.

A Volume of the New Encyclopaedia Britannica on India paper may be bent back cover to cover and held easily in one hand, although it contains 1000 pages.

The Interesting Story of India Paper

INDIA paper is the name given to a very thin and light but tough and opaque kind of paper used for making books of which it is desirable to reduce the bulk and weight to a minimum without impairing durability or affecting the legibility of the type. The name was originally given in England, about the middle of the 18th century, to a soft absorbent paper imported from China, where it was made by hand. The name probably originated in the prevailing tendency of those times to describe as "Indian" anything that came from the Far East (as, for example, Indian ink). This so-called India paper was used for printing the earliest and finest impressions of engravings, hence known as "India proofs."

How It First Came From the Far East

The name of India paper is now chiefly associated with European (especially British) machine made, thin, opaque printing papers used in the highest class of book-printing. In 1841 an Oxford graduate brought to England from the Far East a small quantity of extremely thin paper, which was manifestly tougher and more opaque, for its weight, than any paper then made in Europe. He presented it to the Oxford University Press, which, in 1842, used it for 24 copies of the smallest Bible then in existence—diamond 24mo. These books were scarcely a third of the usual thickness and were regarded with great interest; one was presented to Queen Victoria and the rest to other eminent persons.

Re-invented in England

In 1874 a copy of the India paper Bible fell into the hands of Henry Frowde, and experiments were instituted at the Oxford University paper-mills at Wolvercote with the object of producing similar paper. In 1875 an impression of the Bible, similar in all respects to that of 1842, was placed on sale by the Oxford University Press. This feat of compression was regarded as astounding, the demand was enormous, and since then hundreds of thousands of these India paper Bibles have been printed by the Press both at Oxford and Cambridge.

Tests at the Paris Exposition

The marvels of compression achieved by the use of India paper created great interest at the Paris Exposition in 1900. Its strength was as remarkable as its lightness; volumes of 1,500 pages were suspended for several months by a single leaf, as thin as tissue, and when they were examined at the close of the Exposition it was found that the leaf had not started, the paper had not stretched and the volume closed as well as ever. The paper, when subjected to severe rubbing, instead of breaking into holes, like ordinary printing paper, assumed a texture like that of chamois leather and a strip 3 in. wide was found to support a weight of 28 lbs. without yielding.

Materials and Production

The material used in the manufacture of India paper is chiefly rag, with entire freedom from mechanical wood pulp. The remarkable opacity of modern India paper is mainly due to the admixture of a large proportion of mineral matter which is retained by the fibres.

There is no India paper produced in the United States. In the whole world there are only nine mills that manufacture it—two in England, two in Germany, two in Italy, one in France, one in Holland and one in Belgium.

Adoption by the Encyclopaedia Britannica

The adoption by the Cambridge University Press of India paper (with flexible bindings) for such a huge and profusely illustrated work as the New Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica marked a veritable revolution in the making of large books. The innovation, of course, was not decided upon until thoroughly convincing tests had been made of its complete practicability. The public of the English-speaking world has been quick to see the advantages of the new format. Eighty-nine per cent. of the 20,000 orders so far received in this country and in England for the new 11th Edition have been for sets on India paper, and subscribers have shown the greatest satisfaction and enthusiasm over the light, thin, beautiful volumes of the India paper edition. These volumes, though they each contain about 1,000 pages, are only 1 inch thick. The whole set of 29 volumes occupies only 30 inches of shelf space, whereas the edition on ordinary book-paper requires nearly seven feet.

Far-Reaching Effect of the Innovation

It is the confident belief of the Syndics of the Press of the University of Cambridge (England) that the new Britannica, in the light, flexible, easily handled India paper format, will not only be referred to more often than was its cumbrous predecessor, but that it will henceforth be read and studied with far greater ease and comfort and, therefore, much more intimately and profitably.

NEW ELEVENTH EDITION

A completely new work, founded on a fresh survey of the world in every department of knowledge at the end of 1910.

28 quarto volumes (12 inches by 9 inches) of text, each containing 960 to 1,060 pages; and an index volume containing 500,000 references.

40,000 articles aggregating 41,000,000 words; 7,000 text illustrations; 459 full page plates; 569 maps.

The production of the work cost $1,150,000 before a single volume was printed.

The 1,500 contributors include the great scholars, leading authorities and the best practical experts in all civilized countries.

The employment of India paper reduces to one-third the weight and bulk of the volumes, and makes the work one to read, not merely to refer to.

A Letter from the Former Pastor of The Fifth Avenue Baptist Church

"It is a joy to see and feel and handle the New Encyclopaedia Britannica. The change from the ponderous forbidding volumes of the past to this charming India paper issue represents nothing less than an inspiration of genius. The Britannica was a work of reference—now it is a book which one takes down for the pure pleasure of reading it."

REV. CHARLES F. AKED, D.D.

Former Pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church

THE New Encyclopaedia Britannica is sold at A LOW PRICE for cash in full or upon such easy terms of payment as bring it WITHIN THE REACH OF EVERY READER.

The issue of the new Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica has been received as an event of international importance, a triumph of organized scholarship for the benefit of the whole English-speaking world.

The leading authorities and specialists in every department of knowledge and activity, and from all parts of the world, have here collaborated in the production, not of some wonderful monument of learning for the use only of their brother scholars, but of a book which appeals to the whole body of readers without distinction of class or occupation or interests.

Their efforts were given to the production of a "complete circle of instruction" (for this is what the word "encyclopaedia" implies), a work of which the value in these days is so evident as fairly to entitle it to be called a necessity.

Wide interests, the desire for information, the belief that knowledge tells, and tells in the most practical fashion, are features of our time—features reflected in its most characteristic product, the daily newspaper. In the pages of his newspaper the reader's interest is claimed for every conceivable topic, and his instinct is to refuse interest to none.

Thus, in the Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica there appears, as one reviewer phrased it, "the right thing at the right time." And it appears, he added, "in the right way." While the cost of producing a new edition, which contains fully twice as much information, has inevitably risen to more than double that of the edition of a generation ago, it is sold at a rate which is little more than half, and may be paid for in such instalments as bring it within the reach of all.

That the new Encyclopaedia Britannica should be cheap and easy to buy may be described, then, as a feature no less essential than the thorough preparation of its contents.

It is to be remarked, however, that its present cheapness is temporary, and any reader of THE NEW YORK TIMES, who is acquainted with the work only through report, should at once apply for the prospectus. He will thus obtain interesting material from which to form his own judgment of a most interesting book, as well as an order form showing the present prices and terms upon which it may be acquired.

Minimum Prices Until May 31st

Up to and including May 31st next (when the advance-of-publication prices must be withdrawn) applications will be accepted at the rate of $4.00 (India Paper $4.25) a volume (cloth) instead of $7.50, which will be the ultimate price of the new edition in its cheapest form, as it was the original price at which the volumes of the 9th edition were sold.

The work, in 28 volumes and Index, is in two forms:—

(1) On INDIA PAPER (very light and opaque) in Three Styles of Binding: CLOTH, FULL FLEXIBLE SHEEPSKIN, and FULL FLEXIBLE MOROCCO, the volumes each ONE INCH THICK (about 960 to 1,060 pages).

The India paper impression bound in either Full Sheep or Full Morocco is strongly recommended.

(2) On ordinary book-paper in Three Styles of Binding: CLOTH, HALF MOROCCO, and FULL MOROCCO, the volumes each 2¾ inches thick (about 960 to 1,060 pages).

Illustrated Prospectus (40 pages), 56 specimen pages on India paper, 4 specimen plates and form of application showing the special advance terms, will be sent upon receipt of request.

PROGRESSIVES LOSE COMMITTEES FIGHT

Regular Senators Turn Down Their Request to Make Their Own Appointments.

LONG SERVICE THE ISSUE

Progressives Want Best Places Irrespective of Members' Seniority—Talk of a Compromise.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The deadlock between the insurgents and regulars over committee assignments in the Senate resulted in the defeat of the progressive Republicans this morning at a meeting of the Committee on Committees. Senator La Follette, carrying out the plan of the progressives, introduced a resolution to the effect that the four insurgent members of the committee be authorized to propose the names of the progressive representation on all the committees and that these proposals be accepted by the full committee.

By a strictly factional vote of 7 to 4 the resolution was lost, the full committee retaining the right to vote individually upon committee applications. The Senators voting for the resolution were La Follette, Bourne, Cummins, and Bristow. Against it were Gallinger, Lodge, Penrose, Heyburn, Warren, Smoot, and Bradley.

It had been expected that such a vote in committee might cause the progressives to withdraw, but Senator Bristow of Kansas, one of the most radical of the insurgents, at once moved that the work of voting on the committee membership be taken up alphabetically, beginning with the Committee on Agriculture. Chairman Gallinger announced that the committee was not prepared for the detailed voting yet, and a recess was consequently taken until to-morrow.

The insurgents still insist that they will hold out for their right to nominate their own men, and they deny that in so doing they are putting themselves outside the ranks of their party organization. They say, furthermore, that the agreement on which they went into the caucus provided for their right to appoint their own men to one-fourth, approximately, of the majority committee posts. When the voting begins by committees, however, it will remain to be seen whether the insurgent nominations will be accepted en bloc, as demanded, or whether they will be shifted around, following the course usual heretofore even to the tanchest regulars.

The old guard charges that the insurgents, by insisting on their horizontal appointment to all committees as selected by themselves, put themselves as much outside their party as are the Democrats, who control the minority places allotted them. The regulars also point out that the minority has been satisfied with less than a ratio of four to five—their ratio on the floor of the Senate—while the insurgents declare that the minority places are aside from the question.

The real objection of the old guard seems to be to the elevation of the new Senators to committee posts usually assigned to older men. The insurgents retort that they are observing the rights of seniority among themselves, but that as a faction they will not deprive themselves of representation by a man of "our ideas" simply because he has not been in the Senate for twenty years.

The fight in committee will be renewed to-morrow morning. The chances are that the regulars will accept most of the insurgent nominations, and the hope is that a compromise will be reached on this basis.

BIG CLAIM HANGS ON A WORD.

Title to Utah Saline Lands Depends on Meaning of "Including."

WASHINGTON, April 21.—On the meaning to be given by the Supreme Court of the United States to the word "including" depends the title to practically all the immense tracts of saline land in Utah. The court set aside a part of to-day to hear arguments on the meaning of the word.

The word was used in the enabling act under which Utah was admitted to the Union. First, two townships were granted to the State for the establishment of the University of Utah. Then followed a provision reading:

> That in addition to the above 110,000 acres of land, to be selected and located as provided in the foregoing section of this act and including all saline lands in said State, are hereby granted to said State for the use of said university.

Utah now claims the saline lands on the theory that they were granted to it in addition to the 110,000 acres.

PUSH TURKISH CONCESSION.

Government Renews Efforts to Aid American Railway in Asia Minor.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The delay of the Turkish Government in bringing negotiations for an American railway concession in Asia Minor to a conclusion caused the State Department to-day to instruct the Embassy at Constantinople to make another effort to have the matter expedited. The subject also was considered at a conference here to-day between Assistant Secretary of State Wilson and the Turkish Ambassador.

Officials of the State Department are sanguine of the ultimate success of the negotiations, but declare they are unable to understand the tardiness with which the matter is proceeding, in view of the fact that every objection which has been raised against the concession has been satisfactorily answered by the contractors.

Recent reports that Russia opposed the concession are denied.

FOR CIVIL SERVICE INQUIRY.

Congress to Decide Right of Federal Employes to Form Unions.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—An investigation of the civil service system has been ordered by the House Committee on Reform in the Civil Service.

It is the purpose of the committee to investigate particularly the questions of the rights of civil service employes to organize unions and to inquire into charges that the service has degenerated into an institution of favoritism.

Cabinet officers probably will be compelled to attend as witnesses.

Monument to Independence Signers.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A resolution appropriating $10,000 for plans for a monument in Washington to the signers of the Declaration of Independence has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Gallinger.

Taft May Address Christian Endeavors.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—President Taft to-day tentatively accepted an invitation to address the world's Christian Endeavor Convention at Atlantic City in July. The President's acceptance is contingent upon the adjournment of Congress. Thirty thousand delegates, he was told, will attend the convention.

De La Barra's Family Goes to Mexico.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Señora de la Barra, wife of the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs, and her children departed for Mexico City to-day, having been detained here by the illness of several of their children when the former Ambassador left to assume his new duties.

Destroyer's Tests Successful.

ROCKLAND, Me., April 21.—Two fuel and water consumption tests of four hours each, one at 20 knots and the other at 16, were made by the torpedo boat destroyer Walke to-day. In both tests she is said to have met all requirements.

HARMON BOOM NOW ON.

Strongest Man for the Presidency, Ohio Congressmen Decide.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The boom of Gov. Judson Harmon for the Democratic nomination for President in 1912 was formally launched this morning by the Ohio Democratic delegation in Congress. The meeting was held in Senator Pomerene's room and was attended by the sixteen Democratic Representatives from Ohio and Lieut. Gov. Nichols, and was presided over by Mr. Pomerene. Representative Buckley acted as Secretary.

The meeting was occupied mostly with informal reports on the sentiment of the various parts of the country. These reports, it was said afterward, were far more encouraging than was expected, and Mr. Pomerene expressed the opinion that Mr. Harmon was stronger than all the other Democratic candidates, Gov. Wilson being most seriously mentioned as Mr. Harmon's rival, while one member suggested that most attention must be paid to William Jennings Bryan.

In reply to the statements published that Mr. Harmon would prove a weak candidate because he had received a majority less than the total vote of the Democratic candidates for Congress, it was declared that he had actually received 30,000 more than this total. He had run, they said, on an average of 7,000 ahead of every Democrat on his ticket, and had received the greatest Democratic majority ever returned in Ohio.

Before adjourning the delegation authorized Senator Pomerene to appoint a committee to draft an address to the country and another committee on organization.

ASK WHY HILL RESIGNED.

House Resolution Calls Upon President for an Explanation.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—President Taft is requested in a resolution introduced in the House to-day to furnish to Congress an explanation of the resignation of David Jayne Hill as Ambassador to Germany.

The resolution is the joint effort of Representatives Lever of South Carolina and Brantley of Georgia, and is based upon reports that Dr. Hill in the potash controversy incurred the President's displeasure.

CRYING BABY WINS IN COURT.

Allowed to Stay and Cry While Accused Mother Testifies.

A crying baby held up proceedings in the Criminal Term of the United States Circuit Court yesterday, and finally won a decision that it was entitled to stay and cry as much as it pleased. The session was before Judge Hazel. The mother of the baby was Mrs. Elizabeth Friel, who was employed as an assistant at the Post Office at Atwood, Ulster County, N. Y., and is accused of stealing $1,400 of the funds of that office.

The case for the prosecution was brief, and when Mrs. Friel at the opening of evidence for the defense, took the stand to deny that she was guilty, she took the baby in her arms. Her direct testimony went smoothly enough, but when Mr. Crim began to cross-examine her the baby began to cry. He waited a few minutes for it to stop crying and began again. The baby cried more. After several questions, all objected to by the baby, Mr. Crim remarked to Judge Hazel that he was very fond of children, but would have to ask that this particular baby be taken from the courtroom until the examination of Mrs. Friel was concluded.

The court officers began to look at one another apprehensively, but Judge Hazel decreed that the child had a right to stay and cry and that Mr. Crim would have to put up with the interruptions. The case then proceeded. Mrs. Friel is said to have confessed the theft to Post Office Inspector James. The evidence was concluded and the case will go to the jury on Monday. Mrs. Friel is out on bail.

OLD HORSE'S REVOLT WRECKS JEWEL SHOP

Diamonds Worth $250,000 Are Strewn in Broadway by Its Heels.

POLICE DRIVE CROWD AWAY

Scramble for Precious Stones Is Forestalled and Clerks Gather Up the Gems and Broken Glass in Buckets.

A weather-beaten old yellow-white horse, dragging a delivery wagon of a Brooklyn sausage casemaker, objected when Traffic Policeman Daly held up a warning hand to stop north-bound traffic at Broadway and Maiden Lane yesterday morning. The driver, sixteen-year-old George Heitzman of 250 Hudson Street, brought the old horse to a sharp halt that pulled him rearing up on his hind legs. For the first time in its patient sausage-hauling serivtude, the old horse decided to revolt.

It's a far cry from hauling sausage cases to dealing in diamonds; but it was only a stone's toss from the street to the window of William Barthman, a jeweler, on the northeast corner. In the window sparkled diamond rings and pins and brooches worth $250,000 or $300,000, Barthman said. The horse didn't stop to calculate values, but with more agility than horse sense made a leap for the window.

The next moment, amid a clatter of shattered plate glass, he was sprawling inside the window, and a goodly part of the $250,000 worth of diamonds were scattered, rolling and glittering outside of it.

Diamonds don't rain upon Broadway every day, and it didn't take long to draw a crowd of several hundred persons. The horse, frightened by the shouts and the boy tugging on the lines, struck out with its hoofs, each blow scattering gold, platinum, and precious stones in every direction.

William Barthman, Jr., C. B. Seamon, his manager, and half a dozen clerks rushed out to remonstrate with the horse and shove back the crowd, arriving ahead of Policeman Daly and Policemen Moran and Roberts, whom Daly's whistle brought from Dey Street. The prompt arrival of the police forced the crowd back before any of the jewelry disappeared.

Col. Henry Bartman of the Forty-seventh Regiment, N. G., head of the firm, was in the store with Capt. Wyllie of the Ninth Coast Artillery and Lieut. John F. Friebele of the Twenty-second Engineers when the horse crashed into the window. The three officers rushed out, grabbed the horse by the bridle, and yanked it amid a shower of precious stones toward the street, but a shaft of the wagon smashed the next window, filled with trays of watches, before the animal was calmed.

Then the head of the firm, his clerks, and the reserves of the Old Slip Station, who came up with Capt. Hogan, gathered up in buckets, pails, and dustpans every glittering particle, including the broken glass. Everywhere lay mangled and battered gold rings with settings twisted or missing, while a gaping, dazed crowd of more than 1,000 men, women, and office boys looked on.

When his clerks had cleaned up the sidewalk and carried a dozen boxes of valuable sweepings to safety in the cellar William Barthman, Jr., said that only the prompt arrival of the police had saved his firm from a heavy loss. In the crowd that watched the clean-up of the diamonds the police recognized several crooks, but they slouched away when the eyes of the law rested on them.

The pavement in front of the shop was subjected to a cleaning such as it has not had since it was first laid. In every crevice glittered particles that might be glass or diamonds. Mr. Barthman said yesterday afternoon that he would not be able to tell for several days how much had been lost, as he would have to trace every stone and search every box of débris.

"It is fortunate that the accident didn't occur last week," he said, "for at that time we had a great cross of thirty-eight loose diamonds, worth $15,000, fixed to the inside of our window by nothing more than the natural adhesiveness of the stones to glass. We should probably have recovered little of that cross after the crash."

The damage to the window alone was about $300, but the loss in jewelry may reach thousands. The horse escaped with a few cuts about his flanks and hind legs, and the boy driver was not arrested.

MARRIED SECRETLY AT 82.

Friends of Thomas Griswold Celebrate the Event with a Band Serenade.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., April 21.—When news of the secret marriage of Thomas Griswold, who is lively and chipper at 82, and Mrs. Louise Robinson, 55, became known in Goshen yesterday, their friends engaged the Goshen brass band and last night appeared at the Griswold home, where they serenaded the couple with lively selections. Griswold and his bride finally responded, inviting the company inside, where festivities lasted till midnight.

The couple stole a march on friends Wednesday, when they were married by the Rev. E. H. Small at the bridegroom's home. The bride had acted as housekeeper for Mr. Griswold since January. Griswold is a retired farmer and prominent in church work.

POOR MAY LOSE BEQUEST.

Pennsylvania Mayor Accuses Politicians of Wrecking Building Concern.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Penn., April 21.—Samuel M. Hoyer, Mayor of Altoona, filed a bill in equity in the Blair County Court to-day against the officers and Directors of the Keystone State Building and Loan Association of Altoona, charging them with "having wrecked the institution by improvident management, loaning money on doubtful securities, and investing its funds in worthless corporations, in which they are personally interested." Mr. Hoyer alleges that "the association is insolvent," and asks the court to appoint a receiver to wind up its affairs.

The officers of the association, who are thus attacked, are James Foust, Pure Food Commissioner of Pennsylvania; James H. Craig, Deputy Secretary of Internal Affairs of the State; H. C. Barr, a former Mayor of Altoona; H. E. Ferguson, a former Prothonotary of Blair County; Hays W. Culp, solicitor for the County Poor Board, and George W. Harpsham, a former City Controller of Altoona.

Mayor Hoyer is the Trustee of the poor funds which were bequeathed to the city by William T. Marriott, a benevolent citizen. Under Mr. Marriott's will these funds were invested in the association, now alleged to be insolvent, and the interest thereof was to be used to support the deserving poor of the city.

FLOUTS MURPHY AS LEADER.

Thomas M. Osborne Says Tammany Man Is Responsible for Insurgency.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., April 21.—Speaking on conservation at the annual banquet of the Watertown Chamber of Commerce last night, Thomas M. Osborne severely arraigned Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany Hall leader, as the cause of insurgency.

"We must have honest, sincere politics," said Mr. Osborne. "We need more partisanship rather than less. There has been too much Charles F. Murphy in the Democratic Party. We all know that Charles F. Murphy is a man of no business. I refuse to follow any leader who does not lead, who has no idea of citizenship. That is the reason for insurgency.

"I hope to find the Democrats of Jefferson lined up with Cayuga against a leadership that is not intelligent, but which is based purely on commercialism. I want to see an unending fight against such influences, and to bring about politics that are sincere and under which conservation can be wisely carried on."

SAYS LIFE EXISTS ON THE PLANETS

Prof. See Also Thinks the Craters on the Moon Are Dents Caused by Collisions.

TELLS OF MOON'S ORIGIN

See's Theory Is That Planets Have Grown by Gathering Up Stray Meteorites and Satellites.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—Discoveries in cosmical evolution leading to the development of the science of cosmogony, were announced to-day to the American Philosophical Society at its annual meeting by Prof. T. J. J. See, Government astronomer in charge of the Naval Observatory at Mare Island, California, who said he had traveled 3,000 miles to give Eastern men of science a first-hand account of his recent discoveries, which, he said, had aroused interest in learned circles throughout the world.

Prof. See was formerly in charge of the large telescope of the Naval Observatory in Washington, and while there is said to have made the most refined measures of the planets and satellites yet accomplished, but for the past seven years he has been in California studying the cause of earthquakes and mountain formation, besides making discoveries in cosmogony.

Among the results announced to-day was a link in the chain of reasoning establishing the laws of the evolution of the solar system, showing that the planets originally were small bodies forming at a great distance from the sun, and that their masses have been increased by gathernig up all manner of lesser bodies, from meteorites to satellites. Collisions in this nebular resisting medium have reduced the size of the original orbits immensely and made them such exact circles that the Greek philosophers believed the Deity had set the planets revolving in round orbits because the circle is a perfect figure.

These collisions, which have rounded the planetary orbits and brought the satellites nearer their several planets, have also indented the face of the moon and given rise to large craters, which were formerly believed to be volcanic but are now proved to be due to the impact of stellites against the lunar surface. Prof. See cited the investigations of Prof. Lehman-Filnes of the University of Berlin and of Prof. Stromgren of the Royal Observatory of Copenhagen as verifying his discoveries on the lunar craters, and said their truth was now established forever.

Prof. See outlined the process by which the planets had been built up out of matter once circulating in our nebula as comets, and said the destruction of the comets was still causing showers of cosmical dust to fall upon the planets, as witnessed in the celebrated star showers of 1799, 1833, and 1866. Our system was once literally filled with comets, and Kepler was right, he said, when he declared there were as many comets in the heavens as there were fish in the sea.

"And just as the planets had been captured and added to our sun from without," said Prof. See, "so also the satellites have been captured and added on to their several planets. Even our moon is a planet which came to us from the heavenly spaces, and was never thrown out of the Pacific Ocean, as was formerly taught by Lord Kelvin, Sir George Darwin, Poincare, and their followers.

Prof. See laid especial stress upon the proof now adduced that planetary systems similar to our own revolve about all the fixed stars and that these planets are habitable and inhabited like our planets which revolve about the sun. He said life was a perfectly general phenomenon in the universe and that living beings exist wherever a star twinkles in the depths of space.

SEES NO LIFE ON MARS.

Prof. Aitken Believes the So-Called Canals Are Earthquake Fissures.

BERKELEY, Cal., April 21.—Prof. Robert D. Aiken, one of the astronomers of Lick Observatory, does not believe that there is human or animal life on the planet Mars.

In a lecture delivered at the University of California last night he expressed the opinion that the markings seen on the surface of the planet and supposed by some scientists to be canals constructed by intelligent beings for irrigation purposes are nothing more than earthquake fissures. They are too rough and too wide for canals, he said. He exhibited photographs in support of his belief.

BUGHER AT CRIME INQUIRY.

Former Police Deputy Called to Tell of the Inspector O'Brien Case.

F. H. Bugher, former Deputy Police Commissioner, was a witness yesterday before the special Grand Jury which is investigating crime conditions in the city. Mr. Bugher was called to testify in regard to the case of Inspector John J. O'Brien, who was suspended for allowing Coney Island to remain "wide open" last Summer. The nature of Mr. Bugher's testimony was not disclosed. He refused to discuss the case.

Chief Inspector Schmittberger and Lieut. Lenser of the Seventh Precinct were also before the Grand Jury. They testified, it is said, in regard to the number of robberies and holdups in the city recently.

A dozen Police Captains and a number of detectives were also called, but they did not testify. They will appear again on Monday.

Harry Schwartz and James Stevens, who were arrested in a raid on an alleged gambling house in East 116th Street, were not in court when Judge Rosalsky ordered their trial to proceed and their bail bonds of $1,000 each were declared forfeited. Martin Engel furnished the bonds. Judge Rosalsky then set another gambling case for Monday.

John Jones pleaded guilty to maintaining a gambling house, and he was paroled in the custody of Mr. Flynn.

The thirteen prisoners taken in the raid on the Hesper Club Wednesday night were arraigned before Magistrate Barlow in the Essex Market Police Court yesterday. Eight of the men, who were charged with being common gamblers, were held in $1,000 bail each, and five charged with pool selling were held in $500 bail each for further examination.

MRS. PLATT TOLD FORTUNES.

Spirit Medium Has to Give Bond Not to Do So Again for a Year.

Mrs. Ida Platt of 1,309 Bedford Avenue was found guilty of fortune telling by Magistrate Dodd in the Flatbush Court yesterday and put under $100 bond to keep the peace for a year. The bond was furnished by her husband, William H. Platt, who is Secretary and Treasurer of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg Railroad.

In the trial Mrs. Platt asserted she was simply translating messages given to her by spirits, and was doing so with the authority of the Spiritualistic Church. The charge was made by Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, a police matron, who said she paid Mrs. Platt $1 for telling her fortune, and that most of what she said was untrue. Mrs. Platt accounted for the inaccuracy of her statements by the hostile attitude assumed by Mrs. Goodwin.

TRAPS A HIGHWAYMAN.

Victim Leads Him to Policeman, Who Is Also Held Up, but Gets His Man.

Two men, walking hurriedly, passed Policeman Porter, a probation man of the East 104th Street Station in Second Avenue, near Ninety-second Street, shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning, and one of them muttered:

"Grab this man. He's held me up."

Porter grabbed both men, and the one who had appealed for help explained that he was Benito Malero, a correspondent for a Spanish mercantile house, living at 179 East Seventy-seventh Street. He declared he had been held up by his companion at Fifth Avenue and Eightieth Street at the point of a gun, and, having handed over $3.80, all the money he had, agreed at the highwayman's insistence to get more from a friend at Second Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street. He had no such friend, said Malero, but had hoped to meet a policeman on the way. Porter was the first one he encountered.

Porter started toward the station house with the couple when the second man dragged back, jerked a revolver from his pocket, and, presenting it at Porter, exclaimed:

"Now, put your hands up and keep them there, or I'll blow your head off."

Porter, taken by surprise, did as he was told, and the highwayman backed away and around the corner. Porter then handed his night stick to Malero, telling him to rap for help, and, drawing his own revolver, started after the highwayman.

The man disappeared into an areaway near the corner, and the policeman plunged into the darkness after him. Instantly he collided with the man, and there started a struggle that continued for nearly ten minutes.

Porter did not want to shoot if he could help it, and having wrenched the man's revolver from his hand, the policeman used his own weapon as a club. He beat the man until at last he ceased struggling and fell unconscious. Three more policemen arrived then and the prisoner was taken to the station house. There he said he was Joseph B. Murphy of 107 Glenwood Street, East New York. According to the police, Malero's $3.80 was found in his pocket.

The police say that Murphy's real name is Monahan, and that in 1907 he was arrested with a man named Harry Lavelle for a hold-up. Lavelle got fifteen years in prison, the police say, but Monahan got off with a light sentence. According to the police Murphy had letters addressed to Joseph Monahan.

RUN OVER MAN, SPEED AWAY.

Three Women in an Auto Desert Their Victim—His Condition Serious.

After running over Frank Hughes of 323 East 119th Street in Hunt's Point Road yesterday occupants of a large touring car sped away, paying no attention to the injured man.

For several minutes Hughes lay in the road, and then he crawled two blocks to the Dicke estate, where he is employed. Dr. Grossman was called and took him to Lebanon Hospital, where he is said to be in a serious condition. Three women were in the car.

COL. WALTON DEAD; ONCE NOTED PLUNGER

Made and Lost Fortunes on the Race Tracks Here and in England.

FAILED IN HOTEL BUSINESS

Dropped Out of Public Notice Seven Years Ago—Believed in Fasting as a Cure for Disease.

Col. Francis Theodore Walton, famous two decades ago as "Plunger Walton," through his operations on the race tracks of this country and of England, died at his home, 622 West 114th Street, yesterday. Many of his former friends, who had not heard of him since he failed as lessee of the Grand Hotel in 1894 and soon afterward dropped out of active business affairs, had long thought him dead.

"Plunger Walton" obtained his other title of Colonel through service on the staff of Gov. Curtin, the war Governor of Pennsylvania, fifty years ago. Later he was a large holder of mining and railroad stocks, but lost his property at the time of the mine riots in Pennsylvania in 1877. It was then he took to the game of horse racing. In 1881 he went to England and startled bookmakers there by betting operations that netted him $100,000 in a day, or lost him a similar amount on a single race. In this one season, it is estimated, he took $500,000 from the British bookmakers by backing heavily the Keene and Lorillard colts, Foxhall and Iroquois.

He returned to this country and started in the hotel business, having charge of the St. James in this city until 1883. In that year he returned to England for another "killing," only it was the English bookmakers who did the killing this time. Walton never would tell how much he lost or in any way refer to the fact that he had lost. He confided his troubles to no one.

In 1888 he leased the Hotel Stockton at Cape May, N. J., and in 1893 the Grand Hotel in this city. On the first day of January following he made an assignment to his brother, Charles L. Walton, in favor of creditors. In 1897 he became proprietor of the Brighton Beach Hotel.

His next venture was in 1899 with the Hotel Victoria, for which he negotiated and closed a deal, ten days after he had filed a petition in bankruptcy saying that he owed $160,000 and had not a cent to pay his obligations. A creditor in Philadelphia, hearing of the leasing of the hotel at a big rental, haled Walton into court to explain why his own claim should not be paid. Walton testified that he had leased the Victoria from the estate of Paran Stevens for ten years at an annual rental of $45,000. He testified that he had paid $55,000 and deposited his own check for $60,000 with a trust company to the credit of the estate.

"Where did you get all this money?" asked counsel.

"Well, I won't tell the newspapers," the plunger replied. "I have assurances from two millionaires that they will see me through, and these men don't want every beggar in town running after them."

He kept the names secret from the public, the Judge ruling that only interested parties could see them. He also granted Walton a discharge in bankruptcy.

It was at this time that Walton took umbrage at the title of "Plunger."

"I want the papers to stop calling me 'Plunger,'" he said; "I have not been on the race track for fifteen years."

Col. Walton dropped out of active business several years ago. Since his retirement to his Harlem flat he had taken up fasting as a new hobby. Recently he told a friend that a doctor had advised him to fast as a cure for rheumatism, from which he had suffered for twenty-two years. For twenty-one days, he said, he did not eat a morsel of food, merely drinking a glass of water every hour. He fell off from 246 to 200 pounds while the fast lasted, he said, but never felt in the least hungry.

"I didn't feel really hungry for a year after I stopped fasting," he said, "and then I could have eaten a jackass. Fasting is the only remedy for all diseases. When you're sick you're practically in hell, aren't you?"

Col. Walton defined that never-to-be-courted warm place as follows:

"What is hell? Alcohol, tobacco, eating corpses of hens and cows and fish, hate, revenge, envy, malice, jealousy, gluttony, fear, thought, discontent, and unappreciation. Now, what is heaven? Good air, good water, eights hours' sleep, a heart full of divine love, hope, faith, charity, contentment, the simple life, and the golden rule. I'm out for perpetual happiness, perpetual health. I have four great assets—a clear brain, a clear conscience, a healthy body, and a heart full of divine love."

"How old are you?" he was once asked.

"I am as old as God," he replied.

DR. McCLELLAND TO RESIGN.

Work of the Memorial Presbyterian Church Not Active Enough.

The Rev. Dr. T. Calvin McClelland, pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian Church, Seventh Avenue and St. John's Place, Brooklyn, will resign at the April meeting of the Brooklyn Presbytery on Monday, the resignation to take effect June 25. Dr. McClelland has been moderator of the Presbytery, and for several years its stated clerk.

"When I came here," said Dr. McClelland yesterday, "it was with the belief and hope that I should minister to spiritual needs. I am convinced that for such ministry to be successful there are essential principles to be enforced. The Church must be ready to welcome to its worship all sorts and conditions of people; a Church must be a ministering body, not a passive company existing only to be ministered unto.

"The ministry of the church must be free to grow and must enjoy the liberty of prophesying; a minister must speak the truth, as God gives him to see the truth.

"It is a cause of deep regret to me that I have not been able to put these fundamental principles into such practice in my work here. I shall ask the Presbytery to release me from the pastoral charge to accept a call to service where I may spend my life to larger advantage in the kingdom of God."

GIRL IN PLAY SHOOTS HER BROTHER DEAD

DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS LOADED

Florence Bartine Says Harold Must Have Put Cartridges in the Pistol During Her Absence.

Seventeen-year-old Harold Bartine of 600 Kosciusko Street, Brooklyn, was shot and instantly killed yesterday by his sister Florence, 19 years old. The revolver was kept unloaded on the dining room sideboard, and the girl said she frequently pointed it in fun at her brother and told him she would shoot. She went marketing yesterday morning, and she told the police her brother must have loaded the revolver and forgotten to warn her.

On her return Miss Bartine said she found her brother, sister Mary, and Alice Campbell, who had been visiting the house for several weeks, seated in the dining room. Miss Bartine said she picked up the revolver, not knowing it was loaded, and, as she had done often, pressed it against her brother's right temple. A shot rang out, and the boy toppled to the floor.

The girl stood spell-bound by fright while her sister and Miss Campbell sank on their knees beside the boy. Their screams summoned neighbors, who called in Policeman Anderson of the Ralph Avenue Station. Dr. Jayne of Bushwick Hospital said the boy died instantly.

The shooting attracted a large crowd, and Florence, on the verge of collapse, was taken to the Ralph Avenue Police Station, where she insisted the shooting was purely accidental. In the Gates Avenue Court Magistrate O'Reilly heard her story and held her without bail, but he sent her to the District Attorney's office. She then went before Supreme Court Justice Blackmar, who paroled her in the care of Miss Anna Tietjen, probation officer of the Gates Avenue Court.

The girl with her sister Mary, 14 years old, and the dead boy lived with their widowed father William, a photographer in Manhattan. The boy was employed formerly in a dental office in Manhattan, and had saved several hundred dollars. He was to have gone next week to Colorado with two friends.

Florence Bartine was employed in a department store in Williamsburg, but on Thursday she told her father she would try to find another position. It was her intention to have gone to Manhattan for that purpose yesterday afternoon.

PICKPOCKET AT A FUNERAL.

Youth Arrested in Harlem Has Many Accusers, but Denies Their Charges.

A great crowd gathered at Fifth Avenue and 111th Street yesterday to view the funeral of David Cohen, President of the Uptown Talmud Association. Suddenly there was a commotion and somebody shouted "Thief!"

Several of the policemen on hand to handle the crowd fought their way into the centre of excitement, and finally reached a group of men who were belaboring a young man.

The policeman dragged this man out of the crowd and took him to the East 104th Street Station, where he said he was Abraham Tucker of 128 Allen Street. Several men followed him to the station to complain that their pockets had been picked. Tucker was held later by Magistrate O'Connor in the Harlem Court for examination to-day, despite his denial that he had robbed anybody.

GOLF RIVALS FOR LAKEWOOD FINALS

Travis and Herreshoff Win Their Matches in the Spring Tournament.

Those well-known rivals Walter J. Travis and Fred Herreshoff survived the match rounds in the Spring golf tournament at the Country Club of Lakewood yesterday, and, as they are on opposite sides of the draw, it is quite possible they will once again be found fighting it out in the decisive test. The other winners were Oswald Kirkby of Englewood and Arthur C. Camovito, a sixteen-year-old Lakewood boy. In the semi-final round this morning Travis will oppose Kirkby, while Camovito will take on the metropolitan champion.

One of the incidents of the day was the brilliant match play golf of Camovito at the expense of S. C. Mabon of Ardsley in the morning. The boy started with four straight fours, and everything went well until he got bunkered at the eighth and took nine. A seven at the next spoiled his outward score, so far as strokes went, the card reading 46. Coming back, however, Camovito had five threes out of the first six holes, and after five at the long sixteenth finished with two fours, so that the inward holes were negotiated in the remarkably low total of 32 strokes. This is as low as ever recorded at Lakewood for the second nine. Incidentally, it enabled him to defeat Mabon by 6 up and 5 to play.

Later in the day Camovito defeated P. S. P. Randolph, the schoolboy who distinguished himself the day before by making a hole in one. They had a hard match and Camovito won on the seventeenth green, when he had the good fortune to lay his opponent a stymie.

In the early hours Travis defeated W. D. Vanderpool of Morris County, the Secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association. Out in 40, Travis turned for home four up, and a few holes thereafter the match was his by a 5 and 3 margin. He played out the bye holes, getting a 74. After luncheon Travis disposed of C. N. Phillips of Allegheny in much the same manner as he did Vanderpool. The match terminated on the fifteenth green.

Herreshoff first defeated W. K. Gillett of Wykagyl by 3 up and 2 to play, and then tackled Percy Platt of Deal. Both electrified the gallery by their long drives. At the third hole Platt hit a ball that was easily 330 yards, while at the fourteenth Herreshoff carried into a trap 290 yards from the tee. After being three down at the turn, Platt cut the other's advantage to one at the seventeenth. Herreshoff, however, won the home hole in a par four. Both played brilliantly on the homeward journey, Platt getting the last nine holes in 33 and Herreshoff in a stroke more, so that the full cards read 76 to 78 in favor of the metropolitan title holder. The summary follows:

First Sixteen.—First Round—C. N. Phillips, Allegheny, beat W. Rice Hochster, Deal, 4 up and 3 to play; W. J. Travis, Garden City, beat W. D. Vanderpool, Morris County, 5 up and 3 to play; A. D. ## BLUE FOR FLANAGAN PAIR.

Madison Square Garden Horse Show Winners Also Victors at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, April 21.—To-day brought forth the finest showing both in the oval and stands at the horse show on Young's Pier since its opening. New York was the strongest contender again. Five thousand spectators cheered their favorites from the galleries and stands.

De Witt Flanagan's well-matched pair, Prince Charming and Ratiplan, which captured the blue ribbon at the Madison Square Garden show last Fall in the biggest tandem competition in years, upheld their reputation here. In a close brush with Snap Shot and Rifle, entered by Mrs. Edward McLean of Washington, the New Yorker triumphed. The same horses landed the "blue" in a three-cornered battle with Fatty Bates and Jim Selby, roan geldings shown by Mrs. Cecil Fitler of Riverton, and Beau Brummell and Beau Ideal, shown by Emil Seelig of New York, the pairs finishing in the order named.

The judges debated a half hour before awarding ribbons in the novice saddle horse class. Devisor, which has established a precedent for horses entered in shore shows by winning the blue ribbon in every event he has entered, was pitted against Babbles, a six-year-old brown gelding shown by Mrs. A. Browning Prentice of New York. Miss Carolyne Bryce of New York handled Babbles cleverly, but the Bellair Farm's entry was their ultimate choice, making his fourth blue in three days. Mrs. Fitler's Lady Sandy got the yellow ribbon, while the white was pinned on The Bachelor, a chestnut gelding, shown by Mrs. Ethel M. Percival of New York. This was Babbles's first appearance.

The feature of the midafternoon exhibition was an event exclusively for Arabian horses in saddle. Sharabi, a tiny gray stallion, ridden and owned by Lowell H. Brown of East Orange, N. J., landed the cup and blue ribbon over Artillery and Nadab, shown by Frank B. Barrett of New York. Jameel, another gray stallion, exhibited by Mrs. R. M. Jereissati, was awarded the red. Hadban en Zehe, ridden by Arthur H. Brown of New York, getting the yellow ribbon.

Mrs. Edward B. McLean's Indian Flower triumphed over Fairy Queen, entered by Myron H. Oppenheim of New York; Lady Debonair, shown by Mrs. James B. McKay of New York, and Zulal, exhibited by Miss Claire A. Knapp of New York, the awards going to the entries as named. The Elsinor Farm of New York got but one first, Cardiff, a gray gelding, getting the blue in the pony class. Gray Dawn of the same stable was second in the saddle horse class.

COLUMBIA SOPHS WIN.

Juniors Press the Winners Hard in the Inter-Class Games.

In the interclass games held at Columbia University yesterday afternoon the sophomores won the honors with a score of 41. The juniors were second, with 36 points. The senior class was last, with a score of 10, letting the freshmen beat them out by 6 points. The meet from the start was a nip and tuck affair between the sophomores and the juniors, and in almost all the events the first two men to finish at the front were members of one of these classes.

Had it not been for the fine work of Harry Babcock, Captain of the 'Varsity team, the juniors would not have figured anywhere near as well as they did. The sophomore class considered that they were working against Babcock, not the juniors. Babcock came out first in the 120-yard high hurdles, the broad jump, the high jump, and third in the hammer throw, netting his team altogether 16 points. Owing to the muddy condition of the pole vault pit, this event was called off, but if it is decided to hold it later and count the result in the final score of this meet, Babcock, together with N. Salsbury, also a junior, may be able to change the outcome of the meet.

SHEPPARD IN POOR FORM.

Great Runner Fails to Give Away Handicaps in St. Patrick's Games.

McCaddin Lyceum won the point trophy last night at the games of St. Patrick's Lyceum, held in the armory of the Seventy-first Regiment. Paulist, Eymard, and Ozanam teams each tallied five points. A good-sized crowd witnessed the sports, the chief event of which had as a contestant the great middle distance runner, Mel Sheppard.

In this race Sheppard was compelled to give away long starts, which he found it impossible to overcome. The ultimate winner, J. Rosenbaum of the Morris A. A., off 58 yards, led from end to end, and was fully 30 yards to the good of the scratch man when he finished. Sheppard ran ninth, and showed himself to be far from in good condition.

St. Bartholomew's Athletes Win.

St. Bartholomew's athletes defeated the Hudson Guild last night in a dual competition in the gymnasium of the former by the score of 31 points to 14. The home athletes proved the best in most all of the events on the programme, allowing their opponents only a small share of the points. The only event in which the visitors showed to advantage was in the twenty-yard dash, in which they secured two places, while the home team took first place in the high jump, the three standing jumps, and all three places in the potato race. The summaries:

Running High Jump.—D. Farry, St. Bartholomew's, and W. Quinn, St. Bartholomew's, tied for first place, with jumps of 5 feet 4 inches; J. Jonopolis, Hudson Guild, with a jump of 5 feet 3 inches, third. Jump-off to be decided later.

20-Yard Dash.—Won by H. Zutt, Hudson Guild; M. Meyers, Hudson Guild, second; D. Farry, St. Bartholomew's, third. Time—0:08 2-5.

Three Standing Jumps.—Won by G. Krug, St. Bartholomew's, distance 30 feet 4 inches; L. Jindrak, St. Bartholomew's, distance 29 feet, second; D. Farry, St. Bartholomew's, distance 28 feet 11 inches, third.

Sack Race, 60 Yards.—Won by R. Fitzgerald, St. Bartholomew's; B. Hart, St. Bartholomew's, second; H. McAvoy, St. Bartholomew's, third. Time—0:08 3-5.

Potato Race.—Won by L. Jindrak, St. Bartholomew's; S. Crino, St. Bartholomew's, second; G. Krug, St. Bartholomew's, third. Time—0:19 3-5.

Expert Feminine Driver Scores Over Thompson Entry—Squadron A Wins Jumping Class.

Society again turned out last night in the name of charity and lent its aid to the equestrian fête, which had its concluding classes judged at Durland's Academy. While the attendance was not as large as at the first night's session, it was conceded by Miss Rosalie O'Brien, one of the moving spirits of the function, that at least $7,000 would be turned over to the fund for which the exhibition was arranged.

One of the most attractive numbers on the programme of last night proved to be that for jumpers-military teams. Entrants were attracted from Squadron A, First Battery Field Artillery, and Essex Troop of Newark. The entries were sent over the course twice, four jumps each circuit, and at the finish of the event it was found that the mounts belonging to members of Squadron A were practically in a class by themselves, as they gathered in all of the ribbons.

Peter and Picket, ridden by Harrie T. Lindeberg and Herbert F. Schwarz, respectively, fenced in perfect form, the two animals going to the brush fences as one and racing at each succeeding jump as if they enjoyed it thoroughly. Joe and Black and White, with Alvan W. Perry and E. Emerson Newell up, caught the judges' eye for the red, while Whitney Kernochan and C. L. Vietor, and Alden S. Blodget and Francis J. Danforth accounted for the other ribbons.

A very pretty class was seen when the small division of the ponies under saddle were called out. Master Edward Gerken managed to have his entries run one, two, these being Violet and Donsy, the latter of which he himself rode. Miss Catherine S. Burton finished third, on Lulu, while Teddy, ridden by Miss Sophie M. Pond, got the white.

An added entry ran off with the blue ribbon in the class for saddle horses, which called out an attractive list of contestants. Carnation, the entry of Miss Pupin, was the best in the eye of the judge and took away the blue. B. Lambert Sackett's Carowitch II. was second, with the nomination of Miss Dorothy B. Ives—Lady Babbie—third, and Malaga, the entry of Joseph E. Davis, fourth.

A popular win was scored when Miss Marion Hollins, the accredited best feminine whip in the United States, carried off the first prize in the four-in-hand class with the entry of Joseph E. Davis. The coach was the Magnet and the four horses roans. Miss Hollins handled the ribbons like a master, and had Morris Howlett on the box with her. J. Campbell Thompson's bay four were placed second. Mr. Thompson's coach was the Faugh A Ballagh. Mrs. Albert DeCernea handled the ribbons over the Fiss, Doerr & Carroll four and secured the third prize.

In the polo pony class Robert J. Collier's added starters took down first and second ribbons. Cheyenne, the winner of the blue, was admirably handled by Capt. Bell, with the other pony put through his paces by W. S. Jones. They were ridden through the sticks and sent up and down the arena to determine their handiness and speed. They proved far and away the best of the outfit shown, the other placed ponies being Ta, ridden by David Dows, and Blue Peter, shown by W. S. McGuire. The summary:

Ponies Under 13 Hands.—Won by Violet, (Master Edward Gerken;) Donsy, (Master Edward Gerken,) second; Lulu, (Miss Catharian S. Burton,) third; Teddy, (Miss Sophie M. Pond,) fourth.

Pairs, Harness Horses, Shown to Appropriate Vehicles.—J. Campbell Thompson's, The Count and The Counsellor, first, same owners; his Majesty and His Excellency, second; Miss Frances W. Hawke's Pleasure and Pastime, third.

Saddle Horses.—Miss Pupin's, Carnation, first; B. Lambert Lockett's Carowitch II., second; Miss Dorothy B. Ives' Lady Battie, third; Joseph E. Davis' Malaga, fourth.

Jumpers; Military Teams.—Peter and Picket, ridden by Harrie T. Lindberg and Herbert F. Schwartz, Squadron A., first; Joe and Black, and White, ridden by Alvah W. Perry and E. Emerson Newell, Squadron A., second; San Marcus and Ben Hur, ridden by Whitney Kernochan and C. L. Vietor, Squadron A., third; Justice and Bunny, Alden S. Blodget and Francis J. Danforth, Squadron A., fourth.

Four-in-Hands.—Joseph E. Davis' entry, driven by Miss Marion Hollins, first; J. Campbell Thompson's entry, driven by self, second; Fiss, Doerr, and Carroll's entry, driven by Mrs. A. De Cernea, third.

NOVEL CONTEST UNDER WAY.

Glenn H. Curtiss Will Race Aeroplane Against Brooklyn Motor Boats.

Negotiations are pending a race between Glenn H. Curtiss, in an aeroplane, and several of the motor boats of the Brooklyn Yacht Club. This will serve as an introduction of the aeroplane in yachting as the machine of Mr. Curtiss arises from and alights on the water as easily as on land. The race will take place off the clubhouse at Bensonhurst.

At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the club yesterday, the resolution was unanimously approved to change the name to the National Yacht Club. Final action will be taken at the general meeting of the club May 1. The present colors of the club will be retained.

The club has made many additions to its clubhouse and will go into commission May 20 at noon. Ten entries have already been obtained for the motor boat race to Halifax. Commodore Soper has purchased the new Vincent III., a 50-foot power yacht, and will race her under her name, The Sim.

William Gardner, the well known designer, is now the official measurer of the club. Commodore Hearst has made the following appointments: William F. Higgins, Fleet Captain; Dr. John A. Voorhees, Fleet Surgeon; Rev. John A. Lane, Fleet Chaplain.

WHITE BEATS MULDAUR.

Amateur Billiardists Reach Finals in Tournament for Class B Title.

By defeating Mark Muldaur last night in the amateur class B championship billiard tournament, which is being held at Paul's Academy, 125th Street and Seventh Avenue, C. E. White qualifies for the final match this evening with G. G. Baxter.

Each of these players has gone through the tournament without a defeat, and each has five victories to his credit. Last night's game was witnessed by a large gallery, and White showed superior form all the way. In the ninth inning he made a run of 22, which was the result of a difficult massé shot on the lower rail, where he collected the balls and ran out the string, encountering many difficult situations.

White's high runs were 22, 22, and 20, and his average was 6.52. The match went 46 innings. Muldaur's high runs were 24, 25, and 18, and his average was 6. The score by innings:

White—1 7 1 0 1 2 7 1 20 22 14 9 0 9 4 6 0
3 22 5 13 14 2 1 19 12 4 3 0 2 16 9 0 6 8 8 3

M. C. D. Borden's New 165-Foot Twin-Screw Craft to Make 35 Miles an Hour.

The palatial yacht Sovereign, the latest addition to the fleet of the New York Yacht Club and the property of M. C. D. Borden, one of the oldest members of the club, was launched yesterday at the yards of the Charles L. Seabury Company, at Morris Heights, on the Harlem River.

The yacht is built from special designs of Charles L. Seabury of the Gas Engine and Power Company and Charles L. Seabury & Co., and has a guaranteed speed of thirty-five miles per hour, and the makers expect that she will attain even greater speed if put to the test. If this prove successful, the Sovereign will be the fastest craft of its type now afloat, and the achievement will make a new high-water mark in naval architecture and marine engineering.

Mr. Borden is well known in yachting circles, as his other yachts, the Little Sovereign and Vedette, have made him a conspicuous figure in high-speed steam yachting.

The christening party, consisting of M. C. D. Borden, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Borden, and H. S. Borden, and a large party, was on hand fully an hour before the time set for the ceremony, and, with Charles L. Seabury, made a thorough inspection of the craft as she stood on the ways, ready for the word to be released. At 3 o'clock the boat began to slide slowly from her resting place, and when about a foot from the water's edge Mrs. V. H. Borden, with a bunch of American Beauty roses in one hand and a bottle of wine in the other, leaned forward over the platform on which the party stood, and, raising the bottle over her head, she smashed it upon the keel, proclaiming the yacht the Sovereign, amid the cheers of the crowd.

The yacht measures 165 feet over all and 158 feet water line, with a draught of 4 feet 6 inches, the beam measuring 16 feet. She is equipped with twin screws and four smokestacks, giving her the distinctiveness in this respect that no other small craft in this country possesses, and in other ways her appearance will attract much attention.

The keel is of Tobin bronze, while the stern is made of steel, with Tobin bronze bushings, and the stern post of steel plate. The frames are of galvanized steel, the floors of steel plate, and the garboard strake and bilge plating of Tobin bronze. The sheerstrake and side plating are of steel, as also are the keelsons, stringer plates, breast hook, deck beams, bulkheads, side stringers, butt straps, engine foundations, &c. The machinery will consist of two Seabury triple-expansion engines of the latest design, and the steam will be generated by two Seabury water-tube boilers.

The Sovereign will be fitted with steam steering apparatus, and will be handled from the bridge on the top of the forward deckhouse. This deckhouse will be of mahogany and will be used as a dining room. The afterdeck will be substantially the same as the forward house, and will be used as a social hall. The officers and crew's quarters and the galley are all forward, the latter being connected with the dining room by a dumbwaiter.

The owner's spacious stateroom is aft, and connects with a bathroom of liberal size. The guest's stateroom and the toilet room will be of comfortable and convenient dimensions, and the saloon below deck will be a model apartment. All the rooms in the yacht will be handsomely finished.

The yacht will be lighted with electricity. Light and ventilation throughout the vessel have been given special attention by the designer.

Boxing Show at Sharkey A. C.

The week-end boxing show of the Sharkey A. C. to-night promises to be one of the best ever given by the club. The programme has a variety of attractions for the members. The final number will be a ten-round bout between Young Tommy Murphy, who last week knocked out "Fighting Bob" and Knockout Eger of the west side. Joe Horton and Bill Powell will meet in the semi-final for six rounds. Jack Elliott, George Holiday, Young O'Brien, and Jack Powell will also appear in the boxing bouts. The wrestlers will be Young Muldoon and Frank Becker.

HARLEM RIVER REGATTA.

Memorial Day Event Will Be Held as Scheduled—Aid for Burnt-Out Clubs.

By an unanimous vote of the members of the Harlem River Rowing Association, it was decided at a special meeting of the association held last night, to hold the Decoration Day regatta just as originally planned. No postponement was for a moment considered by the meeting, and the four clubs who were so hard hit by the fire which razed their buildings to the ground are determined to make the best of circumstances and back the regatta just as far as it is possible.

Although the burnt out clubs were perfectly ready to further the Regatta Committee, there was some little doubt at first expressed as to whether these clubs would be able to make any entries. The Nassau, Harlem, Metropolitan, and Wyanoke Boat Clubs were the ones who had their buildings destroyed by the fire, and it was suggested that their representatives tell the meeting just what crews they had been planning to enter for the regatta prior to the fire, so that the delegates might know what boats and quarters these four clubs needed. An immediate response was made to this suggestion and arrangements made on the spot in many cases for the other clubs to lend their unfortunate neighbors suitable equipment.

The Metropolitan Club was the strongest for having the regatta held without any postponement, and when the other clubs offered to lend them boats and quarters, President Charles Bergen of the Metropolitans stated that they would enter an eight, a four, a four-oared gig, and a double. Capt. Nagel of the Harlem Rowing Club was not willing to state definitely just what boats might be entered, but upon assurance that new single shells could be obtained suitable to Fuessell and Sheppard, he said that probably these two well-known oarsmen would be entered.

Through the great financial loss incurred by the smaller clubs, the Wyanoke, President Kimmelberg announced, would in all probability disband and no attempt would be made to rebuild. No action was taken by the Nassau Club as to what entries, if any, would be made by the club in the regatta, but they were equally anxious to see the regatta held on May 30. A special meeting of their Directors was called at the same time as the other meeting, and plans discussed by them for securing the means to start rebuilding immediately. For this reason, they thought at first that they had no time to make any entries in the regatta, but they decided to reconsider the question when it was pointed out to them that they would be assured several good boats by the Union Club, the New York Athletic Club, and many other clubs along the Hudson.

Military Athletic Games To-night.

Three hundred athletes will strive for titles and prizes to-night at the Military Athletic League championships, which will be held in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. Among those who will compete are more than a score of world-famed champions. Fifteen events will be decided, and in every one of them a score of prominent athletes will compete. While all the contests promise to be keenly contested, the dashes, quarter-mile run, one-mile run, and relay race should prove most interesting. In the short races, at 70 yards and 220 yards, a trio of National title holders will oppose a big field. They are Jim Rosenberger, Jim Archer, and Billy Keating. Rosenberger says he will surely win the 220-yard dash, in which he will try for a new record. Besides these two races "Rosey" will run in the quarter-mile race and in the relay. The one-mile championship will bring together a big field, including Jim Sullivan, Abel Kiviat, and Frank Riley. For three weeks this trio has been training hard, with the result that each will be in his best condition when he toes the mark. With half a dozen champions on its team the Thirteenth Regiment is favorite for the meet. The Twenty-third, Seventy-first, Twenty-second, and Sixty-ninth have strong teams entered, and the trainer of each is confident his charges have a chance of carrying off stellar honors.

*Batted for Ford in the eighth inning.

Two-base hits—Wolter, Street. Sacrifice hits—Miller, Groom. Stolen base—Chase. Left on bases—Washington, 4; New York, 6. Struck out—By Groom, 8; by Ford, 1; by Warhop, 2. Bases on balls—Off Ford, 2; off Groom, 3. Wild pitch—Groom. Hits—Off Ford, 4 in eight innings; off Warhop, 0 in one inning. Umpires—Messrs. Connolly and Mullen. Time of game, one hour and forty minutes.

The American League baseball season was ushered in on the Hilltop yesterday when the Yankees, in command of the new leader, Hal Chase, and fresh from their triumph over the world champion Athletics, tumbled in defeat, in the face of a crowd of over 14,000, through the clever pitching of Bob Groom and the formidable catching of "Gabby" Street of the Washington Club. The score was 1 to 0, New York's crack pitcher, Russell Ford, being the victim of the opening-day defeat. It was the first time that Ford has been defeated by any American League club except Philadelphia and Detroit. He lost only six games out of thirty-two last season, the Athletics and the Tigers dividing these spoils between them.

For a moment in the first inning of yesterday's game Ford's greatest asset, his control, went back on him. His deceptive moist ball, which was the terror of the circuit last season, did not cut over the plate with the weird capers that Ford's strong right arm is capable of developing. His appearance in the box was greeted by the first two Washington batsmen with snappy, resounding safe hits. This unusual state of affairs seemed to make Ford a bit nervous, and when an easy grounder came to him on the next play he made a tempestuous throw to first base, high over Hal Chase's head, and became responsible for his own defeat. After that he settled down, and Washington was an easy prey in his hands. But the accuracy, control, and confidence came back too late. The game was lost.

The crowd wasn't as large as was expected. Threatening clouds early in the afternoon hid the sun and kept thousands away. Folks are afraid of fickle April. It is disastrous to Spring fashions. The Hilltop park, mounted high on the rocks, was in holiday dress. The grand stands were gaudy in bunting and flags, and strung across the roof of the stands were all the pennants that ambitious decorators could collect. The high board fence, which bars the gaze of the outside world and furnishes knotholes for little boys who have no financial standing, was lined along the top with hundreds of flags of nations, well known and unknown. American flags fluttered in the wind; so did the Irish flag and the German, the Union Jack and the tricolor of France. There were other flags there, too—strange-looking pennants, representing Zanzibar, Homoko, the Fiji Islands, East Houston Street, and way stations. The band played and the crowd whistled in harmony, and there's no denying everybody had a very, very nice time.

Huge Flower Basket for Chase.

Manager-Captain Harold Chase, the beginning and the end of first basemen, had the happiest day of his life. The crowd was cordial to him in his new job and was out to see him win. When Hal stepped up to the bat in the first inning a solemn quiet followed closely on the loud aplause. From one side of the field a floral caravan moved toward the plate. Six sturdy men of muscle bore a float, on which was mounted a huge basket of flowers, five feet high. Steadily and slowly the walking garden moved toward Chase. The game stopped. The Yankee leader looked around, and got the floral surprise of his career. The players all gathered around the posies and had their pictures taken, and the game went on.

Speaking of presents, the veteran Duke Farrell, the Yankees' battery coach, was presented with an umbrella and a cane by a New York friend.

The ball game itself wasn't one to stir up much enthusiasm. There was little batting, few hard fielding chances, no fireworks of any kind. It was a pitchers' battle between Ford and Groom, plain and simple. The Yankees got six scattered hits off Groom and the Nationals hit Ford safely only four times. Two of these were bunched in the first inning, and started the damage.

Street Cuts Down the Stealers.

There were two reasons for the Yankees' defeat. Groom was one and Charlie Street was the other. New York got men on the bases several times, but Street's throwing to bases was so deadly that four runners were cut down trying to steal. The only successful steal the Yankees got was made by Chase in a fast das[illegible] the ninth inning. New York see[illegible] to take unusually hazardous chances in trying to pilfer the bases, especially in view of Street's accurate volley of throws. The attempts were all costly and spoiled probable chances of victory.

There was little change in the make-up of the New York team. Roy Hartzell, the one-time St. Louis Brown, looks good at third base, and got one of the hits yesterday. He fielded cleanly, too. Otis Johnson at short stop did not connect when he swung hard and wide, but he scooped up a couple of grounders capably. Jack Knight played at second base as if he enjoyed it, and put in a busy afternoon with eight chances, all perfectly executed. Eight of the Yankee batters were struck out by Groom, and he passed three men. Ford gave two passes and struck out one batsman. Jack Warhop, who pitched the ninth inning, fanned two of the Washington players.

The blue sky had changed to a gunmetal gray when City Chamberlain Hyde tossed a new white ball to Umpire Connelly. Mr. Umpire, of course, muffed it and walked all over himself picking it up. He did, though—pick it up—and the game started. Milan was the first to face Ford. The first ball pitched was strike one. The second had no jump to it, and Milan sent it safely into centre field. "Germany" Schaefer drove the ball to an unoccupied spot in the same territory. It looked bad for Ford. Norman Elberfeld, once the "Tobasco Kid" of the Hilltop pasture, tapped an inoffensive grounder to Ford. The pitcher picked it up and threw it nervously over Chase's head. When any one makes a throw at Chase that he can't reach it's a pretty bad one. Milan ran home on the error, with the only run of the game. Schaefer and Elberfeld advanced a base on Cunningham's out, and Miller forced Schaefer off third, Ford to Sweeney. McBride ended the inning by raising a fly to Knight.

With two out in the second chapter of the first inning, Chase received his mammoth bouquet and delighted the populace by smacking a single to left. Hartzell drove a fast grounder toward third, which carromed off Elberfeld's boots. A wild pitch by Groom sent the runners along a base, and the crowd rose to its feet in expectancy of the Washington collapse. It didn't come, for Knight lifted a pop fly to McBride.

New York had a promising outlook in the fifth inning. Cree was passed, but died stealing second. Johnson, who had manifested an admirable talent for home runs in his minor league career, struck out. Sweeney walked and Ford singled to centre field. Wolter chopped at the ball and produced a bunt, but was thrown out at first on a close play.

Again, in the ninth inning, it looked as if New York might do something for the glory of the fair city; but, no, it was not to be. Hemphill grounded out. Chase bounded a grounder off McBride's knee and was safe. The Yankee leader defied the powerful arm of Street and made a spectacular steal to second. Hartzell lifted a high fly, which Milan caught, and Knight grounded to third, and Elberfeld touched Chase as he was en route for that station.

James McAleer of Washington was highly pleased with the day's work, and may send in Walter Johnson to-day to try and do the same thing again.

BOSTON, April 21.—Before State and city officials — Gov. Foss occupying a box and Mayor Fitzgerald throwing out the first ball—Boston won the first home game of the season to-day by defeating Philadelphia 13 to 4. Cicotte went the whole distance for the home team. Before play opened there was the customary parade to centre field and a flag-raising. The day was extremely chilly. The score:

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 21.—To the deep intonations of high power explosives and the mighty acclaim of 15,000 enthusiastic spectators, the Phillies opened their home season this afternoon by defeating New York 3 to 0. It was a delayed opening, but not an incident marred the occasion. There was noting monotonous or perfunctory connected with the ceremonies. The big crowd came in an expectant mood, was aroused to the point of ecstacy by a sensational exhibition, and departed with the climax of a brilliant victory ringing in its ears. Altogether it was the most auspicious opening enjoyed by the Philadelphia Club for years.

Few opening games in this city have been marked by such spectacular fielding and brilliant pitching on the part of the home team as was displayed by the Phillies to-day. While every man played perfect ball—it was an errorless game—the contest raised men to the highest pinnacle of temporary fame. Moore and Magee were the names on every spectator's lips. The big pitcher was a conquering host in himself. His curves were hypnotic; his speed terrific; his mastery supreme. The defensive and offensive work of the big outfielder was little short of marvelous. Magee was as fleet and sure in the field as Mercury; at the bat, as powerful as Titan. Twice he executed wonderful running one-handed catches. In the first inning he crashed the sphere into the centre field bleachers for the longest home run made on the grounds for years.

All traditions were transgressed for opening days. The parade of the two teams in company front from the home plate to the flag pole, the hoisting of "Old Glory", to the accompaniment of "The Star-Spangled Banner," the return march to the plate, the throwing of the first ball by a distinguished official, all these time-honored and remembered by the oldest devotee, were eliminated. The old was forgotten in the noise of the new. At 2 o'clock, while the crowd was pouring into the field, most of them were startled by the deep boom of an exploding rocket above their heads. This report was followed in rapid succession by others, resembling in their sequence the reports of mine blasting. These explosive rockets and cannon crackers were masked at regular spaces along the field from the east side of the grand stand to the clubhouse. While this harmless cannonade was at its height, the two teams ran across the field from the clubhouse in two distinct squads, while Supt. Payne proudly hauled to the top of the tall flag staff the Stars and Stripes.

Then the preliminary practice started. With the Phillies about to retire from the field in order that the Giants might take their practice, an automobile was run on the field from the west side entrance, and approached the home plate. In a second all practice had ceased and every eye was focused on the auto. Every one knew that it was there for presentation. The secret was soon out. Manager Dooin was the recipient. Surrounded by the players of the Philadelphia and New York clubs, the player-manager modestly accepted the gift from "friends and fans." The presentation and acceptance were brief but spirited. After Dooin had stood in the tonneau long enough to give the photographers a chance to snap the scene, he jumped into the wheel seat, threw on the power, and made a circle of the field amid a pandemonium of cheers and shouts. With the presentation were the opening ceremonies climaxed.

No first inning of an opening game ever produced more highly dramatic or sensational features, accepted by one man, as the first of to-day's battle. It was an inning that will long live in the memory of the crowd and Sherwood Magee. The latter was the limelight figure. Devore had been retired for the Giants. Doyle was on first base as the result of Moore's first act of generosity. Snodgrass was at bat. At the crack of Snodgrass's bat, Doyle started for second and Magee for left centre. For the bleachers, on a line, sailed the ball. No one thought Magee would stop its flying course. Just as the ball was going over his left shoulder he threw up his gloved hand and speared the ball with his thumb and forefinger. It saved one run sure. The thunders of applause that greeted the effort were equal to the saving of a nation. But this catch was only part of the service Magee performed in the first inning.

The Phillies really won the game in the first inning. Magee's mighty club was the winning weapon. After Titus had put the ball over the right field wall outside the foul line, he was tossed out at first base by Doyle. Knabe received a base on balls. Lobert lifted to Murray. The crowd cheered Magee as he walked to the bat, partly in compliment for his great catch and partly as an act of favoritism. With two balls and one strike as the count against him, he caught the fourth delivered on the end of his bat, and it sailed at the speed of a meteor to left centre. Devore sprinted like mad. But to no avail. Wood and concrete ended his sprinting career. Backed up against the bleachers he saw the ball descend into the crowd in the extreme clubhouse corner, the longest hit made on the grounds in a decade. As little Knabe preceded Magee around the bases the crowd stood on its feet and thundered its wild huzzahs at the great player.

The second and third innings were quickly played, the sharpness of the fielding being the feature rather than any particular brilliancy. Then came the fourth, another spectacular round of Quaker offense and defense. Devore started the inning by reaching first base on a pass. Doyle was out on a fly to Titus. Snodgrass fouled to Dooin. Devore stole second, and then came the greatest play of the game and one of the most remarkable ever seen inside the park. Running at his top speed, but unable to come abreast of the speeding ball, Magee accomplished the almost impossible when by a leaping jump he threw his gloved hand high in the air and pulled down Murray's terrific smash that every spectator thought would land in the bleachers.

Hardly had the spectators ceased cheering Magee's catch when they broke out anew. Lobert crashed the sphere over Snodgrass's head for a triple and scored a minute later when Bridwell knocked down Magee's scorching grounder, retiring the batter at first base on a splendid play. Paskert was also out at first, but Luderus bounded the ball against the right field wall for a double, which was the signal for another series of yells. The big first baseman was left when Dooin grounded to Merkle unassisted.

These were the spotlight figures and features of the game, never overlooking for a second the exceptional character of Moore's pitching. The big Quaker gave the most wonderful performance of the year, one hit. The little bingle, which deprived Earl of a no-hit exhibition, was made by Snodgrass with two out in the sixth inning. It had all the earmarks of a "Texas leaguer." Magee, Paskert, Dooin, and Knabe all raced in its wake, but none could reach it before it fell to the ground. In five of the nine innings Moore retired the Giants in the order of their appearing at bat. In three other innings a base on balls was the slip that made it necessary for four men to face him, while in one round a pass and a hit swelled the number to come to the plate to five. Six men were retired on strikes, "Big Chief" Meyers, one of the Giants' sluggers, fanning twice out of three times up.

Knowing the finishing instincts of the Giants, the crowd was somewhat apprehensive in the last inning when Doyle, the first man up, was passed to first. But Moore quickly allayed their fears. He whiffed Snodgrass, forced Murphy to foul to Luderus, and then Merkle ended the game by striking three times at the ambient.

DAHLEN'S SUPERBAS FALL DOWN AT HOME

"Pride of Brooklyn" Get Hard Beating at Hands of Fred Tenney's Bostonians.

The baseball season in Brooklyn was started on its way yesterday with all the usual frills and the Superbas lived up to tradition by dropping the opener. Fred Tenney's rejuvenated Boston team was the opening day attraction at Washington Park, and a crowd of 10,000 rooters saw their favorite Superbas trail from start to finish and close up on the small end of a 9 to 5 verdict.

The Beaneaters kept in perfect step with the Superbas during the parade to the flagpole in the left field before the game began, but during the remainder of the afternoon they stepped a little faster than Manager Dahlen's boys. The Superbas were close pace followers until the eighth inning, and then were lost to view when Boston spurted. Brooklyn uncorked a miniature rally in the ninth inning, but it was smothered before it grew very troublesome to Boston.

Nothing in the way of early ceremonies was missing. At 2 o'clock Shannon's Twenty-third Regiment Band began to discourse popular brands of music, and after the teams had taken their preliminary workouts the musicians led a parade, made up of players of both teams, from the home plate to the flagpole in left field. The players halted at the flagpoe while Old Glory was run up, and then returned to the home pate to break ranks. Then the twenty-six Superbas gathered around the immense floral horseshoe presented to Manager Dahlen and were photographed. Umpire Klem announced the batteries, took a perfect throw from Borough President Steers with his right hand, and the game was on.

The visitors played a better brand of ball at every stage of the game. With one down in the opening inning they jumped to a lead which they never had to surrender. Every slip-up by the Superbas was turned to advantage, and they turned in some choice stickwork and almost air-tight fielding which made the home team appear like poor second raters. Neither team showed anything sensational in the fielding line, but Wheat, Daubert, and Goode did some telling execution with the willow. Wheat got three wollops, one a double, and figured in four of Brooklyn's five runs, driving in three and scoring one himself.

Dahlen trotted out George Bell, his best right hander, to humble the Tenney brigade, but George's assortment was anything but a puzzle and he retired the Beaneaters in order in only one of the nine innings. Hub Perdue began the battle for the visitors, but retired in favor of Curtis with two down in the sixth inning. Both were wild, and together they handed out eight passes, but only two were converted into runs. Brooklyn's eight hits were bunched in pairs in four different innings. The Superbas had some rosy chances to start something several times and fell down miserably, eleven being stranded on the paths.

Boston jumped ahead in the first inning. Clarke planted a clean single in left field and was safe at second when Hummel miscued on Tenney's grounder. Herzog's sacrifice advanced both runners and Miller's clean single to right field drove the pair home. Tenney's hoofs showed no signs of weakness in his dash from second to the plate. With two down in the second, Graham doubled to left centre and counted on Perdue's slam over second base. Davidson qualified as an ivory expert by throwing to second base while Graham was tearing home. Nine Beaneaters batted in the eighth inning and five counted. A pass to Clarke, Tenney's sacrifice, singles by Herzog, Goode, and Graham, two steals and errors by Bell and Tooley, helped to score the five runs. Tenney's single, a wild pitch, which was good for two cushions, and a sacrifice fly gave Boston the last run in the ninth inning.

Brooklyn scored in the third inning on Daubert's triple and Wheat's infield hit. A pass to Tooley, Hummel's scratch hit, and a clean drive over second base by Wheat brought in the second run in the fifth inning. In the ninth inning Davidson walked and stole second, Graham making no attempt to get him. He advanced on Tooley's out, Herzog to Tenney, and scored on Daubert's single to left field. Daubert stole and counted on Wheat's double to left field. A wild pitch allowed Wheat to register from second. The score:

Red Sox Cast Off Youngsters.

BOSTON, April 21. — Minor league assignments for the present season for seven major league aspirants on the Boston American squad were announced to-day. Providence, of the Eastern League, obtains Pond and Perry, outfielders, and Dale, a pitcher; Buffalo, of the same league, gets the services of Peirce, a left-handed pitcher, and Sacramento, of the Pacific Coast League, will use Hunt, a pitcher, and Mahoney, a pitcher and outfielder.

Former White Sox Lose Their Cases.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 21.—Charles French and C. A. Gandil, former member of the Chicago American League team, failed to convince the National Baseball Commission that Comiskey's club owes them money for back salary. They attempted to collect under a recent ruling that in case a player is sent to a minor league team within ten days of the end of the Minor League season, that he can collect his full year's salary from the major league club. Gandil and French were released to Montreal in September, but they failed to report there, and the commission to-day dismissed their claims.

Double-Header at Olympic Field.

The first double-header of the season will be played on Sunday at Olympic Field, 136th Street and Fifth Avenue, where Rod McMahon's Lincoln Giants will meet the crack Patersons in the first game and the Central Islips in the second contest. The early-tussle will start at 2 P. M. Buckner and Bradley will be in the points for the Lincolns in the opening affray and McClellan and Booker will be their battery in the closing conflict.

EASTERN LEAGUE.

Newark Has Big Parade and a Fight in Game Thrills Crowd.

Joe McGinnity and his band of Newark Indians made an auspicious start in the Eastern League pennant race at Newark yesterday, when they took the Montreals into camp by a score of 10 to 7. A crowd of about 15,000 persons witnessed the game, which was preceded by the usual opening-day ceremonies.

Before going to the ball park the two teams took part in a parade, in which more than fifty semi-professional and amateur ball clubs participated. They rode through the principal streets in the city in automobiles headed by a squad of police on motor cycles and bicycles.

The Newarks won the game in the eighth inning after the visitors had been leading up to that time. After one batsman was out, Lee was hit by a pitched ball. Meyers ran for him. Browne got a pass and Kelly scored both men with a triple. Louden made an infield hit and Kelly tallied on an overthrow to catch the latter at third. Dalton sent Louden home with his second hit of the game.

McGinnity, Hardy, and Nattress became involved in a fight in the eighth inning, and it ended with the latter being punched in the nose. The score:

President Barrow said to-night that further punishment will be meted out to the ones found guilty of starting the trouble.

Jersey City Makes Poor Showing.

Jersey City lost the first game of the season to Rochester yesterday by the score of 10 to 1. Mayor Wittpen threw the first ball over the plate, and the 1911 Eastern League season was on. The Skeeters were completely outclassed. The Bronchos played all around them. McConnell allowed the Skeeters only four hits, while the Bronchos got to "Rube" Kissinger for twelve hits and six runs in eight innings and to Justis for two hits and four runs in the ninth inning. Justis also issued a pass and hit a batsman. Jersey City's one run in the eighth inning was the result of a pass, a stolen base, and Moeller's error of Warner's drive to right field. The score:

ENGLISH LEAD IN CHESS.

Frank Marshall Defeated and One Game Is Drawn for Newnes Trophy.

When play ceased at the end of the first day's session in the thirteenth match of the annual Anglo-American cable chess match for the Newnes trophy, at 7 o'clock last night, Great Britain had won one game of the ten in progress and drawn another, so that the defenders of the cup will resume play at 10 o'clock this morning with an advantage of 1½ points to ½ over the Americans. It is generally expected that the game at the sixth board will be placed in the American column, thus evening up matters. On the remaining seven the condition of affairs is altogether problematical, and the chances of America tying the score by to-night and thereby saving the trophy for another series are fairly bright.

F. J. Marshall, United States champion, playing his game in London, was outwitted by Amos Burn of Liverpool, who was placed much below him in the international masters' tournament at San Sebastian.

A. B. Hodges of Staten Island, the only player who has taken part in all of the matches since the start, without losing once, was pitted against H. E. Atkins, British Chess Federation champion, and drew a carefully conducted game after twenty-two moves. Following is the pairing of the two teams:

| AMERICA. Bds. | | GREAT BRITAIN. Bds. | |
| 1..R. J. Marshall | 0 | 1..Amo. Burn | 1 |
| 2..A. B. Hodges | ½ | 2..H. E. Atkins | ½ |

| Total | ½ | Total | 1½ |

The Americans had the white pieces on the even numbered boards. Walter Penn Shipley of Philadelphia is the British umpire in Brooklyn and Dr. E. W. Dahl the American umpire in London. W. M. de Visser acted as Captain of the American team.

NEW BOXER IN RING.

McMahon Floors Burke Three Times in First Round, but Lacks Experience.

A terrific wallop, which landed on Referee Charley White's nose and sent that official groggy and bleeding to the corner, marked the finish of a hard-fought ten-round bout between Sailor Burke of Brooklyn and Tom McMahon, the Pittsburg middleweight, at the Twentieth Century Athletic Club last evening. The blow was delivered while the referee was trying to separate the two men, who refused to recognize the final bell and were pounding away at each other with both hands. Burke's work in the latter part of the bout entitled him to the honors.

It was the opening boxing entertainment for the new club, and although the spacious St. Nicholas Rink was far from being filled, there was a large gathering of members. It was also the initial appearance of McMahon in this city, and his work in the opening round, when he floored the Sailor three times, promised to come up to all the flattering notices which preceded him. But he lacked the ring experience and the physique for a bout like that of last night, and he tired perceptibly in the closing rounds, so much so that Burke was able to set the pace during the latter half of the battle.

McMahon landed a left swing to the Sailor's jaw before the echo of the opening bell had entirely died away and Burke went down with a thud. And he was glad to stay down until Referee Charley White had reached nine in his count. Sailor managed to hug and weather the storm well until just before the bell ended the round, and then another left put him down for the count of four. As soon as he regained his feet he was again floored and was on one knee listening to the count when the bell rang. Everybody expected to see Sailor pick out a soft spot for the next round.

Then came the surprise. Burke has the habit of fighting like a champion when things are coming his way and taking the opposite route when the other fellow is going strong. But last night he did better work in the second round than in the first, and in the third showed still more improvement. But he was taking too much punishment in the form of left swings to gain either round. His comeback, however, gave him the necessary confidence, and from the third round to the end he did not have to take second honors in any of the rounds. Two or three were even and the others belonged to Burke. He had great respect for McMahon's left hand, and as the Pittsburger showed himself a very poor judge of distance, the hand which promised a quick ending to the fight did little damage in the closing rounds. McMahon's nose and mouth bled freely in the latter part of the battle as the result of some good left jabbing by Burke. The Sailor left the ring with no marks of a hard struggle.

The three preliminaries, each scheduled for six rounds, furnished less than eight rounds of boxing. In the opener Kid Lewis stopped Patsy Conway in the first round with some well-directed swings to the stomach. Battling Curley put up a game battle in the second preliminary, but he was outclassed by Kid Fisher all the way for six rounds. The third bout ended abruptly in the first round, when Young Frankie Niel took exception to the orders of the referee and refused to go on any further.

The light heavyweight wrestling title will be decided to-night at the St. Nicholas Rink, Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue, when Americus, the title holder, will take on "Yankee" Rogers of Fitchburg, Mass. The men are to wrestle to a finish, best two out of three falls. Several contests have been arranged as preliminaries, the first of which will be put on at 8:30, with time being called for the star attraction at 9:15 sharp. Charlie White will officiate as referee.

GAYNOR EXPLAINS STAND ON SCHOOLS

Can't Get as Good Work from a Voluntary as from a Paid Board, He Says.

RIDICULES CRY OF "POLITICS"

Thinks the Board of Estimate Should Control School Expenditures—Denies the New Charter Is His Work.

Mayor Gaynor went yesterday to the defense of the changes in the administration of the Board of Education made in his recommendation for the revision of the city Charter recently submitted to the Legislature. He told why he wanted the present voluntary board reduced to seven paid members, and had something to say about the Charter draft, submitted in his name. He said:

"I favor making the Board of Education a city department, leaving the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen to do with it as they do with other city departments substantially.

"The teachers' pension fund, instead of being separate as it now is, becomes merged with the funds of other departments, and they will have no representative on the board, as at present, and no voice in its management. I do not deem that a vital thing at all. The teachers ought to be very thankful to have a pension fund without being critical about the question of management.

"Would the effect of this new Charter be to put the schools into politics? I do not see how there can be any such effect. I think that is a mere bugbear. If I thought that it would I would not like to have anything to do with it.

Has to Avoid Pitfalls.

"Unfortunately we have some people around us who spend their time plotting and giving a political tinge to everything. I am sorry to say there are some who like to dig holes behind me for me to back up and fall into. I have no sympathy with such people.

"My great desire is to administer the City Government without a thought of politics or digging holes for any one to fall into. I only wish every one was of the same spirit. It is very trying to have opposition to great projects of the city spring up out of political hostility.

"You ask how much the new Charter will increase the power of the Mayor over the schools? Well, he appoints the board, and, it being a city department, he will no doubt be in close touch with it. He now appoints the Board of Education of forty-six members, but he is really out of touch with it, or any to speak of. It is a sort of wilderness.

"I suppose that about five men now control the board, and do everything that is worth talking about. Most of the others simply vote as the roll is called. I think a board of seven paid members, devoting all their time to the work, will have everything at their fingers' ends, and that the Mayor can very easily find out what is going on, and throw in a word now and then. Of course, the Mayor has some delicacy about thrusting his spoon into every dish, but nevertheless it is wholesome that he be able to thrust it in when he sees fit.

Board Is Too Independent.

"Why do we propose to make the Board of Education a city department, instead of an outside or State department, as heretofore? Because we think that such an outside board is altogether too independent of the City Government. The city furnishes the money, and should not be in a position of having to look on and see it spent in extravagant ways.

"I know that the schoolhouse sites heretofore have cost from three to five times their actual value. And there has been much extravagance in building. I do not wish to say there has been much graft, but I fear there has been in the past.

"Are the new Commissioners to be men or women? I should not say in advance, but most likely both.

"What kind of Commissioners? The most competent whom I can get to devote their whole time to the work. You must remember their duties are largely administrative, so that persons of administrative and business ability will be required, as well as educational experts. You might not get these qualifications combined in the same person, but we can get them combined in the same board of seven.

"Why is a paid commission proposed? Because we must get competent persons to devote their entire time to it. He who preaches the Gospel has to live by the Gospel, and he who teaches, or controls the education of the community, must live thereby. They must live some way or another. We don't want people to live by graft, do we?

"Where should the initiative on educational matters be, in the hands of the Board of Education or the Board of Superintendents? It may be that in some things the initiative should be local, but I fear I cannot go into that.

Duty of the Board of Estimate.

"Should there be a fixed minimum revenue by statute, you ask. I do not see that that is necessary. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment can take care of that the same as they do in respect of all other departments, and the Board of Education is now being made a department of the city.

"Should that board designate how the money appropriated should be spent? Yes, I think the Board of Estimate should be able to designate the particular things that money should be devoted to.

"Are the Board of Estimate sufficiently expert in educational matters to be able to do this intelligently? Yes, they may not be educational experts, but with the aid of the Board of Education I think they can do it intelligently, and it may be often necessary to limit the expenditure in certain directions. I see no objection to it.

"Should the Board of Education fix the salaries of the teachers and other employes, or the Board of Estimate and Apportionment? I think the teachers' salaries should be fixed by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, acting probably with the Board of Aldermen. I repeat that the Board of Education is being made a city department. Heretofore it has been a State institution, a separate corporation, outside of the City Government, with the City Government, however, compelled to feed it with money.

Charter Not His Work.

"You ask, will the Charter go through this year? I cannot say. I see that it is called my Charter, or by my name, especially by those intensely political people who want to find some fault with it. As a matter of fact, there is not a substantial change in the present Charter which was not taken from the recommendations of one or more previous Charter Commissions.

"The Charter prepared by the present Charter Commission has substantially the same changes in the educational part of it. It brings it in as a city department, and creates a small paid board. Mr. Mayer told me that was to be written into that Charter. In fact, we have now two Charter drafts, which are substantially the same throughout. I see no reason why the Charter should not pass this year. I did very little in its preparation. The history of its preparation is simply this:

"The Charter Commission last year had a Charter before the Legislature, but not yet complete. No official in this city knew a thing about it. It was, in fact, being drawn by men in Syracuse and Horseheads and all over the State. I asked Julius Mayer, counsel to that commission, to let it go over until this year, so that the city officials might read it and make suggestions. He immediately acquiesced in this as proper, and the matter was laid over until this year.

"Last June I called all the heads of departments together and appointed a committee of twelve therefrom, including the Controller, to take the matter up. At the same meeting it was announced that the Corporation Counsel would form a working force in the staff of his office to lick into shape and write out a new Charter from all the suggestions that should come in. That course was followed.

"The heads of departments went to work on the chapters relating to their respective departments and sent in their suggestions, and the bureau in the Corporation Counsel's office worked on the preparation of the Charter, and the present proposed Charter is the result. If there be some who took little interest in the matter, that is their own affair. It was all public and well announced, and we received valuable help from many sources. The only thing I regret is that the Charter is not yet perfect in literary form."

Speakers for Cathedral Peace Meeting

The speakers at the international peace meeting, to be held in the new Cathedral of St. John the Divine to-morrow evening, will be President Schurman of Cornell, President Butler of Columbia, the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson of the Broadway Tabernacle, and the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning of Trinity Church. No tickets will be required. There will be an augmented choir.

Changes Name to Avoid Confusion.

Dr. Pincus Mallowitz of 27 Henry Street got permission from Supreme Court Justice Blanchard yesterday to adopt the name of Marlowe. He speaks no Russian or Polish, he says, but is continually called by Polish and Russian neighbors to attend them because of his name Mallowitz, and many misunderstandings have arisen because he doesn't understand those languages.

The Principles Of Scientific Management
By Frederick W. Taylor

This book—this wonderful, epoch-making book—does one apparently impossible thing.

It shows how the worker gets more money for the same hours of work, and how, at the same time, the owner gets more money, too! And the product costs less!

That is a thing the world has declared never could be done and never would.

But—here it is—

And the way of it is all told right out—for the small concern as well as for the big establishment, for skilled and unskilled operations.

If we are going to keep up with the House next door we have got to do it by Scientific Management. And if we are going to pass our competitor this book has got to be our business Creed.

It is a new invention or discovery like the typewriter or telephone—and it has come to stay. From now on it will always be part of our national life.

Keeping Up With Lizzie
By Irving Bacheller

A book for men largely about women, although we are inclined to think both sexes will delight in its queer motor race, its love duel, and its strange Ham War. Lizzies are everywhere, but there is only one Socrates Potter, and he is in this book—a keen, good-natured, witty, honest country lawyer and by far the most unique figure in recent fiction. Here is wit and satire and humanity of a high order. It has genuine humor, real characters, a foundation of truth and a gentle love story. You're in it. So is America, and at least one hundred and fifty laughs.

The Unknown Lady
By Justus Miles Forman

Mr. Forman has done a big thing. Reality glows intensely over these pages as he draws the "lights and shadows cast by his filmy fabric and weaves about it a gleaming, fairy border of his light fancy." "'The Unknown Lady' comes near to being a modern fairy story of the art world," says the Brooklyn Eagle. "Mr. Forman's book ranks very high," says the Chicago Inter Ocean. "A remarkably interesting novel," says the New York Herald. "The plot is capital—a new note in fiction," says the Philadelphia Press. "'The Unknown Lady' is a book to be reckoned with and recommended," is the verdict of the New York World. And the critical summary awards to Mr. Forman a more matured and surer art in "The Unknown Lady" than his previous five novels have shown.

Hearts and the Highway
By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY
Author of "The Island of Regeneration," etc.

Here's a story of gay gallants and a damsel fair, of galloping hoofs and lovely woman's surprising strength and unexpected weakness, told with all Cyrus Townsend Brady's characteristic dash and vigor. A girl dons a man's clothes, and in a lonely road at night holds up a king's messenger, who is carrying a death warrant for her father. She holds him up, and she wounds him, too, dangerously; and then, with feminine lack of logic, she nurses him back to life, and is wounded herself—in the heart. Together the king's messenger and the dauntless girl escape death only by the narrowest margin and their own boldness, and win through at last to the happy ending.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

MR. GUSTAV LILIENTHAL tells, in his "Bird Flight as the Basis of Aviation," of the numerous experiments made by his brother, of whom the Aero Club of America speaks in a recent book as follows:

> Lilienthal became the great original discover of the first elements of those laws which govern really free flight. It is left to a later day to bring adequate appreciation of what Lilienthal has actually done. If he succeeded, it was due to his ability to view the flight of birds in the true engineering spirit.

HARRIET T. COMSTOCK has recently completed negotiations for the production of her "Joyce of the North Woods" in dramatic form.

MR. STEPHEN CHALMERS, author of "The Trail of a Tenderfoot," etc., has made his permanent residence at Campobello, Me., the scene of some of his recent stories. Mr. Chalmers has had some amusing experiences among the Fundy fishermen, who think he is crazy to play a pollock on a fly rod when he might easily catch a boatload of them with a hand-line in half the time.

MR. JOHN FLEMING WILSON, author of "The Land Claimers," is the latest Princeton graduate to come to the front in literature. After leaving college, he spent several years in newspaper work, largely on the Pacific Coast, where he accumulated some of the local color that pervades his novel and his short stories.

MR. ANDRE TRIDON will give a talk on Rostand's "The Dream Princess" (which is to be performed in this country next season) at the house of Mrs. E. J. Sarlabous, 149 West Seventy-eighth Street, next Friday morning.

MR. FORD MADOX HUEFFER, whose "Memories and Impressions," dealing with Dante Gabriel Rossetti, Burne-Jones, William Morris and others, has just been published, laughingly denies that among these writers and painters who fathered the so-called aesthetic movement there was any inclination to live upon the smell of the lily. One of Ford Madox Brown's most pleasing anecdotes told how William Morris came out on to the landing in the house of the "firm" in Red Lion Square, and roared downstairs, "Mary, those six eggs were bad. I've eaten them, but don't let it occur again!" Mr. Hueffer is a grandson of Brown, who was the painter of the pictures called "Work" and "The Last of England."

HARPERS
Magazine
For May

Things happen so rapidly in this country of ours that we are apt to forget the men who have accomplished some of our greatest reforms—men like Millard Fillmore, for example, about whom William Elliot Griffis writes in Harpers for May. It was Fillmore who accomplished the abolition of imprisonment for debt, and the religious test for witnesses in court. He was the champion of the telegraph, and advocated equal pay for women and men—a man of remarkable modern ideas worth reading about.

The Dog As a Teacher

Turning from history to a sort of theology—there is a strangely appealing little article by John F. Genung called "My Lowly Teacher," in which the author tells of the lessons which he is constantly learning from his dog—for in the nature of the dog and his relation to man, he fancies the mind of man can see a likeness to the relation of himself to the Master Being.

Science of Bread

Robert Kennedy Duncan contributes a scientific paper on the most universally important and interesting subject, "Bread." Charles W. Furlong tells graphically of his dangerous adventures among the wild tribes of Patagonia, and Sydney Adamson, the artist, describes and pictures his visit to the little known city of Rabat, on the coast of Morocco—a city of mystery and romance. These are a few of the serious features, but in addition there are

Notable Short Stories

James B. Connolly has written a deliciously funny tale of the complications caused by official red tape in the navy. G. Dorset, the author of "A Successful Wife," contributes a love story of an unusual sort. Elsie Singmaster's story portrays a young girl who has come to womanhood while her parents fancy her still a child. There are other tales of other sorts by Norman Duncan, Alta Brunt Sembower, Anne Warwick, and a group of daintily fanciful fairy tales for grown ups by Richard Le Gallienne.

The subject under discussion was spiritualistic séances. Says California John:

"The whole business looks to me plumb foolish. Of course there's something there, but what's the sense strainin' your poor intellects trying to find out about it when there's so much else to think about? Probably in a future state all that will be as simple and easy as takin' a drink. A fellow 'd feel mighty sick after spendin' his whole life here tryin' his little darndest to come at a whole lot of obscure problems to find it as plain as A B C over there. And it would jar especial bad if he found pine trees and trolley cars and cement walks and doodle bugs and tomato cans were plumb mysterious and soul-strainin' over there; then he'd be sorry he hadn't sized them up while he had a good chance, 'stead of wastin' his time."

THE CABIN

By Stewart Edward White

Author of "The Pass", "Camp and Trail", "The Rules of the Game", etc.

A blithe chronicle of the building of a cabin home, in a forest-girdled meadow of the Sierras, 6,500 feet up toward the mountain summit. This book is full of nature and woodcraft and the sheer delight of outdoors. "California John," that satisfying figure of "The Rules of the Game," enters these pages with his shrewd philosophy. Indeed, Mr. White gets very close to the heart of things and to those essentials of human existence which are materials of daily life in city or woods.

WHO ARE EMMA GAVF?

By EMMA GAVF

A Comedy of Circumstance

The plural authorship of this story adds another note to an unusually clever and interesting tale. A girl upon a street corner recognizes a friend upon a swiftly moving car and calls to her unsuccessfully. A young man nearby, one Angus Carmichael, of Yale, undertakes to catch the car and deliver the message. The result is a romantic complication with many tangled threads of fun and adventure. What happens to Mr. Carmichael in his generous endeavor is most unexpected and decidedly entertaining.

POLITICS AND THE SCHOOLS.

We publish in another column a letter from Mr. ABRAHAM FLEXNER, who has acquired an enviable reputation as an expert in the various educational systems of the United States. His field of study is broad and has been intelligently covered. He addresses THE TIMES with regard to the change in the administration of the schools of New York proposed in the charter submitted to the Legislature with the approval of Mayor GAYNOR. The essence of this change lies in the proposal to replace the present Board of Education, composed of unpaid members, exercising a reasonably independent authority, by a board of paid members, forming a department of the City Government, with all policies and all acts of organization and administration under the ultimate direction of the Board of Estimate and the Aldermen, who would ultimately control appropriations.

Mr. FLEXNER shows that while this change is in seeming logical analogy with the mode of conducting other departments of the City Government, the analogy and the logic fail in reality, because the business required is entirely different. We do not think that he exaggerates, he rather understates, the immense importance of reasonable continuity in the work of the schools, and this would be impossible were they subjected to the inevitable influence of partisan politics that would follow placing them within the general system of city administration. We do not, of course, mean by continuity abstention from change. On the contrary, we mean continuous and connected progress which requires fairly stable expert guidance, in order to work out advances with proper relation to the needs and the opportunities of the schools. That kind of guidance can be had only under conditions of substantial independence, reasonable tenure, and direct, workable responsibility. It cannot be had at all from a system in which power and responsibility are divided, in which several bodies have nearly equal voice, and in which the baleful intervention of politics is possible.

We shall be told that the present system is by no means perfect. We should be the last to deny it. We have criticised it sharply. We expect to have to do so in the future if it be continued. But all our criticism and that of others, undertaken in a spirit of loyalty to the best interests of the schools, has been addressed to officials who are sensitive to it when it is reasonable, who have right aims, who are responsible and responsive to intelligent public opinion, and who will not be deflected from attention to criticism by partisan motives. Would these conditions prevail under the proposed system? Hardly. The appointments to the board would in the first instance constitute a rich prize for the politicians, and though Mayor GAYNOR, or any man like him, might resist the efforts of the "organization" to capture them, the task would be a tough one, and it would have to be faced day by day all the time. Not only the salaries of the board, but its powers, direct and indirect, over the appointments in the supervising force and in the teaching force, would arouse desperate appetite among the politicians. And beyond the mere powers of the board, enviable as these would be, would lie a field for all sorts of intrigue and chicane in the Board of Estimate and in the Board of Aldermen, where the control of expenditures would carry the control of appointments and salaries and grades. The really good and practical and vital system which we now have, which is the product of rational evolution and is capable of development in the future as it has been in the past, would be exchanged for a political plum tree from which the greedy politicians would forever be trying to shake the fruit.

We are very sorry that Mayor GAYNOR has been led into the support of this measure. We cannot believe that, in the pressure of his other duties, and in the stress of conflicts which have accumulated about his course, he has been able to give to the matter the careful attention it deserves. It is a pity that a measure should go to Albany with his prestige back of it which is hailed by the whole company of Tammany with delight. The situation is extremely grave. The forces of greed are reinforced by the support of the Mayor, and public opinion is liable to be confused and misled. Every possible influence should be brought against this measure. We are confident that when it is truly understood the people of New York will have none of it. But the public enemy is alert, hungry, and well organized, and the time is short.

THE NEWS FROM MEXICO.

The special correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES in the Mexican capital, Mr. STEPHEN BONSAL, has been of great service within the past week, not only to readers of this newspaper, but to the whole country. He has thrown new light on the situation in Mexico by his sagacity and energy. He has found the real news. To THE SUNDAY TIMES he contributed, by telegraph, the most illuminative and coherent account of the Mexican situation that had yet been printed. Thursday morning his dispatch revealed the actual tenor of the reply by the Mexican Foreign Office to the inquiry of our State Department touching the killing of American citizens on their own soil by Mexican bullets. Some passages in that note were ill-considered, and unwarranted by the facts, and they have been withdrawn. The temper of the Mexican Government revealed in the original note, however, was one that our own Government can well afford to view with equanimity, and many if not most of our people are likely to view sympathetically. The international question involved in the incident at Agua Prieta and Douglas is one with two very distinct sides, and President TAFT's practical statesmanship is clearly and admirably indicated in his message to Gov. SLOAN of Arizona. We are assured now that the disposition of the Mexican Government is to avoid all injury to American life and property in its effort to crush the rebellion along the northern border.

Mr. BONSAL's dispatches have made the situation much more comprehensible to Americans, and they have also indicated the great extent of the disaffection in the sister republic, and the grave peril which confronts the Government in the National Palace. His report yesterday of an interview with Mr. LIMANTOUR indicates that the vision of the Government is clear, and that the courage of this one important member of it, at least, has not abated. That the insurrectos are "determined upon the irrevocable ruin of their country" Mr. LIMANTOUR believed as lately as Thursday. His estimate of MADERO, the rebel leader, is somewhat surprising, as it imparts new interest to the character of that until lately unknown member of a branch of a powerful family.

Mr. LIMANTOUR condemns him as a dreamer and a bookish man; but the facts show him to be, at this moment, the acknowledged and very active leader in the field of a formidable armed uprising. MADERO is also condemned by his eminent contemporary as a vegetarian (many Mexicans eat very little animal food) and a Spiritualist. Perhaps he sees spirits and hears "voices." But mysticism, of a sort, should not be considered uncommon in a country where people of education still hang lights out of their bedroom windows at night to keep off the evil spirits. Mr. MADERO may also be an anti-vivisectionist and a Baconian, but it must be admitted that he has made a tremendous impression on his time, in spite of any vagaries he may cherish, and from a very small beginning, too. Mr. LIMANTOUR's description of him lends him new distinction.

REALTY AND RAPID TRANSIT.

The auction on Thursday of the McCaddin estate in Eastern Brooklyn afforded an exceptional opportunity for comparison of actual and assessed valuations. One parcel of sixteen lots, near the Williamsburg Bridge, brought $98,000, although assessed at but $73,800. Another parcel, assessed at $15,200, brought $27,500, another brought $8,000 above the assessment, five houses brought $17,500, although assessed for $10,000. Twenty-two Flatbush lots, assessed at $10,550, brought $12,060. Other cases similar are too numerous to mention, and in no case is it reported that the price, more or less peremptory as auction sales are, was below the assessed value. On the same day the taxpayers of the Fifth Ward of Queens (the Rockaways) formally resolved that they were very badly treated by the assessors, in the manner of protest from pretty nearly all Brooklyn when the valuations were first announced.

There are here several points of interest. The most obvious is the vindication of the assessors so far as these facts go. A second point is the moderate prices paid in a district which might be supposed to be subject to enhancement of values through nearness of Manhattan, and the convenience of access to it. The report of the Tax Department issued this week gives elaborate tables for all Brooklyn, which permit comparison with other boroughs. The land values of Manhattan naturally lead all the rest, and, despite its congestion of population, they average $1,201 per capita. They have been considerably higher, and now are only $5 above 1906. The land values of the Bronx are lower than in 1906, and are $718 per capita. The land values of Brooklyn also have fluctuated in the years following 1906, and after some relapse they remain at $375, an increase of $25. Land values in Queens have doubled, and, although not at their best in 1910, remain at $776. The tables in the Tax Department enable all who are interested to carry out these comparisons year by year, for land and improvements separately, and together, and with the figures of the changes in population which are a basic consideration in realty values.

Even more interesting than the apparent justification of the Brooklyn assessors is the explanation of the comparisons, which are most striking. The values in Manhattan need but few words. They represent the focusing here of travel from all the boroughs. It matters little where a New Yorker sleeps, he travels to Manhattan and works and rides here. The same is true of the women members of his family. No investment in subways in Manhattan is any discrimination against any other borough. On the other hand, any investment of taxes in any other borough is in a sense a discrimination against every other borough, and a strengthening of a competition. In this respect the Bronx is the envy of all the other boroughs, and its demands are more narrowly watched than ever before. The tables do not go far enough back to show its full gain, for its values were double those of the other boroughs, except Manhattan, at the first year given. The point to be noted is that they remain double those of Brooklyn now, and that Brooklyn's values are depressed by the lack of what gave the Bronx its leadership. The Bronx first came within the five-cent zone for either the surface or Subway cars, and almost all Brooklyn lies outside it even now. There are more tracks to Brooklyn and Queens than to the Bronx, but there are fewer cars, and double fares for the most part.

This is usually thought of as a hardship to Brooklyn, but is really a greater hardship to the city. To begin with, the city has an investment of $100,000,000 in easterly transit facilities which is not bringing in the returns it should either to citizens or to the city. If those facilities were utilized to the same extent as the facilities to the north, it would be reasonable to expect such a percentage of growth in values as was realized in the Bronx. A doubling of the real estate values in Brooklyn, as in the Bronx, would give the city to-day taxes upon two billions of dollars, or four times the present values in the Bronx, for Brooklyn's area is relatively large. The real grievance of Brooklyn is not in its tax valuations, against which it protested so strongly, but in the deficiency of its transportation facilities. All Brooklyn is more interested in having its values raised by the same thing which raised the Bronx valuations than in having its valuations reduced. Its grievance is not against the Tax Office, whose attention is naturally attracted by the deficiency in values, but against the influences which delay the city's coming into its own by transit betterments.

Facts are lacking by which to test the grievance of Queens. The protestants of this week never were in the single fare zone, but their transit facilities have been enormously bettered. They are within the electric zone, and have choice of access either to Brooklyn or to the Pennsylvania's new station. Moreover, all of Queens is living in hope of having soon opened facilities of travel which long have existed, but which have benefited Queens no more than Brooklyn. Queens generally is now in the speculative stage from which the city so largely benefited by the Bronx boom. Its land values have doubled, and actually exceed those of the Bronx per capita. If the activity and strength of the Queens realty market existed in Brooklyn, it is likely that the tax complaints would have been fewer. Brooklyn's complaint was that its values were stagnant or declining while its taxes were rising, not that its valuations were excessive compared with other boroughs. If Queens values are high the taxpayers may solace themselves by the thought that their properties give promise of further advance, and that generally they have an option to escape their tax increases by taking their profits. In all cases there is a single moral—transit improvements should be hastened in the interest of the taxgatherers as well as of the taxpayers.

MR. MERRITT'S FOREST BILL.

Assemblyman E. A. MERRITT, who has proclaimed his private interest in projects to extract electrical power from the waters of the public domain, is heading another assault upon the wild forest lands provision of this State's Constitution.

Of course, water going to waste in the Adirondacks should be stored, even with the use of some State land. But Mr. MERRITT's concurrent resolution would permit the flooding of unlimited areas of the State forests for storage reservoirs, and it makes no provision for payment to the State for use of its lands and waters. It is condemned as a bad bill by the Hon. THOMAS M. OSBORNE, State Forest, Fish, and Game Commissioner, whose opinion of it is shared by such representative bodies as the Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks and the New York Board of Trade and Transportation.

These organizations are taking active measures to defeat Mr. MERRITT's avowed designs. We hope the Judiciary Committees of the Assembly and Senate will agree with the public-spirited men of these associations that Mr. MERRITT is acting selfishly in his own interest, and in the interests of other selfish persons in urging the passage of his measure. If he were a Congressman, the law would forbid such activities on the floor of Congress. A bill, framed after this Federal law, was introduced in the Legislature last year, making its terms applicable to New York State legislators. It was defeated. But the political morality of the case remains the same.

CIVIL WAR HISTORY.

The celebrations in the North of fiftieth anniversaries of events at the beginning of the civil war, some of which, it seems, might as well be passed over in silence, come at a time when there is a fresh outcry in some of the Southern States of inaccuracies and alleged deliberate perversions in school histories of the truth about the war between the States. Many of the complaints against these textbooks are well grounded. Doubtless in their objections to some of them our Southern brothers are governed rather by sentiment than by clear judgment. It is important, however, that school histories treating of this unhappy period should be perfectly impartial, and should be confined to statements of positive fact.

As to the remembrance of victories by one side or the other, the time has come when the whole country can well afford to view the plain record of facts without rancor. There is no existing political or sectional dispute between North and South. All the battles of the civil war were won by American soldiers. All the heroes of that war were Americans. The glory that remains belongs to all of us. The sorrow and shame of all defeats are forgotten, or should be.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION OF GIRLS.

The reported "clash" between Director SARGENT of the Harvard gymnasium and Prof. TYLER of Amherst College, at the meeting of the American Physical Education Association in Boston, on the question of how much exercise is suitable for girls, was due to a temporary misunderstanding. THE TIMES is informed by each of these authorities that they are in substantial agreement. If by "heavy work," Dr. SARGENT says, Prof. TYLER meant the lifting of heavy weights, the bearing of heavy burdens, or engaging in long endurance tests in running, dancing, basket ball, and so on, there is no question that this should be forbidden girls of the grammar school age. Prof. TYLER urged that they be forbidden. But the gymnasts and physical trainers also mean by "heavy work" the use of heavy or fixed apparatus. Both Prof. TYLER and Dr. SARGENT believe that the use by girls of horizontal and parallel bars, suspended rings and vaulting bucks, climbing ropes, poles, and ladders at the age when children naturally take to climbing trees and fences and thoroughly enjoy it, is the best thing that can be prescribed.

Such exercises strengthen the fundamental muscles of the trunk and limbs upon which the development of the heart, lungs, brain, and nervous system depends. They are, as Prof. TYLER states, "the main defense against hysteria and all forms of nervous weakness." If girls do not learn to handle their own weight while children, they never learn, as they tend to grow relatively heavier and more inactive as they become adults. The following statement by Dr. SARGENT is a part also of Prof. TYLER's doctrine:

> What most growing girls, as well as growing boys, need is a frequent change of organic activity, and hard enough work for their muscles to allay nervous irritability and give them a motor outlet for their pent-up feelings and emotions.

Curiously enough, the physical condition of girls and boys in the urban schools is superior to that of pupils in the rural schools of the United States. Out-of-door play in the country is not systematized as it well can be, and as it is systematized in the playgrounds of the cities. Here, too, we have the aid of gymnasiums. Physical education should be made a part of the Country Life movement, which Mr. ROOSEVELT has so wisely and ably forwarded. Meanwhile, the work of training the muscles, eyes, brains, and nerve centres of children in the public schools of the cities by means of recreative exercises goes on apace. It is an encouraging sign of progress in education.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Time-Wasters and How to Treat Them.

More than the usual adroitness—which is not slight—of our correspondents in asking difficult questions for a busy world to answer was shown by the one who yesterday laid before our other readers the problem of what to do with people who continually interfere with the conduct of his business by demanding his attention for matters that interest him little and concern him not at all.

Sometimes they do it, he said, by calling him up on the telephone, sometimes by coming to his office and talking to him directly. Thus is his time wasted, his temper ruined, and his natural inclination to be kind as well as courteous to everybody severely strained. The picture he drew is lamentably familiar to all of us whose leisure is limited by what we consider the necessity of earning our wages or attending to duties that seem to us important as well as personal, but no real, or at least no immediate, solution of the problem has ever been offered.

It is easy enough in the case of persons whom we can refuse to see or whose visits we can peremptorily end as soon as the irrelevancy or the futility thereof has become evident—to ourselves. But there are so many, many persons with whom one cannot, or thinks he cannot, be harsh or even curt—who come as friends, because they are friends—whose need of advice or information or some sort of assistance is in a way a valid claim for part of the time of any human being. Then there is the man, as hard-worked as yourself, but whose unoccupied ten minutes or half hour happens to arrive just when you are most driven—he, too, comes and beams on you, and talks and talks and talks to you, and has such a good time, while you rage inwardly as the precious moments fly.

Not least troublesome are those who forget that conversation conducted within the hearing of a busy man disturbs him as much as if it were addressed directly to him—when it doesn't disturb him more.

The remedy for these woes? There isn't any remedy. They must be endured until the slow rise in the general level of thoughtfulness and consideration for others renders their infliction impossible. One other thing can be done—each of us with any appreciation of the evil can carefully refrain from doing ourselves the things we so hotly condemn when done by others. That would help a lot toward hastening the reform.

A Lynching of a New Sort.

Whatever else may be said about the inhabitants of Livermore, Ky., it cannot be denied that in them the dramatic sense is strongly developed. For, when they deemed it expedient to lynch a negro, they managed to do the familiar deed in a way not only entirely new, but highly picturesque in the literal meaning of that much-abused word. They tied him hard and fast at the centre of the stage in the local theatre, turned on all the lights, and then, retiring to the body of the house, proceeded to perforate him with many bullets from rifles and revolvers. He screamed once.

It is said that only those were allowed to participate in the shooting who were willing to pay for the privilege, and that thus a considerable sum of money was raised for the family of the man for the fatal wounding of whom the negro was put to death. That, if true, shows that the people of Livermore are practical as well as dramatic, but the thing itself seems somewhat improbable, and the chances are that somebody's imagination added this needless touch to a story made sufficiently impressive by the unadorned facts.

According to inevitable report, efforts are making in Livermore to discover who it was that devised and took part in this original and ingenious flouting of the law. Later, no doubt, we shall hear that the efforts, though energetic and persistent, were without result. Incidentally, it may be worth noting that the negro was not lynched for "the usual crime." Apparently he was killed for getting the better of a white antagonist in a barroom brawl—an offense the monstrous atrocity of which is not easily appreciable from a distance, though presumably it is clear enough to that fraction, whatever it may be, of Livermore's population that deems it expedient to have the white man always win in fights that start in barrooms frequented by both races.

In such places, if anywhere, the social conventions and proprieties must be rigidly observed and every violation of them sternly rebuked. Without pretending to express an expert opinion, we venture to describe the rebuke administered in this case as sufficiently stern—to call the punishment inflicted both exemplary and punitive. It may even be called reformative, the highest praise that can be given to any punishment, since it is quite certain that the negro who made in the Livermore "opera house" his first and last appearance on any stage will never again offend the delicate and tender sensibilities of his fellow-townsmen.

Not a Good Name, But Our Best.

Why should a critic who objects to "Yankee" as an inadequate name for all the inhabitants of the United States demand the substitution for it of the word "American"?

It is true, of course, that, as originally used, "Yankee" meant a person born in one of the New England States, and perhaps it still means that, among ourselves, but if "Yankee" is objectionable as too small to cover us all, "American" has the fault, at least equally serious, of being too large. Besides, "Yankee" is our own, to do with what we please, while "American" belongs as much to the Patagonians and the Eskimos, and to all the queer and interesting peoples in between, including the Mexicans and the Canadians, as it does to ourselves.

We may think ourselves rather more, and more truly, American than any of the others, but anybody who lives in either of the two Americas is of necessity an American, for we don't own both continents—yet. We never shall, unless at some time, which won't be next week or the week after, our virtues and manners win such fervent admiration from our neighbors to the north and south that their eager solicitude for admission to our glorious privileges becomes an irresistible compulsion to let 'em in.

Meanwhile, "Yankee" isn't such a bad name, and though it be stretched, it doth not break. There is derision in it, but not contempt, and laughter, when mitigated and restrained by respect, however reluctant, is easily tolerable, especially by a nation of humorists. If the forefathers—of some of us—had only had time to name the country they founded, instead of letting it loose in history with a mere description, this trouble would never have arisen.

APPEALS TO HOUSEWIVES.

Mrs. Julian Heath Asks That Each Investigate Laundry She Patronizes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You presented some weeks ago to your readers a report of the conditions which I found to be existing in many of the laundries of this city, and which were and still are a menace to the public and to the workers. The work of improving conditions in the laundries is being vigorously pushed by a special committee which is receiving the hearty co-operation of those laundrymen who wish to raise the standard of the laundry industry.

At this time I am seeking the co-operation of the public, and particularly the housewife, who has the matter in her own hands, by asking that each housewife and each individual investigates thoroughly the laundry that he or she patronizes. If cause for complaint is found as to sanitation, ventilation, &c., I would be very glad to receive these complaints and act upon them, whether these complaints are in regard to steam laundries or the so-called hand laundries. The latter point, I believe, needs explanation in that the words hand laundry are often misleading, and I believe that many patronize the (so-called) hand laundries supposing they are getting hand work, whereas I have found in my investigations that very few are strictly "hand laundries."

Believing that one of the causes of danger is by infection of the clean clothes from those that are unwashed, it would be a great favor to the committee which has the matter in charge if laundries were reported where the soiled clothes and the clean clothes are handled from the same table. Conditions in many of the laundries in the city are indeed a great menace, and the customers need to be awakened to the dangers.

The City's Warring Officials.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Isn't it about time that there was more unanimity in our city government? Instead of attacks and insinuations, would it not be far better if the heads of the municipality would get together for the community's welfare? There does not seem to be any disposition on the part of certain city officials to attain this end. It seems to serve their purpose better to attack and misrepresent their political opponents at after-dinner speeches, and pose as the saviors of the city and the only honest men in its service. Perhaps it proves the impracticability of a bi-partisan administration.

TERCENTENARY OF THE BIBLE

Will Be Celebrated by a Big Meeting in Carnegie Hall on Tuesday.

The tercentenary commemoration of the King James version of the English Bible will be observed next Sunday by many churches, but the chief celebration will be in Carnegie Hall on Tuesday evening. Bishop David H. Greer will preside, John W. Foster of Washington will read a letter addressed from the President, and Ambassador Bryce will read one from King George V.

Bishop Henry W. Warren, Senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will speak on the Bible in the world's education, and other speakers will be Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale and the Rev. Francis L. Patton of Princeton.

Richard Henry Warren, organist of the Church of the Ascension, is organizing a special choir, to be accompanied by the organ and a band of brass instruments, in leading the congregation in familiar hymns, concluding with the Hallelujah Chorus. All seats are reserved, but tickets may be had free by writing to the committee in the Bible House.

CALL J. D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

To Explain to Court About a Dangerous Ledge on Father's Property.

A summons was issued in the Yorkville Court yesterday for the appearance this morning of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to answer a complaint by the Health Department that a piece of property owned by his father, and of which he is the agent, in Exterior Street, between East Sixty-fourth and East Sixty-fifth Streets, is dangerous to the public.

H. W. Nichols, as an agent of the property, was summoned to court yesterday by Inspector John J. Kennedy, who complained that a ledge of rock, hanging four feet over the street, was dangerous to passers-by.

Mr. Nichols said that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was the agent of the property, and the summons for him was issued.

Y. W. C. A. RAISES $31,468.

Is Seeking $400,000 to Build a Working Girls' Home in Brooklyn.

At the close of the first day of the Brooklyn Young Women's Christian Association's campaign to raise $400,000 to build a home for working girls, it was announced last night that the committees had raised $19,068.

President Horace A. Morse of the Board of Directors announced that five contributions amounting to $12,400 had been made, bringing the total for the day to $31,468. Four men he added are pledged to give $25,000 each if the association can raise the remaining $300,000. The present plan is to carry on the campaign for twelve days.

Every evening a supper will be served to the workers in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, where reports will then be received and instruction for work during the next twenty-four hours given.

FEEING THE USHER.

The Suffragist Forgot an Outraged Public to Join the Bribegivers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At a matinee in a prominent theatre I found myself yesterday in the last row of the balcony, surrounded by a group of excited women protesting against the deliberate lies which had been told them at the box office as to the location of their seats. The woman next to me said that an usher had offered to show her into a better seat if she would pay him a quarter. I said I had found my own seat, but if any usher made such an offer to me I should promptly report him. She said it was an outrage that the boys should act as they did, whereupon I launched forth into a dissertation upon the greater responsibility and wickedness of the bribe giver. Two women in front of me also stated that the same usher had approached them with the same offer, but they had refused. My immediate neighbor, I could see, was greatly disturbed by the fact that her friend who had accompanied her had secured a better seat for a quarter. She was restless and discontented, frequently declaring that it was an outrage how the public is treated. Suddenly she exclaimed: "I tell you, it would not be this way if women had the vote."

"On the contrary, Madam," I retorted, "I do not see how it would make any difference, as you see yourself the number of women around us who are bribing the boys and taking advantage of the ushers' dishonesty." But she persisted: "They say we can do nothing with the vote," she declared. "We could certainly stop this!"

We were early, about ten minutes before the curtain was raised. I saw that the numbers who were feeing the ushers and passing down in front were a constant irritation to my friend the suffragist. So, thinking to strengthen her power of resistance, (which I judged to be slight,) again I told her of the disintegrating influence, the guilt of the bribe giver. She squirmed uncomfortably, (both mentally and physically,) and at last I had the joy of seeing her dive deep down into her stocking and fish out the malevolent quarter! "It's cheap at that," she said. "But think of the harm you are doing," said I. "I can go without tea this afternoon," said she, hesitating, alas! not over the boy's soul, but over her own appetite. "That isn't the point at all," said I, tartly. "It's only a quarter," said she, "and I can't hear well, and I won't have my pleasure spoiled"—and with that she had passed me and was soon being ushered into a front seat.

SEPARATED WIFE'S ALLOWANCE.

Parted by Mutual Consent, Husband Asks Whether Half His Income Will Do.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you and some of your readers give an expression of opinion on the following case, and perhaps help a very much perplexed individual to a possible solution? A couple have been married some twelve years, have two children, live and move in what might be called the "upper middle class," and enjoy an income of some $7,500, all of which is contributed by the husband, the woman having no resources of her own. They have "agreed to disagree" and live apart, the wife to keep the children, though the latter are to see their father as often as desired. The question arises in the husband's mind as to what proportion of his income the wife is entitled to. Is she entitled to a sufficient amount to enable her to maintain her present establishment, which means about 75 per cent. of the man's income, or would the husband be justified in reducing her allowance to say 50 per cent., which would mean a removal from her present abode to one less pretentious but not lacking any comfort, and still be in excess of what she was accustomed to before her marriage and for some years after?

Keep in mind that there is no animosity on either side. The man wants to do what is right—no more, no less. They part by mutual agreement, believing they will both be happier and better able to lead useful lives.

Secretive Inventive Geniuses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

So "W. J. L."—always to the point, as I view him—proposes an invention fund, and leaves it, let us say, up to Mr. Carnegie. Quite right, but what about the practicability of the plan? These inventive geniuses are a secretive lot; they treasure their notions as a dog does a bone. Are they likely to go before a Board of Trustees, even for the sake of material wants, and give up what they deem to be their all as the price of their necessities? I fear not, and I fear, consequently, that the workableness of the scheme is up to "W. J. L." Would he as a needy poet, for instance, disclose his theme as the ransom of a famished palate?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read an article in the paper lately of Park Commissioner Stover saying that all owners of vacant lots should allow the boys to play ball. Yesterday I paid a bill of $29 for putting in windows.

HITS NEW CHARTER'S SCHOOL SYSTEM

Abraham Flexner Attacks Mayor Gaynor's Plan to Tie Up Schools with the City's Administration.

INTERFERES WITH TEACHERS

Expert Believes Replacing of Present Board with Paid Members Would Plunge Department Into Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The school system of New York is now to a limited extent independent of the city administration; that is to say, its ultimate authority is a board appointed by the Mayor, which board, once appointed, thenceforth manages the system subject to regulations which leave the initiative in all expert educational matters to the Superintendent, appointed by the board, and his staff. The board is thus quasi-independent of the city administration and the expert staff is quasi-independent of the board.

Mayor Gaynor's charter proposes to make the school system of New York a department of the City Government precisely in the same way as the Fire Department, or the Police Department, or any other department. The argument in favor of the Mayor's proposal depends for its plausibility on analogy. It is very properly urged that the city has the responsibility of educating children just as it has the responsibility of cleaning streets and of preserving public order; and that it derives the money used in education from taxation just as it derives the money used in maintaining the police force or the Fire Department; ergo it is inferred that the schools naturally form a department of the City Government, as do the other functions which have been mentioned above.

Now, if abstract logic were the final and only principle of appeal in all matters relating to the practical conduct of human affairs the above argument might be quite plausible. But as a matter of fact rigid logic cannot alone be permitted to decide questions of efficiency and expediency. The answer, therefore, to the logical argument above set forth is a very plain one. If American municipal government were a solved problem, if our municipalities had shown the capacity to utilize experts properly, we could afford to be thoroughly logical. Some day, when municipal government has found itself, we may be. But now "it is a condition and not a theory that confronts us." In the case of the Fire Department, and of several other departments, cities probably do best by tying up their administration with the Municipal Government; in dealing with the educational system, they don't. No matter whether it ought to work best or not when the educational system is a part of the City Government, as a matter of fact it doesn't. Every American city that has succeeded in improving its public school system has found it absolutely necessary to give that system quasi-independence; every American city that ties up its school system with the general municipal administration finds its school affairs inefficiently conducted. If you make a list of cities where the administration of schools is satisfactory, you will find that their school systems are quasi-independent. If you make a list of cities where school administration is inefficient and unsatisfactory, you will find them more or less openly parts of the political municipal administration. In government and administration, that is good which works; that is bad which does not work. Quasi-independence may look a little illogical, but it works. It has worked, for example, in New York as it has worked in St. Louis and is working in Louisville. Whatever the defects of the New York public education system may still be, they will only be aggravated by a return to a form of administration which merges education into the general Municipal Government.

There is, as a matter of fact, some reason for this. Education is somewhat different from other municipal activities. The Police Department and the Fire Department are business propositions. They are maintained for the purpose of rendering a service which an ordinary person can understand and judge about. They can therefore be run as well as any other municipal function directly under the Mayor and other constituted authorities. Education involves two distinct sides to a much greater extent—the business side and the expert side. In order that a proper differentiation between these two may be made, there must be sympathetic distribution of responsibility between the non-expert board, charged with the business administration, with building schoolhouses, heating them, lighting them, deciding on general lines of policy, &c., and the expert educators who are bound to have final power in the choosing of teachers, in the making of courses of study, &c. When a school system stands a little to one side, it has proved comparatively easy to select a board which will appoint thoroughly competent educational experts and then leave them to attend to what is explicitly educational. Where the entire system has been intimately a part of the city administration this has not proved feasible. Interference in the appointment of teachers and in strictly educational management has taken place, in consequence of which the entire system has been demoralized.

These same considerations apply with equal force to the proposal to pay the members of the School Board so that they may give their entire time to their school duties. It is perfectly obvious that this proposal involves a misconception of the relation of the School Board to the school system. It is once more false reasoning on the basis of an analogy. Because a paid body of Police Commissioners is needed to conduct the police force, it does not follow that a paid body of School Trustees is needed to conduct the school system. For, once more, the policing of New York is a simple business proposition, whereas the educational system involves a business and a technical side. The business part is distinctly subsidiary, is capable of being attended to by public-spirited and intelligent citizens who give a portion of their time to the opportunity to serve the public—and a town can do nothing more wholesome than to provide such unpaid opportunities for rendering public service. If the School Trustees are salaried men, the line of distinction between school administration and educational policy will disappear, and the schools of New York will be run on both sides by political appointees, instead of as now by business men in what pertains to business and by educators in what pertains to education.

The proper relationship between a school system and the School Board is a good deal like the proper relationship between a university and its Board of Regents. The Board of Regents determines, in conference with the Faculty of the university, its general lines of policy, and ratifies appointments; but, after appointing the President, it has no originating power on the educational side, nor does it wish it. Meanwhile, it manages the finances and provides for the physical needs of the plant. Its function is highly important, and its effectiveness is great by reason of its limitations. The President and Faculty, on the other hand, like the Superintendent, Principals, and teachers of the public school system of New York, decide on appointments, originate educational suggestions, and are assisted by the necessity of conference with the Trustees as a body. The changes proposed in Mayor Gaynor's charter are all in the direction of obliterating these important working distinctions. It is perfectly clear that the results of experience and not the supposed logical analogy ought to guide us in deciding the points involved. For the analogy is after all apparent rather than real.

BARNARD STUDENTS IN A MARTIAL PLAY

FIRST TIME BY AMATEURS

Ambitious Efforts Well Carried Out—Two Performances Will Be Given To-day.

In the Brinckerhoff Theatre at Barnard College yesterday afternoon and evening the undergraduates gave the opening performances of their annual play, when Percy Mackaye's "Jeanne d'Arc" had its first presentation in the hands of amateurs. The auditorium was all too small for those who sought admission, but the play will be repeated this afternoon at 2:15 and again this evening at 8:15.

It called for ambitious effort for the Barnard girls, who turn player folk for a brief season every Spring, to stage this moving drama of another age and another people, which has in it so much of the martial. It is easy enough for a group of girls or a group of boys to produce a modern comedy of manners, where the incongruities of unfamiliar costume, when apparent, only add to the general fun. But this play of the maid is a serious play. It has its moments of great spiritual intensity, it has its stirring speeches, and there is a background of warriors in clanking armor and of streaming banners. The girls could not make capital of their appearance in masculine attire, and they did not. The illusion was maintained sufficiently for the audience to watch with undisturbed interest the unfolding of the story of the maid of Domremy who led the army of France.

Flushed with their success, the people behind the curtain seemed to enjoy it no less than those in front, where the applause was vigorous, and after the fourth act the little pages who walked with the King at the coronation fairly staggered from the footlights so burdened were they with flowers for the cast.

The success of the production was in no small measure a personal success for Constance von Wahl, who was the Maid. Graceful, comely, and blessed with a pleasing voice, she played the leading part with fine intelligence. In a professional performance the sweet femininity of Jeanne d'Arc would stand out by contrast with the gruff and bearded men who were her companions at arms. It made Miss von Wahl's interpretation yesterday all the more of a task that she could not rest upon such a contrast.

Dorothy Cheesman was skillfully effective as the Dauphin. She played with spirit and she played with subtlety. She caught the wistfulness of the "little King." Katherine Gay, as Jean, Duc d'Alençon, who loved the Maid, handled a difficult part with marked ability, while Miss Lowther as La Hire so cleverly assumed deep masculine tones that every speech was greeted by a subdued ripple of enthusiasm and surprise from the girls in the audience.

The presentation of the scenes that called for a full stage pointed to good stage management. The peasant dance, on which the curtain rose for the first act, was gayly done, and unexpectedly effective was the big, cheering crowd that followed the Maid and the King newly crowned Charles VII. as they passed out of the church in Rheims.

There had been such painstaking rehearsing that there were few hitches, no breaks, no uncomfortable pauses to stir either the sympathies or the humor of the girls in front, but of course an amateur performance would not be an amateur performance unless at least one stage hand should blunder into a scene. This time, as the curtains parted on the scene before the walls of Troyes, there among the priests and the soldiers was a stage hand or a stage manager or some important functionary, not in shirt sleeves as tradition demands, but very captivating in a blue gingham apron. She dashed into the wings, speeded by a subdued chorus of amusement.

MISS SANFORD TO WED BARON

Wealthy St. Louis Divorcee Will Marry Von Schrader, Clerk, Also Divorced.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 21.—Baron Gustav Friedrich Carl von Schrader and Miss Irene Sanford, both divorced, will be married June 1. Announcement of their engagement was made to-day. They became acquainted four years ago, while the Baron was awaiting action on his suit for divorce.

Miss Sanford was divorced several years ago from Benjamin Leslie Behr, who lives now in Chicago, and whose marriage to Miss Edith Lehmann, a Chicago heiress to $20,000,000, is announced to take place a few days before his former wife's. Miss Sanford got her maiden name with the decree. She is a daughter of Mrs. Louisa Berthold Sanford of 4,218 West Pine Boulevard, and has an independent fortune.

After the wedding the Baron and his bride will tour Europe six weeks and will visit the castle on the Rhine his mother gave him, the name of which translated means "beauty spot." Miss Sanford is a Catholic, but because of the fact that she is a divorced woman she cannot be married in the Church.

When the Baron came to the United States he found work in a concrete factory. Later he came to St. Louis and got a position with the 'Frisco Railroad, starting at $75 a month.

Baron von Schrader said to-night he expected to continue his work as a clerk in the 'Frisco offices.

"Every one who amounts to anything in this country works," he said. "It is not so in Germany, and when I first came here I could hardly bring myself to stoop to money getting, but I have got over that. I came to America to get a divorce from my wife.

Mrs. Moore will be attended by her niece, Miss Mary Winthrop Wheelwright of Boston, Mass., and her nephew, Kintzing Blyth Emmons, who will act as pages. Only relatives and a few intimate friends have been asked to the ceremony.

The couple's engagement was announced about four weeks ago.

'LONDON FOLLIES' NEARLY STARTS RIOT

Audience at Weber's Ridicules a Burlesque on "The Balkan Princess" by Incompetent Actors.

NATALIE ALT TO RESCUE

Her Singing, as Dresden China Figure, Stills Guffaws of Laughter—Company in Pierrot Costumes.

A riot of ridicule almost came about at Weber's Theatre last night before the "London Follies" company got through with their performance. The audience did not like the show. The first part of it was accepted with perfunctory applause, to be sure, but the second part, a burlesque on a musical comedy, roused the people in the house, especially those who had paid for their seats, to a frenzy of laughter that came very near getting the better of their sense of decorum. The third section of the entertainment, a Lambs Club gambol, was saved by the cleverness of one young woman, and the fine quality of her voice.

It has been explained that the "London Follies" company is not, and has no connection with, Pelissier's organization that is playing at the Apollo, in London. The explanation will not be necessary again. This troupe is composed of Norman A. Blume, who is said to have been with Pelissier; George E. Mack, Charles Olcott, Agostino Baci, Natalie Alt, Laura Jaffray, Gladys Archbutt, and Helen Lalor. They are all rather good looking, especially the women, and they are all supposed to be specialists. Last night it seemed as if they had, for the most part, been deprived of the particular specialty for which they had been trained.

It all began with a sort of minstrel first part, with the stage set in black and white, with a greenish sort of background, and the performers dressed in black and white Pierrot costumes. It looked promising. Eight individual songs were given and two concerted numbers. Natalie Alt's voice and manner and personality made "In Moonlight Land" worthy of the sincere applause it got, and George Mack was favorably received in his topical song of "Everything Has Been Pleasant Up to Now." The title of his song was prophetic, however. Charles Olcott did a specialty at the piano, in which he burlesqued musical comedy, and that was not bad, by contrast.

Then came the second part, an alleged burlesque on "The Balkan Princess." Charity forbids the printing of the names of those who took part, and the programme fails to distinguish which Charles Brown was guilty of the book and lyrics. Several malicious souls in the orchestra tried to fasten the blame on George Broadhurst, who was there with a paid ticket, but Mr. Broadhurst was laughing too hard to realize it. The courage of the performers is to be commended, for they carried the thing to the bitter, bitter end in spite of prolonged misplaced applause and guffaws of laughter. In the lobby, after this part of the show, some one recalled the Cherry sisters with a tone of regret.

Then came the last part, "The Land of Delft," a former Lambs Club gambol sketch, written by Joseph Herbert and with music by Arthur Weld. Even the general incompetency of the company could not entirely spoil the daintiness of the lines and lyrics, or the tunefulness of the music, but by this time the audience was in the humor for unpleasantness. Applause and laughter grew louder and more frequent as the thing went on, until Miss Alt, in the costume of a Dresden china figure, came on the scene. She began to sing, and the little riot that was being started was stilled, and the people sank back in their seats with an expression of real enjoyment.

Miss Alt was honestly encored, and she knew it, and was called upon to bow several times before the piece was allowed to finish itself with a fall of the curtain that, not many years ago, used to fall and rise again upon Weber & Fields burlesques, played by Weber & Fields's clever people.

Between the first and second parts of the performance several bouquets were passed across the footlights.

Sightless Actors, Musicians, Dancers, and Athletes at Metropolitan Exhibit.

The Blind Workers' Exhibition will be opened next Wednesday night in the Metropolitan Opera House by President Taft. Blind men from all parts of the country are going to attend, but the novel portions of the programme will appeal more to the general seeing public. Visitors may be shaved by a blind barber and dictate letters to a blind stenographer.

Picked athletic teams, girls as well as boys, from the schools for the blind will compete in basket ball, track games, and gymnastic exhibitions. Blind school children will give classic and folk dances. Blind boys will appear in scenes from "The Merchant of Venice," and a blind quartet from Boston will play chamber music. A blind girl from Pennsylvania will give a recital on the organ every afternoon and evening.

There will be a comprehensive exhibit of the work done by the blind in all sorts of handicrafts. A model schoolroom for the blind will be shown.

Gov. and Mrs. Dix will attend the opening of the exhibition with President Taft, and so will Mayor Gaynor and former Gov. Charles E. Hughes. Mr. Taft will be introduced by Joseph H. Choate and will make an address. Senator Gore, the blind Senator from Oklahoma, will also speak.

LAST DAY OF THE CIRCUS.

The Great Show Moves Across the Bridge to Brooklyn To-night.

There will be sorrow in many a small heart to-day, for it is the last day of the circus at the Garden. This has been one of the most successful metropolitan seasons the Barnum & Bailey show has had. To-night at 11 o'clock the circus procession will begin to move out of the Garden. It will go down Fourth Avenue, Lafayette and Canal Streets, across the Manhattan Bridge, through Bridge, Fulton, and Hoyt Streets, Atlantic Avenue and Third Avenue, Brooklyn, to Third Street, where it will enter the brand new city of canvas already erected off Fifth Avenue, which is at once the Summer and traveling home of the show.

Meanwhile at the Garden there is great rejoicing among the circus folk, for they feel that in another day they will be really at home, and they never have that feeling when they are in the Garden or any other permanent structure. Their happiness will not be quite complete, however, until another week has passed, because it will not be until then that they can go to bed in the show train, where they say they sleep sounder and longer than they can in any stationary apartment.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Daniel Dore has been added to the staff of Musical Directors of the Folies Bergere, that is to open next Thursday night.

Lillian Graham, a seventeen-year-old dancer, has been engaged by Lee Harrison for the new musical comedy, "The Red Rose," that is to open at the Garrick Theatre, Philadelphia on May 2. She will have the ingenue role.

Some of the features of the programme for the benefit in aid of the Stage Children's Fund to be given at the Broadway Theatre on April 30, are Robert Mantell and Marie Booth Russell in a scene from a Shakespearean play, Laura Nelson Hall in the supper scene from "Everywoman," and numbers from "The Balkan Princess," the Winter Garden, and "The Hen Pecks."

CHANCE FOR OPERA PUPILS.

Metropolitan to Give Musical Art Institute Students Small Roles.

The proposed affiliation between the Metropolitan Opera House and the Institute of Musical Art, which was announced by Mr. Gatti-Casazza shortly before the opera company went on tour, was described in detail yesterday by Frank Damrosch, the director of the Institute.

"In Vienna and Paris," said Mr. Damrosch, "a graduating pupil is assured a chance to sing at the Opera, at least in small parts. Those who graduate with honors have a chance almost immediately, in some cases, to sing more important roles. This has not been true in this country, and as a result American girls have either studied abroad or have been forced in most instances, when they wished to embrace an operatic career, to sing in small opera houses in the European provincial cities.

"Now, many a good voice is ruined in this way because the singers in these small theatres are compelled to appear in a great many parts not suited to their voices; they are compelled also to learn parts in a few days.

"We have in the Institute here Mr. Giradaut and Mme. Milka Ternina, who prepare pupils for the operatic stage. It has not been possible hitherto to promise these pupils anything more than a chance to find something to do in continental theatres.

"Now, thanks to the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company and Mr. Gatti-Casazza, the best pupils here will have a chance to begin with small roles at the Metropolitan Opera House, such as the pages in 'Tannhäuser' and the Valkyries. Gradually if they are fitted to do better work they may be permitted to understudy principal parts.

"All the pupils in the opera classes here are to be permited to attend rehearsals at the Metropolitan Opera House, and Messrs. Gatti-Casazza and Hertz have joined the advisory board of the Institute.

"The opera classes are naturally extremely limited. Mme. Ternina does thorough work with her pupils. As a result she can work with but twelve pupils a year. The cost of tuition in the school is merely nominal, of course, when the cost of the pupil is considered to the school. The student pays, in fact, about one-seventh of what he costs the school.

"Mme. Ternina has kept pupils at work for a solid year on exercises; another year on simple songs; next year she tells me some of these pupils will be ready for more advanced work.

"The advantages of the new affiliation are mutual, of course. It will be a great advantage to the Opera House to be able to recruit its forces for small parts from native singers when hitherto most of these singers have been brought from abroad. And in the end this affiliation may result in something like the system in vogue abroad where all the famous singers were once conservatory pupils."

HASTY PUDDING SHOW HERE

With Kermit Roosevelt in the Chorus and the Colonel in the Audience.

About 1,000 Harvard graduates and their friends were present at the performance of the Hasty Pudding Club's musical comedy, "The Crystal Gazer," at the Hotel Astor last night.

It is the first time the club has produced one of its annual plays in this city since 1895, when "Prosperina," by Winthrop Ames, now Director of The New Theatre, was given. The audience, which included Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt, greeted it enthusiastically and took advantage of every opportunity to laugh at the college boys' jokes and applaud the choruses.

Kermit Roosevelt, who is a Harvard junior, was in the chorus. He was one of the dinner-jacketed "guests" of the newly rich, title-loving Mrs. Higgins in the first act, and he was one of the hoyderish "Daughters of Power" in the second act. The song "Business of Jest," which the four "Daughters of Power" and the "Business Manager" sing in the second act is the most musical and full of "stage business" in the whole play and the vocal and gymnastic efforts of young Roosevelt and his fellow actors came in for an unusual measure of applause.

Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt had seats in the rear of the big ballroom and held an informal reception in the promenade at the rear of the ballroom between the acts.

The musical comedy itself seemed to impress the audience as being well up to the average of college dramatics. Mrs. Henry Higgins, (W. S. Seamans, Jr.) the wife of a wealthy Oshkosh merchant, has what in undergraduate parlance is sometimes described as "oodles and oodles of money." She also has a beautiful daughter, (E. P. Pierce,) whom she wants to marry off to the fortune hunting and physically insignificant Duke de Verche, (L. H. P. Chapin.) The daughter, of course, wants to marry a broad-shouldered American college youth.

What heroine of a college comedy ever didn't? The college man, who is impersonated by Wetmore Hodges, follows his sweetheart to the picturesque cliffs of Posillipo, where the second act takes place, and despite the machinations of "Ozab, the Crystal Gazer," whose part is taken by J. C. Savery, ultimately wins her hand.

Mr. Savery is the author of the book and lyrics of the comedy. The music was written by Bowen Barker assisted by R. C. Foster and F. W. Gilbert, who are all Harvard seniors. R. C. Benchley's impersonation of Miss Mayme O'Brien, a Titian-tressed hairdresser who is constantly swallowing her chewing gum, won an unusual reward of laughter and applause.

U. S. S. Michigan Sailors as Minstrels.

The ministrel and vaudeville company of the United States steamship Michigan will give a performance at the Grand Central Palace this evening for the benefit of the Naval Relief Society. The company is composed of non-commissioned officers and sailors of the battleship, and the entertainment will consist of a minstrel first part, a series of vaudeville specialties and a short comedy called "Easy Money." The same performance was given at the Norfolk, Va., Navy Yard shortly before the ship sailed to join the fleet at New York.

Illustrated Lecture on Mendelssohn.

A French illustrated lecture on Mendelssohn will be given to-night at 8 o'clock at the French Y. M. C. A., 109 West Fifty-fourth Street, by M. F. Meerbergen. Several musical selections will be played after the lecture by the orchestra of the French Branch.

Plays to Aid Jewish Working Girls.

Two plays will be given at the Lyceum Theatre Sunday evening for the benefit of the Junior League of the Jewish Working Girls' Vacation Society. The first will be a one-act modern drama, and the second a thirteenth century morality play, elaborated by Alice Minnie Herts. Jacob Heniger, formerly stage director of the Children's Educational Theatre, will have charge of the stage.

SUIT OVER 'THE PIPER' HEARD

Justice Hendrick to Decide, Though He Likes Miss Matthison in Title Role.

Edward M. Shepard appeared before Supreme Court Justice Hendrick yesterday to argue for the injunction sought against The New Theatre and Winthrop Ames by Walter Hampden Dougherty. Dougherty, known on the stage as Walter Hampden, seeks to prevent the starring of Edith Wynne Matthison in the title part of "The Piper," which is intended, he says, for a man, and also any production of the play with "an inferior company" and under the auspices of Ames, rather than that of The New Theatre.

Justice Hendrick said he had seen the play with Miss Matthison in the role, and had been favorably impressed. He suggested that the argument be heard before some other Justice, but Mr. Shepard and J. Hampden Dougherty, father of the plaintiff, said that they believed they would receive fair treatment from Justice Hendrick.

Mr. Shepard propounded several questions to William Klein, attorney for Mr. Ames and The New Theatre. In answer to them Mr. Klein declared that thirty-two members of the company which presented the play in this city were in the cast of the road company. A letter from Paul D. Cravath, one of The New Theatre Directors, to Mr. Ames was put in evidence. This, Dougherty contends, is a cession of The New Theatre's rights in the play in violation of his agreement with The New Theatre. Mr. Ames holds that this is simply a letter of instruction.

Justice Hendrick announced at the conclusion of the argument that the one point he would consider was whether or not Ames was the agent of The New Theatre in respect to the performance of "The Piper" on the road.

SAGE CLUB IN SUFFRAGE PLAY

Women of the Past, Present, and Future Seen in Frills, Hobble, and Gown.

Woman suffrage invaded the City History Club last night, when at the annual exercises in Berkeley Hall, 21 West Forty-fourth Street, the members of the Margaret Olivia Slocum Sage Club gave a play, in which they showed the woman of the past in cap and frills, the woman of the present in hobble skirt, and the future woman in business suit, cap, and gown. The woman of the future wanted to vote; the woman of the past said home was the place for her. The woman of the present was content, for she said: "We have the fun of fighting for the vote, and that is the best part."

Dr. George F. Kunz, First Vice President, presided and made an address, and Mrs. A. Barton Hepburn, Second Vice President, awarded the senior banners and certificates. The juniors and primaries will have their awards and exercises this afternoon at 3 in the same place. Notebooks and competitive essays are on exhibition in the City History Club room.

LULU GLASER WANTS DIVORCE

Sues Ralph Herz, Star of "Dr. De Luxe," Who Will Not Contest.

Papers in a divorce suit brought by Mrs. Ralph Herz (Lulu Glaser) against Ralph Herz, the comedian, who is playing in "Dr. De Luxe" at the Knickerbocker Theatre, were served yesterday on Mr. Herz. Mr. Herz accepted the service, and said last night that he would not contest the suit.

Neither Mr. Herz nor the lawyers would say on what grounds the suit was being brought. The separation of the couple came last Fall, when Miss Glaser was starring in "The Girl and the Kaiser," and Mr. Herz was a featured performer in "Madame Sherry." Several attempts were made by Mr. Herz to bring about a reconciliation, but he was unsuccessful.

"Pomander Walk" Benefit, $4,103.

Complete returns from the sale of tickets and programmes for the children's performance of "Pomander Walk," given at Wallack's Theatre last Thursday afternoon, show gross receipts of $4,103.50. The seats sold by Mrs. James Speyer brought $3,968.50, while the rest of the money came from the programmes and the sale of the autographed manuscript of the prologue by Louis N. Parker. The money will go to St. Mary's Free Hospital for Children.

DEFENDS BIG FEES PAID TO OLLESHEIMER

TEST IN HIS VOTE ON LOAN

Whether He Knew Insurance Policies Were to be Collateral—Fees the Finance Committee Members Get.

There was some excitement around the offices of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company yesterday, following the publication in THE TIMES of a story telling how Henry Ollesheimer, President of the Metropolitan Bank, and a Director and member of the Finance Committee of the Metropolitan Life, was in process of receiving $38,330.82 in commissions on policies issued by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to secure a loan which Mr. Ollesheimer voted as a member of the Finance Committee of the company. The story made it clear that the loan was secured additionally by real estate mortgages covering property which represented an ample margin for such a transaction, and also quoted from the report of the examination of the Metropolitan Life by the State Insurance Department, to the effect that "the Finance Committee approved the loan without referring in any way to the policies."

Early in the day Haley Fiske, Vice President of the Metropolitan Life, sent the following letter to The Evening Post:

> To the Editor of The Evening Post.
>
> Sir: THE TIMES, in a story published this morning regarding the report of the Superintendent of Insurance on the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and its relations to Mr. Ollesheimer, suppresses some important facts, which would have taken the sting out of its headlines. They are these. Mr. Hotchkiss's report shows, in addition to what THE TIMES states, the following facts:
>
> (1.) That the matter of insurance was not presented with the application for the loan nor made as an inducement to procure the loan. The minutes of the Finance Committee show that nothing was put before the committee respecting the insurance, when the loan was passed, and the members of the Finance Committee have put on record that they were ignorant, when they passed the loan, that there was any insurance intended.
>
> (2.) The department's appraisal fixed the value of the mortgaged property at over three times the amount of the loan.
>
> (3.) The purpose of the insurance was only suggested to the Hamburgers, who were customers and friends of his, by Mr. Ollesheimer, as a sinking fund by which they could meet the loan when due. The mortgage ran for ten years, and the firm took out insurance under the ten-year endowment plan. The effect, of course, is to pay the loan at maturity, if the insured live, and to pay in part the amount of the loan before it is due, in case of the death of any of the insured. We had a transaction of this kind years ago involving a million dollars. In that case, however, another company made the loan, and we got the insurance.
>
> (4.) There is no doubt, and the correspondence shows, that the Treasurer at one time thought he could save commissions on this business. The premiums, of course, provide for the commissions, and the company does not anticipate any such saving; but the Treasurer hoped that no claim would be made.
>
> (5.) Mr. Ollesheimer was legally entitled to the commissions; he claimed them; the matter of his procuring insurance and receiving commissions was presented to the Board of Directors, and it authorized the payment of commissions to Mr. Ollesheimer. No action of this kind by the Board would have been necessary except for the statute requiring the authority of the Board before payments are made in any one year to any one person amounting to five thousand dollars.
>
> (6.) At the time of these transactions there was nothing in the practice of the companies or rulings of the department to prevent Directors from being agents. At present the rule of the department is not to license agents who have other occupations.

Questions to Mr. Ollesheimer.

Yesterday afternoon a TIMES reporter who had not seen the letter of Mr. Fiske in The Evening Post called at the office of Mr. Ollesheimer, in the Metropolitan Bank, to seek further information about the loans and insurance commissions. Mr. Ollesheimer produced from his desk a typewritten statement, which he gave to the reporter. It began in the same words as the letter of Mr. Fiske. After reading the first two paragraphs, the reporter asked:

"Were the documents relating to the loan placed before the Finance Committee when it approved it?"

The reply was in the affirmative.

"Did those documents include the letter of Treasurer Ecker of the Metropolitan Life to the Assistant Secretary in San Francisco, dated July 16, 1907, four days after the proposal for the loan was first made to you as President of the Metropolitan Bank, in which letter the real estate security and the insurance policy security were mentioned in succeeding sentences?"

Mr. Ollesheimer decided at this point that he would rather have the Treasurer talk than undertake to answer further questions himself. He therefore took back the copy of the statement, which was not in the form of a letter, and conducted the reporter to Mr. Ecker's office, up stairs. Mr. Ecker and Mr. Ollesheimer conversed by themselves for five or ten minutes. Then Mr. Ollesheimer disappeared, and did not return.

THE TIMES man explained to Mr. Ecker that he had begun to read a statement accusing THE TIMES of suppressing facts in its Metropolitan Life story, and that if such a statement were to be made public he would like to read it through further, to be able to question Mr. Ecker intelligently upon all the points raised by it. Mr. Ecker did not produce the statement, but said that if THE TIMES wanted the facts he would state them. He then proceeded to state the substance of the statements made in Mr. Fiske's letter.

The Admitted Facts.

A conversation of more than an hour followed, in the course of which it was conceded by Mr. Ecker that the following statements were true:

That the insurance law makes it a misdemeanor for any officer, Director, or employe of an insurance company to be interested as principal, agent, beneficiary, trustee, or co-trustee in any purchase, sale, or loan made by the company.

That in the story as printed in THE TIMES no criticism was made of the action of the Metropolitan Life in making the loan, either on the ground of policy or of the adequacy of the collateral, but that facts were stated which left it open to inference whether Mr. Ollesheimer had violated the section of the insurance law in question.

That this inference rested on the following chain of circumstances:

That Mr. Ollesheimer knew when he approached the Metropolitan Life about taking the loan that the purchasers proposed to secure it in part by insurance policies.

That before the Finance Committee acted and as a part of the preliminary investigation, Mr. Ecker wrote to the assistant secretary of the company in California, mentioning the real estate security and the insurance policy security in the same letter.

That the Finance Committee, with Mr. Ollesheimer present and voting, approved the loan between July 16, when the letter just referred to was written, and the end of that month.

That on July 29 the assistant secretary in San Francisco wrote to Mr. Ecker saying that "in the event of anything coming from the Hamburger matter, I will handle the business myself, so that the business can be put on the books without any cost to the company."

That on Aug. 6 Mr. Ecker wrote back approving this course, saying "this business ought to go on the books without any expense as a commission."

That on Sept. 24 Mr. Ecker wrote to San Francisco: "Have the applications written. Give credit for the business to Mr. Henry Ollesheimer. The commission if any to be paid here."

That on Sept. 27 a license was issued to Mr. Ollesheimer making him an agent; than on Oct. 1 a letter was written to him by "I. J. Cahan, Manager," stating his rate of commissions.

That on Dec. 20 the Directors authorized the officers of the company to make a contract with Mr. Ollesheimer making him an agent of the company in procuring business, and that on Dec. 23, the first commission, $19,165.15 was paid.

Law's Bearing Discussed.

Mr. Ecker agreed with the statement that the question whether Mr. Ollesheimer was inside or outside of the law when he voted for the loan at the meeting of the Finance Committee in July depended upon whether the connection of the real estate collateral and the life policy collateral which had existed in his mind when he first approached the company on the subject was dismissed from his mind during the interval which covered his action as a member of the Finance Committee, and then reappeared again when he took steps to have the policies credited to him and became an agent of the company in connection with this transaction. Mr. Ecker admitted further that the opinion of counsel had been taken, since the question ran close to the edge of the insurance law; that the transaction probably attracted the attention of the Insurance Department Examiner for this reason, and that the same circumstances made it a natural subject for publication in a newspaper.

It was finally agreed that the first paragraph in the statement which had been handed to THE TIMES reporter accusing THE TIMES of suppressing facts should be cut out, and the beheaded statement be printed in connection with whatever facts were printed from other sources, it being understood that the statement was to be attributed to Mr. Ollesheimer and not to the Metropolitan Life, and that the statement should not be given out in its original form to any other newspaper. The publication of the entire statement as a letter of Haley Fiske to The Evening Post followed.

Finance Committee Fees.

The report of the Insurance Department examiner on the Metropolitan Life contains facts relating to the Finance Committee of that company, particularly relating to its system of fees.

The members of the Finance Committee are T. L. James, J. P. Knapp, M. J. O'Brien, T. H. Hubbard, and Henry Ollesheimer. The report states the fee system as follows: "Meetings held at home office, $20; meetings held to cut coupons, $25; meetings held to count bonds, $50; meetings held in own office, $10; conferences by telephone and correspondence, $10."

ALLOWED TO USE FIRE BOXES

Court Won't Interfere with Privilege to Manhattan Alarm Company.

James Foy's taxpayer's suit to restrain Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo of the Fire Department from allowing the Manhattan Fire Alarm Company to attach its boxes to the city's fire alarm system was thrown out of court yesterday by the Appellate Division. The Manhattan Fire Alarm Company has been connecting its wires, where they were placed in private buildings, directly with the Fire Department alarm system. In its opinion the Appellate Division held:

"It cannot be disputed that the more speedy method of sending in alarms of fire is preferable not only for the earlier opportunity of extinguishing the fire, but for the equally important purpose of preventing its spread to other property." The court found that the private company was maintaining overhead wires contrary to law, but no question on that point was presented to it for consideration.

WOMEN TO AID WORK OF HEBREW CHARITIES

NEEDS ARE $150,000 A YEAR

Mr. Sulzberger Finds Deserving Ones Getting Only 10 Cents Per Capita, Which He Regards as Inadequate.

A Board of Patronesses to assist in the work of the United Hebrew Charities was formed yesterday afternoon at Delmonico's, with Mrs. Leopold Stern, Chairman of the meeting, named for President. The other officers were: Vice Presidents—Mrs. Morris Loeb and Mrs. J. B. Greenhut; Treasurer—Mrs. Isaac Friedenheit; Secretary—Mrs. Sigmond Sterner. Another meeting will be held in two weeks to complete the organization. There were fifty members present. Leopold Plaut, President of the Hebrew Charities, was there, and he said that he expected there would be 500 when the board came together for its first Fall meeting, in October. Mr. Plaut gave an outline of the work it was hoped the women would be able to do.

"We need money for our work," he said, "and we want the women to get in touch with their friends on a business basis. Frequently money is left in bequests for charitable purposes, the designation being left to the discretion of the executors. In cases of that kind the women can advise its use for our work.

"Where they have relatives or friends in business, clothes or shoes that are shop worn are useful, or anything in the way of household furnishings and baby carriages which have outlived their usefulness to their owners."

"Even in the Palestine era the work was not as important as it is now, for we have more Jews in New York than there were in Palestine," said Mrs. Stern. "The perception and delicacy of women make them acceptable in charitable work."

Cyrus L. Sulzberger, ex-President and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the United Hebrew Charities, said the women were not doing enough work. Mrs. Stern took exception to this at the close of his remarks. She said the women were doing a great deal of work, but they were ready and willing to do more.

"The trouble with you is not lack of interest," said Mr. Sulzberger to the women, "but lack of imagination. When this terrible fire came recently it was painted for you in vivid colors, and more money came rolling in than was needed for the sufferers. When a man dies after a lingering illness of some incurable disease, those he leaves behind are as much in need of assistance, but it does not appeal to the imagination."

He told the women that it was said that there were a large number of people who were trying to make their living out of those that were better off, but that this was not the case. He said that there were only a quarter as many families demanding relief as before the great tide of Russian immigration began pouring in, and a smaller number of cases to relieve than ten years ago.

"Only," he said, "now when a family appeals to us it is helpless, and we need more money in proportion. Women are left with a family of children, and if there are five the oldest will be only 4 years old, all little ones, and there are many cases of tuberculosis. We have now in round numbers 1,000 cases on our books, and they should have $100 more a year than we are giving them to support them adequately. We need $150,000 each year, and it is your business as well as mine. At the rate we are supporting them they get 10 cents per capita a day. If you were individually supporting that family you could not give them as little as that; you would say it was not decent; and yet, because you have the officers of the society between you and the poor as buffers, you will not make it possible for us to give more. This is a woman's job, for it is largely for women, and the women do not give enough.

"I have always taken money for the charities where I could get it. I have not been particular where it came from. This is work the women can do. They should charge themselves with the care of their sisters. We have set many families up in business—some men with pushcarts, women in notion or delicatessen stores. The women can help here with their patronage and their advice. You can't do much actual work until after the Summer vacation, but you can enlist your friends."

Morris D. Waldman said that while other charitable organizations were getting appropriations from the city for their work, the Hebrew Charities did the work the other societies did not do, and without assistance except voluntary contributions.

"We care for more orphans than the Jewish orphan asylums, take care of more invalids and tuberculosis patients, and care for more aged than are in the homes for the aged."

He told of the workroom for which Louis Stern was responsible, where poor women made shirts and neckwear and were made partially or entirely self-supporting.

Among the women invited to form the Board of Patronesses yesterday were Mrs. Michael Dreicer, Mrs. S. R. Guggenheimer, Mrs. Mortimer Menken, Mrs. Adolph Lewisohn, Mrs. David Mindesheimer, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, and Mrs. Ferdinand Sulsberger.

PROTEST AGAINST LEE.

Civil Service Reform Association Calls Appointment Purely Political.

The Civil Service Reform Association has taken up the recent appointment by Park Commissioner Stover, with Mayor Gaynor's sanction, of William J. Lee as Supervisor of Recreation in Manhattan and Richmond, and registered an emphatic protest against it. Its disapproval is expressed in a letter to the Municipal Civil Service Commission, and says in part:

> We submit in regard to the appointment of Mr. Lee, that the certificate filed by Commissioner Stover with the Municipal Civil Service Commission does not contain sufficient evidence that such appointment was made for merit and fitness. The previous employments of Mr. Lee in the public service do not point in any way to qualifications for the position which he now occupies. The fact that he has served as "an instructor of athletics with expert knowledge of calisthenics" is insufficient in itself to justify his selection for a post the qualifications for which demand much more than that the incumbent should have knowledge of physical instruction. Gymnasiums in connection with the playgrounds are but a part and, we are informed, a minor part of the playground development. We have ascertained that Mr. Lee has been employed as a boxing teacher and formerly was the sparring partner of a well-known professional boxer, but careful inquiry among persons connected with athletics has failed to elicit any information showing that Mr. Lee is qualified by previous experience to serve even as a general instructor in athletics.
> We desire to call your attention to statements contained in the public press at the time the appointment was announced, to the effect that Mr. Lee was a lieutenant of Ernest Harvier, who runs the Democratic Union and that the appointment was made on Mr. Harvier's recommendation. Further, that Mr. Lee has at various times attempted to wrest the leadership of the Eleventh Assembly District from Senator McManus and that he is an iron worker by trade. Inquiry among persons familiar with politics in this city has led to the verification of the information given in regard to Mr. Lee's political activity.
> We submit further that the certificate furnished by the Park Commissioner in accordance with Rule V. of the Civil Service Rules in regard to the qualifications of William J. Lee for the position of Supervisor of Recreation is wholly insufficient to justify a ruling that the appointment was made for merit and fitness, and to offset prima facie evidence that the appointment was influenced by political considerations. Your honorable board is charged with the enforcement of the civil service law in this city, and we, therefore, request that Commissioner Stover be notified that his certificate is inadequate to justify the appointment of Mr. Lee and be called upon to furnish additional evidence that the appointment was made for merit and fitness. We further request that the commission conduct an investigation, under the ample powers conferred upon it by Section 125 of the New York Charter, for the purpose of ascertaining whether this appointment was in accordance with or in violation of the provisions of the civil service law.

Mr. Lee's connection with Mr. Harvier is well known among local politicians of both parties. It has been generally understood about the City Hall that he got the place at Mayor Gaynor's suggestion through the appeal of Mr. Harvier.

PRINCETON HOPES TO KEEP VAN DYKE

HIS REPUTATION AN ASSET

Alumni Believe His Departure Would Be a Serious Loss to Princeton—Dr. Van Dyke Silent.

Dr. Henry van Dyke probably will not leave Princeton University, after all. From sources of information close to members of the Princeton Trustees it was learned yesterday that the special committee appointed soon after Dr. van Dyke suprised all Princeton by announcing his retirement from the university is now able to report that it is "encouraged to believe" that the noted teacher, preacher and poet will withdraw his resignation at or before the close of the present session.

The committee named to intercede with Dr. van Dyke is composed of Cleveland H. Dodge of this city, Dr. Finney of Baltimore, and Moses Taylor Pine. All are warm personal friends of Dr. van Dyke. Mr. Dodge is a prominent member of the Presbyterian Church, greatly interested in the religious life and work at Princeton, and a stout supporter of the Y. M. C. A. activities there.

From the start, it was learned yesterday, the committee has realized that it was dealing with a delicate matter. If the subject of Dr. van Dyke's resignation was to be reopened, the committee was convinced that he must be approached only with the utmost tact.

The special committee, with the consent of the leading Trustees, has planned to offer Dr. van Dyke, who until his resignation was professor of English literature, the post of Dean of Religious Instruction and Worship, to be created especially for him.

Efforts have been made by members or representatives of the special committee to obtain from Dr. van Dyke some intimation of his reasons for wanting to leave the university and what the Trustees can do to induce him to remain. To all such emissaries he has so far refrained from saying anything definite, and attempts to get closer to him through intimate friends have hardly been more successful, but it is reported that Mr. Pine's committee is expected to get results, whatever the difficulties.

According to reliable reports, most of the Trustees and the alumni are convinced that Princeton will suffer an almost irreparable loss if he is permitted to leave the university. He has been there since 1900, and is regarded by many of the Trustees and alumni, on account of his literary work, as perhaps the best known man connected with the university and his reputation as one of the university's most valuable assets. On that account, as well as for his class room work, it is said, alumni and Trustees are practically demanding that no stone shall be left unturned to have Dr. van Dyke retained.

It was not possible to learn yesterday just what Dr van Dyke would be expected to do as Dean of Religious Instruction at Princeton, since the university has no theological department. It is supposed that as part of his duties he would have direction of all the religious exercises held at the unversity, and the selection of clergymen to conduct religious services on Sundays. Mr. Pine's committee is expected to make its report at the approaching commencement.

$4,500 FOR A HORSE'S KICK.

A "Wild, Passionate Verdict" Court Calls It and Cuts It Two-thirds.

John La Togala, 15 years old, got a verdict of $4,500 in the Supreme Court, Long Island City, yesterday for injuries due to being kicked in the face by a horse owned by Louis Nadel of Far Rockaway, L. I. The La Togala boy was playing in a lot where the horse was grazing when the horse kicked him, and the only evidence that remained of the injury was a slight scar. On hearing the decision of the jury Justice Stapleton said:

"This is one of those wild, passionate verdicts that are the result of influences other than the testimony. I must say that the jury is somewhat liberal with money belonging to other people."

On hearing the court's comment the attorney for young La Togala said he realized that the verdict was excessive, and said he was willing that it be reduced to $1,500. It was so ordered by the court.

JUDGE GARY STILLS WILD STEEL RUMORS

He Hasn't Heard of Alleged Cut in Prices and Doesn't Know About Other Things Whispered.

THERE IS A DROP IN ORE

Snyder & Co. of Pittsburg Sold 750,000 Tons Under Schedule—Wire Mill Construction Stopped.

Rumors of wide variety affecting the steel trade have been growing in currency in the past few weeks since the falling off in new orders, has been followed by a tendency to once more curtail production. Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, replied in bulletin form to yesterday's batch of stories about which he had been queried. The only report reaching Wall Street which he did not include in his blanket interview was a revival of the old story that the price of steel rails was to be cut from the long-established price of $28 a ton. Standard Bessemer rails have been maintained at this level during the two most marked periods of depression since the formation of the corporation, 1904 and 1908. The Gary special extra yesterday read:

April 21, 1911.

"Will you have anything to say on Birmingham wire mill closing?"

"No."

"Report that independents have cut steel prices 50 cents a ton."

"Have not heard of it and do not believe it."

"Chicago dispatch has it that Passenger Manager Lynch of New York Central lines is to become identified with United States Steel."

"Know nothing of this."

"Will the Steel Corporation cut ore prices 50 cents a ton, as reported?"

"We do not sell ore."

"Is the United States Steel now operating about 70 per cent. of capacity?"

"I think yes."

The report about the Birmingham wire mill referred to was the dispatch from that city printed in THE TIMES yesterday telling of the closing down of construction work at the $3,000,000 plant of the American Steel and Wire Company at Corey, Ala., because of the possibility of the passage of the bill of Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee placing barbed wire on the free list. The plant was to have been completed in August, and would have employed at full capacity about 2,500 men.

Ore prices have been the subject of conferences in New York during the last week and yesterday, before conclusions were announced, the expected cut was precipitated by W. P. Snyder & Co. of Pittsburg, who made a sale of 750,000 tons of Lake Superior ore at 50 cents a ton below last season's price. The sales were in two lots, one covering 200,000 tons of Bessemer ore at $4.25 a ton and 550,000 tons of non-Bessemer Mesaba ore at $3.50 a ton.

WIREWORKS DECIDES TO WAIT.

Menacing Talk in Birmingham Mill District, but Business Goes On.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 21.—While it is reported that numerous iron and steel corporations are threatening to close up shops in the Birmingham district, which is Republican in principle, unless Congressman Oscar Underwood declines to aid in the fight to lower the tariff, but one real blow has been struck. The Southern Steel and Wire Company has closed down its construction work at Corey. Eight hundred men were paid their wages and told that their services were no longer needed. The atmosphere is charged with rumors, but there is no other tangible news.

W. W. Crawford, President of the American Trust and Savings Bank, issued this statement:

"In conversation with an officer of a constituent company of the United States Steel Corporation I gathered that, owing to certain proposed tariff changes, as indicated in House Bill 4,413, the American Steel and Wire Company has decided to discontinue further construction work in this district, due to the fact that Birmingham plants are the most pregnable of any of those controlled by the American Steel and Wire Company. Vessels carrying cotton from Gulf or South Atlantic ports to Europe would be only too glad to return to our shores with the higher finished products of steel as ballast, which would mean an exceedingly favorable freight rate to the European makers of these products.

"Pending the uncertainty regarding the tariff on wire and related products, the steel and wire company felt that it was not in a position to complete the steel and wire plant as originally outlined, and as carried forward until a recent date."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Machines for Making Miners' Igniters Not "Presses"—Other Decisions.

It has been decided by the Board of United States General Appraisers that machines used in making igniters for miners' lamps are not "printing presses" within the meaning of the tariff act of 1909. The issue was raised by W. W. Coe, who objected to the classification of the machines as manufacturers of metal with duty at the rate of 45 per cent.

The machines were invoiced as "printing machines," and are made of metal. These machines are used to apply a mixture of phosphorus in a semi-liquid state to a narrow cotton tape. This tape is covered with the phosphorus in the shape of small dots at intervals of one-half inch, and is used as the igniter in miners' lamps. The protestant while claiming duty under Paragraph 197 was not specific, but General Appraiser Fischer, who writes the decision for the board, says the probable intention was to claim duty at 30 per cent. as "printing presses." The evidence presented was not satisfactory, and the protest was accordingly overruled.

The board has refused to reduce the duty on empty ammonia drums made of iron and imported by B. N. Anderson & Co. They were assessed for duty at 30 per cent. as "cylindrical metal tanks or vessels." The claim is made that the articles are entitled to free entry as drums used for the shipment of acids from the United States." The decision, which is adverse to the contention for exemption, says it was necessary for the importers to show that the drums were actually exported from this country in the shipment of acids, while the identity of the articles reimported should have been established by proof.

F. B. Vandegrift & Co. succeeded in securing a reduction in the assessment made on cast iron wheels invoiced as "spinning gears," and "spinning change wheels." They were classified as "manufactures of metal," at 45 per cent., and were alleged by the importer to be entitled to enter as "machined iron castings" with a tax of one cent a pound. This contention is upheld by the board.

Lower duty has been granted by the board on rough mica importations made by the General Electric Company, the Electrical Construction and Insurance Company, A. A. Pulling, Meirowsky Brothers, the American Mica Company, the Bullock Electric Manufacturing Company, and others. Claims filed by A. Kastor & Brothers, regarding lock-back hunting knives, and Hermann Boker & Co., have been sustained. Boker & Co. made a claim on steel bars.

The claims overruled included Mineral Products Manufacturing Company, and O. G. Hempstead & Son, tungsten-bearing ore; F. W. Myers & Co., and R. L. Ginsburg's Sons Company, scrap metal, and Crocker Brothers, Frank Samuel, and F. H. Shallus, silico-spiegel.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The market, after a morning of uncertainty, showed a strong tendency late, and closing prices were the highest of the day. The opening was rather heavy, and there was selling pressure all the morning. Operators who bought the previous afternoon were disappointed at the cables, and the news from the crops was so optimistic and weather conditions were so favorable that there was a great deal of realizing. After this selling was absorbed there was a strong recovery, helped by reports of large export business again in Manitoba wheat. The sales were reported at about 37 loads, largely from Winnipeg. There were reports of better interior cash demand, and there was a large decrease in Minneapolis stocks—1,275,000 bushels for the week—and predictions of a good decrease in the visible. The crop news was very favorable from Winter wheat sections, and weather conditions were very favorable in the Northwest. Bradstreet's exports for the week were 1,770,000 bushels, and since July 1 98,094,000 bushels, against 120,172,000 bushels last year. World's exports were estimated at 12,170,000 bushels, against 2,032,000 bushels, and 10,832,000 bushels two years ago. The morning cables showed some irregularity in the European markets—some higher and some lower. Australian exports for the week were 1,736,000 bushels, against 1,280,000 bushels the previous week; Indian, 800,000 bushels, against 1,048,000 bushels, and Argentine, 2,824,000 bushels, against 2,720,000 bushels. The Modern Miller report was generally favorable on the condition of the growing wheat crop. There were reports of large flour sales at Montreal for export. Cash wheat was quoted at 96⅝c. for No. 2 red; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.06⅝; No. 2 hard Winter, 59⅝c.; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.02.

CORN.—The market showed evidence of selling pressure during the morning owing to very favorable weather conditions for field work and reports of rather quiet demand. The selling was quite active, and prices declined fully ½c., advancing late, with active covering of shorts, influenced by the strength in wheat and on reports of fair export business at New York—about 10 loads—with advices of quite good bidding at the outports. There were also reports of fair cash demand West. The close was at the top. Bradstreet's exports were only 829,000 bushels, but since July 1 the total has been 43,043,000 bushels, against 24,774,000 bushels last year. There were no Argentine exports for the week. Cash corn was firm, with No. 2 quoted at 58c., f. o. b.

OATS.—The market was moderately active and heavy. There was quite general selling during the morning on very favorable weather conditions for field work, and reports were received of excellent progress with seeding, and also of favorable development of the crop where seeded. Cash oats were firm, and there was further business for export in Canadian oats—about 30,000 bushels. Standard whites were quoted at 39½c.; No. 2 white, 39¾c.; No. 3 white, 38⅞c.

PROVISIONS.—The provision market was somewhat irregular, closing with a small net gain for the day. Hog receipts were moderate. There was some selling early on estimates of increased stocks of product and on reports claiming an increase of 20 per cent. in hog supply, compared with last year. Prices rallied late. Estimates were current West of somewhat increased hog movement next week.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The firm undertone which has been displayed by the oil market for the past few days was again in evidence. Crude oil advices from the South were somewhat steadier, while lard was also higher, these factors tending to discourage bear pressure. The general belief was that refining interests were giving support near the close, but if this was true their purpose was not ostensible, as it was believed that crude could be purchased on a more favorable basis. Offerings, however, were limited, with some nervousness shown by shorts. Exporters reported a better foreign inquiry for new crop months, but otherwise consuming demand was limited. Crude was quoted at 4.97 to 5.07. Future quotations follow:

COTTON.

There was a quieter trade in cotton during the session of yesterday, but operations bore a close resemblance to those recently witnessed. The consensus of opinion was that bulls were utilizing the bulges to reduce their holdings, but nevertheless on the recessions, sufficient support was forthcoming to bring about high records for the movement, while the action of the market also demonstrates the fact that a bear leader is missing, and consequently interests who have been antagonizing the advance for several days have had but little opportunity to cover shorts on a profitable basis.

The tenor of Liverpool advices continues to favor the bulls, and spot sales aggregating to 15,000 bales were reported in the foreign market with private cables to the effect that Manchester was doing a very large business; the official cables from that centre stating that cloths were steady with a fair demand and yarns hardening. Other Liverpool authorities ventured the opinion that on a scale up from present levels prominent holders can be expected to liquidate with greater freedom. This belief is also prevalent in many quarters, and as it is thought that the technical position has been materially weakened as a result of the advance, sentiment is more bearish, but it is apparent that considerable caution is being displayed.

Private spot advices are naturally favorable to holders, and although American spinners are showing but little inquiry, foreigners are in the market, although still indisposed to pay full asking prices. Southern spot markets were ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance; New York spot cotton quiet, 5c advance from the previous close; middling uplands, 15c.

New crop months moved within a narrow range during the session, and although spot interests were absorbing offerings intermittently, thought to represent hedge purchases by trade interests against future requirements, it was difficult to awaken ouside interest due to favorable crop conditions and optimistic reports from Southwestern Texas where a much larger acreage has been planted than last year. On the other hand the current discount of these options in conjunction with the knowledge that the crop has jus been planted calls for conservatism before important selling is entered into.

Week-end statistics continue to present a bullish aspect, but their showing had been largely discounted. Spinners' takings of American cotton were 208,000 bales, but the New Orleans Cotton Exchange made them 242,000 bales, comparing with 180,000 bales same week last year. A decrease in the visible of American cotton of 180,000 bales was suggested, against 91,000 bales decrease last year. Into sight for the week was 70,000 bales, against 63,000 bales last week and 90,000 bales last year. Since Sept. 1 total is 11,116,000 bales, against 9,664,000 bales last year, when the commercial crop was slightly over 10,500,000 bales. Exports are 1,586,000 bales in excess of last year.

COFFEE.

Coffee was without special feature early, but later a firmer feeling developed and prices advanced sharply. Late in the afternoon there was a slight reaction under selling credited to Cotton Exchange interests, but the close was excited, under the most active demand for several weeks. Final prices were firm at the highest point, showing net advance of 14@17 points. Total business aggregated 87,000 bags. Havre declined ¼f. early, but at the close was net unchanged. Hamburg declined ⅛@¾ pfennig. Rio was 125 reis lower, and Santos was unchanged.

ASSAILS SENATOR STILWELL.

Guilty of Czar-Like Methods in Codes Committee, Says Loomis.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—No explanation was made at the Capitol to-day in relation to the bill of Senator McManus relative to the appointment of special policemen, in which it is said that by the change of a phrase by substituting the word "act" for "section" the racing associations were exempt from the provisions of the penal law. Senator McManus, the introducer, and Senator Stilwell, Chairman of the Codes Committee, said that they knew nothing about the change.

The only member of the Codes Committee who was present at to-day's session was Senator Loomis of Buffalo, who says that he no longer attends the meetings of the committee.

"I have ceased to attend the meetings of the Codes Committee," said Senator Loomis, "owing to the arbitrary methods of Senator Stilwell, the Chairman. His action in insisting on reporting bills without discussion has been so Czar-like in its character that no self-respecting Senator, intent on performing his duty by considering carefully the many independent amendments to the codes that come before us can consent to be made a party to the way the Codes Committee does business. Senator Stilwell has shut off consideration of bills and ordered them reported with the curt assertion that he had the votes, and that discussion of the merits of the bills would not be permitted."

Senator Loomis recently complained to the Senate that the Stilwell bill to prohibit buying and selling in Wall Street on margin was reported from the committee without his knowledge, and the bill was recommitted on his motion.

This bill was reported again a few days ago.

STATEWAR ON TUBERCULOSIS

Bill in at Albany for a Commission to Investigate the Disease.

ALBANY, April 21.—A commission to investigate the prevalence of tuberculosis in the State and report remedial legislation for methods of prevention, treatment, and cure of the disease is proposed in a bill introduced to-day by Assemblyman Goodwin.

The commission is to be composed of the State Commissioner of Health, three men to be appointed by the Governor, one of whom must be a physician; one Senator, and two Assemblymen.

The measure appropriates $10,000 for the expenses of the commission, which is to report not later than Feb. 1, 1912.

HOW DIX NAMED A DEAD MAN.

W. J. Buchanan Was on an Old List of Peace Advocates.

ALBANY, April 21.—Gov. Dix to-day explained how William I. Buchanan of Buffalo, who died about two years ago, was appointed by him as a delegate from the State of New York to the third National Peace Congress, which will convene in Baltimore on May 3.

The explanation was that an old list of men who had been active in promoting peace between the nations had been handed to him, and, noting that Mr. Buchanan had been a delegate to previous conferences, the Governor considered that this fact would justify him in making the appointment.

Dix to be at Travelers' Dinner.

ALBANY, April 21.—Gov. Dix will attend the dinner of the Commercial Travelers' Association of America at Syracuse to-morrow night, leaving Albany to-morrow. While in Syracuse he will be the guest of Judge Hiscock of the Court of Appeals. He expects to return to Albany on Sunday.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

Business continues to move slowly, its volume, though large, being much below producing capacity and displaying a lack of interest and vigor. The accumulating deposits and reserves of the banks are one of the results of the general trade recession, but they impart strength to the banks and will enable them readily to finance the forward movement of enterprise whenever it sets it. The crop situation is at this time so encouraging as to afford a basis for increasing business confidence. Winter wheat conditions are especially satisfactory. Iron and steel production is declining both in pig and finished material. In dry goods, while there is an entire absence of any buoyancy, and curtailment of production continues, yet stocks in customers' hands are low, which makes the situation stronger than appears on the surface. The backward spring weather somewhat affects retail distribution. The shoe market shows some betterment in demand and an increase in confidence, but hides and leather are very slow. Reports from the leading trade centres give special emphasis to the retarding effect upon immediate business of the backward spring, a condition which is, of course, of temporary duration. Bank clearings outside New York this week are 6.3 per cent. under 1910 and 0.9 per cent. better than in 1909; but in New York there was a falling off of 15.6 per cent. and 23.8 per cent., respectively. Railroad earnings in two weeks of April increased 0.5 per cent. Exports continue to grow and imports to decrease, the record for New York during the latest week being $12,663,846 exports, a gain of $945,379 over 1910 and of $2,767,126 over 1909; and $15,528,253 imports, a decrease of $3,383,664 from 1910 and of $4,109,657 from 1909.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

LARGE CASH GAIN BY BANKS

Inflow of Currency from the Interior Promises Increase in Surplus—Grain and Cotton Higher.

Except for further substantial losses in two of the agricultural stocks, which lately have been under pressure, the changes in the active issues yesterday were unimportant. Some stocks showed fractional net gains, but a larger number were unchanged or closed with net losses, this being particularly true of the issues in which the trading was lightest. The transactions fell much short of those of Thursday and at times the dealings were about as dull as during the inactive markets of last week.

The grain markets once again moved at variance with the tenor of the reports from the crop growing area, advancing after an early reaction to a sufficient extent to show net gains for the day. The May wheat option in Chicago, in particular, closed at a fair advance, which was credited to short covering. Cotton also closed higher for the day for all the Summer options, but there was again a divergence between the movements in these and in the new crop months. The weekly review of the trade agencies told the familiar story of quiet in the various lines of trade, and at the same time laid emphasis on the excellent prospects of the crops so far as these may be anticipated at so early a date. Bank clearings outside of New York this week appear to have fallen something more than 5 per cent. under the clearings for the corresponding weeks a year ago, while in this city the contraction was much larger.

Suggestions of a further large addition to the surplus reserve of the Clearing House banks were contained in yesterday's estimates of the week's currency movements, which placed the net cash gain by the banks somewhere between $7,000,000 and $10,000,000. Some, at least, of the banks seem to have had their deposits slightly reduced during the week, which suggests that a very substantial proportion of the cash inflow will be reflected in the amount of the surplus reserve to be reported to-day.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Day of Indifferent Trading, with Price Movements Confined to Narrow Limits.

INDUSTRIALS AT STANDSTILL

American Tobacco and Standard Oil Report Only Nominal Transactions—Coppers Irregular and Dull.

Activity on the Curb yesterday was confined to scattered issues, and prices were irregular. Braden and Inspiration were about the only copper stocks in which any considerable activity developed. Each reported transactions of 1,500, the former selling up from 3 15-16 at the opening to 4, and then declining to 3 11-16, which was the closing price. Inspiration sold off from 6⅞ to 6¾. Greene-Cananea and Giroux each closed even with the opening levels. Kerr Lake sold up from 6⅛ to 6¼ on transactions of 600. La Rose gained 1-16, closing at 4⅝ after sales of 570. American Tobacco and Standard Oil were at a standstill, the former reporting sales of 14 shares and the latter of 7 shares only. In the bond list trading was well diversified, but Amalgamated 5 per cent. notes alone made a change from the opening levels. After sales of $5,000 the close was ¼ down, at 100½.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—The local list merely marked time. There was some trading in the Tonopahs, and United States Steel was also fairly active. Rumors of possible reductions in prices of steel products naturally aroused a feeling of pessimism toward the shares. The wire business, however, is booming, and the Cambria Steel Company's wire mill is to start up next week with a considerable amount of business already booked. The stock of the latter company remained inert to-day. About the only feature of interest was a tendency to cover shorts in Pennsylvania. Ever since the stock allotment was announced traders have been selling the shares on the theory that the quotation should decline at least to 60.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Trading was very limited on the local Exchange to-day, with a rather mixed tendency to prices. There was further heaviness in both issues of Booth Fisheries, the common losing 2 points and the preferred a point. There was a fractional decline in American Can preferred, but Sears, Roebuck, Diamond Match, Commonwealth Edison, and People's Gas made small advances. Chicago Railways lost a point and regained a shade of this at the close.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

International & Great Northern.

With a new alignment effected in Missouri Pacific and its subsidiary, the Iron Mountain Road, the attention of George J. Gould will presently be exacted by the International & Great Northern. Ex-Judge Freeman, receiver of the road, arrived yesterday from Texas, and in a short time was closeted with counsel for the company. Under the reorganization that is to be effected the second and third mortgages, both principal and defaulted interest, must be paid, besides unsecured claims of fully $1,500,000. It is expected that this will be done by giving the bondholders stock. The financial aspect was not gone into yesterday, as the legal points involved are the first to be cleared up. The expectation is that the property will be bid in by the third mortgage bondholders, consisting chiefly of the Gould interests. The sale is set for next month. Whatever the plan that is finally formulated, it is taken for granted that the road will continue under Gould control.

J. C. Stubbs on Success.

Apropos of his recent announcement that he would retire from active business on reaching the age of 65 next year, J. C. Stubbs, general traffic Director of the Harriman lines, is quoted in Chicago as saying that if he kept up his pace of the last fifty years for three years more he would die, whereas he intends to live ten years more at least. "Success," he says, "means being possessed by one's work, with ability to manage it. Collis P. Huntington beat everybody to the office. Harriman worked all day and thought all night; that's what killed him."

Chicago Exchange on New York High

Exchange on New York at Chicago, according to advices from that city received in the financial district yesterday, commanded as high a rate as 50 cents for $1,000. It was assumed here that this rate must have applied to remittances made in relatively small amounts, inasmuch as actual shipments of currency could be made much below that figure. As a matter of fact, the insurance and postage charges figure at about $15 cents for $1,000, and allowing interest even at 3 per cent. would leave the cost of an actual shipment of currency under present conditions at less than 25 cents. It is known, however, that 40 cents is being paid for Chicago exchange on New York on substantial amounts of money, but rather than pay 50 cents it is probable that those having money to send to New York would make actual shipments. The present exchange situation in Chicago indicates clearly the strength of the cash flow toward New York.

Better Inquiry for Copper.

The large inquiries from abroad for copper at 12 cents a pound, which were reported early in the week have been supplemented by bids running one-eighth of a cent higher, and it was estimated yesterday that inquiries from domestic and foreign sources now in the market total more than 100,000,000 pounds, some guesses ranging as high as 150,000,000 pounds. Exports so far this month have been heavy, and the total sent abroad is already around 50,000,000 pounds. The producing and marketing interests predict a falling off in production to be shown in next month's report of the Producers' Association. The curtailment, which has failed as a factor in the copper market so far since last Summer, when some of the large interests began reducing operations at the mines, is, nevertheless, a fact, the mining men insist, and though it has been tardy in affecting the figures of refinery outputs that has been only because of the large stocks of smelter products on hand when the curtailment policy was adopted.

Drastic Mining Stock Law.

A new mining stock law has just been reported to the Massachusetts Legislature which proposes to penalize with fine and imprisonment brokers who deal in stocks not complying with the strict listing requirements or those who advertise such issues, or any one who makes a false statement in a report. To be admitted to listing a majority of the Directors and the President must file a sworn statement describing the property, giving names and addresses of stockholders, with amount of holdings, and if the property is impaired by mismanagement officers shall be personally liable.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

6,572. SUBMARINE CABLE.—Consul General John P. Bray of Sydney, Australia, has forwarded copies of tender forms, specifications, and conditions governing a contract for the supply of a specified quantity of submarine cable. Bids for the supply of this article will be received until June 7, 1911, at the Post Office Departmental Stores, Sydney.

6,573. GASOLINE AUTOMOBILES. — An American Consul in a Latin-American country reports that a contract has been made between the local government and a business man for the repair of a road and the placing of automobiles to carry passengers and freight between two points in the country. Although this contract has not been approved by the Congress, work will be begun as soon as this is done, and, as European competition is likely, it will be well for interested persons to give this matter the most immediate attention.

6,574. AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY, ENGINES, AND WINDMILLS.—A business association in a European country informs an American Consul that it desires to secure the agency of some American manufacturers of tractors, hoisting engines, (gasoline,) crude oil engines for agricultural use, windmills, and agricultural machinery of various kinds. The firm estimates that it will be able to sell 500 binders, 100 reapers, and 200 to 300 mowers in the coming season if it can get hold of some standard makes not already represented in the country in question.

6,576. TOBACCO EXTRACT.—A Consular officer in Austria-Hungary reports that a business concern in his district desires to enter into communication with American exporters of tobacco extract from Virginia and Kentucky tobacco.

6,577. OIL WELL MACHINERY.—The representative of a European machinery factory has informed an American Consular officer that he desires to get in touch with manufacturers of oil well machinery in the United States. He is said to be in a position to offer the necessary guarantees and already is established in the machinery business. In view of the awakening interest in prospecting for oil and gas in that country, it would be well for American manufacturers to investigate this field.

6,578. STEAM ROAD ROLLER. — A report from an American Consular officer in Canada states that at a public meeting of the taxpayers in one of the towns of his district it was decided to borrow $10,000 to improve the streets and to purchase a steam road roller. The names of the Mayor of the town and the Councillors, to whom correspondence should be addressed, are given in the report.

6,579. AMERICAN GOODS FOR EUROPEAN COUNTRIES.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from a correspondent stating that he is in the United States for the purpose of forming business connections with American firms desirous of increasing their sales in European countries or of introducing their goods on the Continent. He states that he has had experience and will furnish references.

CORPORATION TAX COMING IN.

Internal Revenue Receipts Increase, but Customs Returns Are Down.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Although the corporation tax for this year is not due until June 1, payments are beginning to turn into the Treasury. About $325,000 was paid during March. The estimated total receipts from that source for the year are $25,000,000.

The excise tax and ordinary internal revenue receipts are the only sources of revenue even holding their own this month. Early estimates seem to show that the Treasury during April would follow the condition at the close of March, when there was a surplus in ordinary accounts for the first time this fiscal year.

Customs receipts, however, continue to fall below the estimates, but internal revenue for March alone showed great increases. The total receipts from that source this year are $224,000,000, about $24,000,000 more than had been received at this time last year.

The working condition of the Treasury continues favorable, with the general fund at $84,000,000 and the balance in the offices at $26,000,000.

RETIRING BANKNOTES.

$35,000,000 Deposited with the Banks by the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Contraction of National bank currency, which began early in the year, continues. So far about $35,000,000 has been deposited with the banks for retirement of notes, and the Treasury is running behind in making the retirements.

It is usual for the banknotes so withdrawn from circulation not to make their appearance again until the Autumnal season, when money is in demand for moving crops.

DUE OCTOBER 1, 1959

Authorized Issue $125,000,000 — Interest payable April 1 and October 1

For full information as to this issue of bonds, reference is made to the mortgage and to the letter from Mr. N. S. Meldrum, President of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, copies of which can be had on application.

From this letter it appears:

The Refunding Mortgage Bonds are the direct obligation of the Seaboard Air Line Railway. They are secured by a mortgage, which after May 1, 1911, will be a first lien on 200 miles of railway, and a lien subject to underlying mortgages of less than $18,000 per mile on 2,780 miles of railway. The Bonds will be further secured by a first lien on $27,000,000 Seaboard Air Line Railway First Mortgage 4% bonds, the entire capital stock of the Baltimore Steam Packet Co. and 2,100 shares (about one-seventh) of the capital stock of the Old Dominion Steamship Company.

The gross earnings of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, together with those of the Baltimore Steam Packet Company, increased from $10,929,051 in 1901 to $20,856,373 in 1910, with an increase of only about 387 miles of railway.

|---|---|
| Gross Income from all sources | $21,823,393.87 |
| Operating Expenses, Taxes and Miscellaneous Deductions | 15,494,837.17 |

| The annual interest on these Refunding Bonds is $760,000, an increase of only $27,450 per annum, and the above amount ($3,774,259) available to pay this interest is, therefore, nearly five times the amount required. | |
| Balance after Fixed Charges | $3,041,709.87 |
| Interest on Adjustment Mortgage (Income) Bonds | 1,248,975.00 |

The Subscription List will close on Monday, April 24, 1911.

A first payment of $50 in New York funds per $1,000 bond subscribed for must accompany all subscriptions. The balance of the amount due on bonds allotted upon subscription will be payable on April 28, 1911.

Definitive bonds will be delivered upon allotment. If no allotment be made the first payment will be returned, and if only a portion of the amount subscribed for be allotted the balance of the first payment will be applied towards the amount due on April 28, 1911. No interest will be allowed on such first payment. Failure to pay the balance on April 28 when due will render the first payment liable to forfeiture.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Big Deal in Times Square Section—Holding Company Buys Plot on 45th Street—U. S. Rubber Co. Leases Broadway Corner Near the Circle—West Side Activity.

An important deal in the Times Square section, evidently forecasting another large building operation in Forty-fifth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, which has shown considerable activity lately in improvements, was made yesterday by the Herald Square Holding Company, (George Backer, Arnstein & Levy,) which bought the two houses at 56 and 58 West Forty-fifth Street from the 56 West Forty-fifth Street Company, Daniel B. Freedman, President. The plot has a frontage of 40 feet and is 98.9 feet deep. The property is separated by a single twenty-foot house from the parcel at 62 and 64 West Forty-fifth Street, acquired by the Herald Square Holding Company some time ago, and on which a high-class business structure is now being erected. The house dividing the two properties is now being converted into a four-story loft by Frederick Fox & Co., thereby insuring permanent light on the east for the big loft under construction and also affording permanent light on the west for the building to be erected in the future on the plot just purchased. The Herald Square Holding Company has been an active operator in this block, and only a short time ago sold to Paul Starrett the plot at 32, 34, and 36 West Forty-fifth Street for improvement.

Rubber Co. Leases Broadway Corner.

The United States Rubber Company has leased for twenty-one years the southeast corner of Broadway and Fifty-eighth Street for $40,000 a year, or an aggregate for the full term of $840,000. The property is owned by Mary A. Fitzgerald, who owns the southeast corner of Broadway and Forty-third Street, at Times Square, where a twelve-story building and the Cohan Theatre have lately been erected. The Fifty-eighth Street corner has a frontage of 108.1 feet on Broadway, and 126 feet on the street. It adjoins the new building of the Goodrich Rubber Tire Company. The property is now occupied by an old two-story tax-payer structure. The lease evidently forecasts another notable improvement for the automobile section centred about Columbus Circle.

West Side Deals.

Upper west side property proved an important factor in yesterday's market, the most interesting transaction being the resale by Max Marx of the southeast corner of Riverside Drive and 148th Street, 100 by 105.

A ten-story apartment house will be erected on the site by the buyer, Harry Aronson.

In exchange for the Drive corner Mr. Aronson gives to Mr. Marx the three new four-story flats, with stores, at the northwest corner of Crotona Avenue and 183d Street, on plot 80 by 100.

The Riverside Drive corner was acquired a few days ago by Mr. Marx from four different owners. On the site are three three-story dwellings. Their removal will mark the first instance on Washington Heights where dwellings have been razed to make way for an apartment house.

William A. Darling & Son and W. S. Baker negotiated the sale.

Another sale on the heights, further north, was that of 505 and 507 West 176th Street, a five-story apartment house on a plot 42.8 by 100.

The property was owned by Hedwig Glass, who takes in part payment from the purchaser, M. Dickinson, a seventeen-room house at the corner of State and Seventeenth Streets, Flushing, L. I. It occupies a plot 75 by 200 by 165 by irregular.

Activity in Lincoln Square Section.

Samuel H. Martin has sold for the New Amsterdam Realty Company to a client 145 West Sixtieth Street, a five-story four-family tenement, on lot 25 by 100. The demand for real estate in the Lincoln Square section has revived, as was indicated in the past week by the sale of the plot, 50 by 100, northeast corner of West End Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street, to the Van Wert Company, which has broken ground for an eight-story and basement building for the automobile trade; also the sale of 48 and 50 West Sixty-fifth Street to the Liberty Storage and Warehouse Company, which is destroying the present building to make way for a nine-story fireproof warehouse to connect with the company's present building on Sixty-fourth Street. Samuel H. Martin was the broker in both the above transactions.

Sale in Loft Zone.

An important sale in the midtown loft zone was announced yesterday by the Brown Realty Company, which resold 21 West Nineteenth Street, a lot 25 by 100. The buyer is a well-known builder, who will erect a loft.

Investor Buys Lexington Av. Corner.

The Farmers Loan and Trust Company as Trustee has sold to Maurice Mandelbaum 574 Lexington Avenue, southwest corner of Fifty-first Street, a five-story brownstone flat, on lot 24 by 65. This is the first transfer of the property in sixty years. It was negotiated by Mooyer & Marston.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Dr. Alexander Bloch has purchased from Louis Levin 1,539 Madison Avenue, a three-story dwelling, on lot 16 by 70, between 104th and 105th Streets. H. Bloom was the broker in the sale.

Thebaud, Walker & Co. sold for Mrs. Susie Wall Tefft 325 West 101st Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, on lot 20 by 100.11.

Bronx.

Kurz & Uren, Inc., have sold to a client for E. Keller 4,378 and 4,380 Martha Avenue, two two-family houses, each on a lot 25 by 100.

Ernst & Cahn and J. J. Pittman have sold to James and Ellen McGiff the two-story dwelling, on lot 17.5 by 64.4, at 2,297 Bathgate Avenue, north of 183d Street.

The Katz-Polacek Realty Company has sold the plot 150.3 by 103 at the southeast corner of Forest Avenue and 166th Street. The buyer is a builder, who will erect apartment houses on the site.

South Wilton Estate Sold.

O'Connell & Haviland have sold the country place belonging to the estate of Louis B. Gregory, at South Wilton, Conn., consisting of thirty-three acres and buildings, to Charles R. Teaboldt of New York. The property is to be improved with a new residence.

Arverne Hotel Leased.

The Lewis H. May Company has leased for the Waldron-Holmes Realty Company the Arverne Hotel, at Arverne, L. I., to Hugo Hanf, proprietor of the Hotel Lincoln, for a term of years. The premises will be thoroughly renovated and improved. The gardens will be made on the Grecian style and the hotel will be run on the European and American plan. The property was recently bought by the present owners at the I. H. Rosenfeld sale.

Leases.

Daniel Birdsall & Co. have leased the seven-story building at 28 Elm Street for fifteen years for Charles H. Fiske, Jr., of Boston to Bernhard Kreiser, and have sublet for the new lessee, for a term of six years, the store and basement and second and third lofts. The transaction involves about $90,000. The same brokers also leased the building 108 and 110 Franklin Street for ten years for the Richardson estate to a large linen company. This building was recently vacated by James Talcott & Co., who removed to the Fourth Avenue section.

New Club for Gramercy Park.

Plans have been filed for making over the four-story boarding house at the southwest corner of West Gramercy Park and Twenty-first Street into a clubhouse for the Beta Theta Pi Club, at a cost of $5,000. Shuball Cottle is the owner of the premises. D'Oench & Yost are the architects.

Notes.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is reported to have leased two stores in the new Wolf Building, at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, and considerable rear space, amounting in all to 2,500 square feet. The lease is for five years, and the rental is said to be about $25,000 a year.

Richard H. Scobie negotiated the sale of the twenty lots on Belmont Avenue, in the Bronx, reported sold Thursday.

Frederick Fox & Co. were the brokers in the lease for Zoe E. Banks to the Little Streets Company, for a long term of years at an aggregate rental of about $250,000, of the new six-story store and office building to be erected at 14 West Fortieth Street.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—At a special meeting here to-day of the stockholders of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company an increase in the capital stock of the company from $20,000,000 to $45,000,000 was authorized.

The new stock will be issued to the Reading Company, the holding corporation, to reimburse it for the payment of prior lien and consolidated mortgage bonds of the old Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company. The Reading Company will turn the stock over to the Central Trust Company of New York as additional collateral for the Reading general mortgage bonds.

Example of Effectiveness

¶ The following advertisement appeared in The New York Times last Sunday:

> A GENTLEWOMAN'S MAGAZINE requires the services of a lady to visit the New York shops and select articles for illustration in its pages. It is not necessary that the applicant have experience as a buyer or in similar lines of work; it is more important that she be familiar with polite society, accustomed, herself, to good clothes, and capable of selecting instinctively the styles, fabrics, and trimmings that appeal to smartly dressed women. The position is both responsible and remunerative. Applicants are asked to state their qualifications fully. J 157 Times.

¶ This advertisement is a model of good sense. Not only does it state precisely the work to be done, but details the qualifications necessary; that is its strong point.

¶ The Help Wanted advertisement that appeals fairly and directly to the intelligence and character of applicants does not fail to bring satisfactory replies. The New York Times One Dollar "Effective" advertisement of Fifty Words enables the advertiser to state requirements explicitly to the most intelligent class of employes in every kind of work.

¶ The "Effective" want advertisement eliminates the undesirable applicants as emphatically as it attracts those competent to fill the requirements it details.

¶ Go to any advertising agency, or telephone The Times, Bryant 1000.

GOVERNMENT AND COPPER.

Agent Seemed Satisfied That No Merger Was On to Stay Production.

Copper men are wondering what the Department of Justice is contemplating. They compared notes recently and found that each had been visited within the last month by an agent of the Department of Justice, who has asked questions about copper production and prices and the possibility of a merger of the leading producing interests. The special investigator, THE TIMES has learned, visited the offices of nearly every important producing company and the copper selling agencies. He made one of his first calls at the office of the Copper Producers' Association, apparently in the belief that this statistical bureau was in reality a clearing house for agreements either as to curtailment of production or price agreements.

As far as could be learned in a canvass of the men who had spoken with the Federal investigator he did not go very deeply into the prospect of a combination of the Amalgamated-Guggenheim-Phelps-Dodge interests, first broached nearly two years ago, but now in abeyance. His chief concern seemed to be the extent of a possible agreement among producers to curtail the output of the mines. One of the last copper men he talked to gathered from his remarks that his report to the Department of Justice would point out that the record production of copper made in March was a sufficient indication that there was no real conspiracy among the producers. As to prices, he is said to have found evidence justifying belief in an open market in the varying average prices received during 1910 by the different producers. He examined a number of reports of the principal mining companies, which showed considerable differences in the prices at which each had been able to market its output.

MUTUALIZING THE EQUITABLE

Committee Will Try to Get Morgan Stock at a Satisfactory Price.

Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss has taken up with Robert Mather, one of the Directors of the Equitable Life, the matter of drafting a bill to enable the Equitable Life Assurance Society to buy its own stock for the purpose of full mutualization of the society. Mr. Mather was appointed as a committee of one by the society's Committee on Mutualization at their meeting on Thursday to confer with the Superintendent whenever he might desire a conference on the question of the proposed enabling act.

The enactment of the proposed measure, it is expected, will clear the way to the acquisition of the Equitable Life's stock by the society itself whenever an agreement is reached regarding the price to be paid. It was on this point that serious difficulty was encountered between the society's committee and the voting Trustees, who hold the majority stock owned by J. P. Morgan. The society's committee took the stand that it could not afford to pay the terms named by Mr. Morgan. Further conferences between the committee and the voting Trustees are now to be held in an effort to reach some agreement.

MRS. SCOTT WINS D. A. R. ELECTION

MRS. STORY URGES LOYALTY

The Society Magazine Report Accepted and Contract for Printing Is Renewed for Two Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Mrs. Matthew T. Scott of Illinois is again elected President General of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution for a term of two years. Her majority over Mrs. William Cummings Story of New York was 148 votes. Two years ago, with the same candidates in the field, Mrs. Scott's majority was seven.

The voting was concluded at 8 o'clock last evening, but the counting of the ballots was not finished until 6 o'clock today, with the result announced from the platform of Continental Hall at the evening session.

The news of the New York woman's defeat was accepted by her friends late this afternoon, but even the most enthusiastic followers of the present administration had no expectation of the large majority given their entire ticket. Following the announcement of the balloting by Mrs. G. T. Guernsey of Kansas, Chairman of the tellers, the entire audience rose to cheer the victors.

Mrs. Story, who had entered the hall at the opening of the session, made her way to the platform immediately after the speech in which Mrs. Guernsey thanked the tellers for their service, and was at once recognized by the Chair, Mrs. Noyes of Illinois. Mrs. Scott, who entered with the conclusion of the reading of the returns, was standing on the front of the platform. She stepped forward to greet her opponent. The latter, with great composure, thanked the Chairman of tellers and expressed her great appreciation of the loyalty of her friends. Turning to the audience, she begged her friends to be loyal to the society, to allow no personal disappointment to shake their faith in its future. She declared she had no bitterness in her heart, because she had not sought the honor for selfish motives.

Mrs. Scott read her speech of acceptance from manuscript. Every candidate of the Scott slate was elected by a majority of from 20 to 120 votes. Mrs. Donald McLean, Mrs. Scott's predecessor in office, and her most valued adviser, was among the first to applaud the result of the election. Few of the New York delegation remained through the evening session, which was followed by an impromptu reception at the Arlington Hotel by the Illinois delegation in honor of Mrs. Scott.

While waiting for the election returns early in the day the unfinished business of Wednesday was taken up, and the report of Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey on the American Magazine accepted, the contract for the printing of the magazine being renewed for two years.

The others elected are: Vice President General, in charge of organization of chapters—Mrs. Henry L. Mann; Chaplain General—Miss Elizabeth Pierce; Recording Secretary General—Mrs. Howard T. Hodgkins; Corresponding Secretary General—Mrs. W. A. Dennis; Registrar General—Mrs. Gaius Brumbaugh; Treasurer General—Mrs. William D. Hoover; Historian General—Mrs. Charles Bassett; Assistant Historian General—Mrs. Eleanor S. Thompson, and Librarian General—Miss Amaryllis Gillette, all residents of the District of Columbia, except Mrs. Bassett, Maryland, and Mrs. Thompson, Massachusetts.

Ten Vice President Generals were to be elected, but only nine received enough votes. All elected were Scott candidates, as also was Miss Harriet I. Lake of Iowa, who, although tenth in point of numbers, had ten votes too few to elect. A new ballot will be taken to-morrow. The nine declared elected, in the order elected, are: Miss Sophie Waples, Delaware; Mrs. Clayton R. Truesdall, Ohio; Mrs. Allen P. Perley, Pennsylvania; Mrs. James P. Brayton, Michigan; Mrs. Ben Gray, Jr., Missouri; Mrs. James M. Fowler, Indiana; Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, North Carolina; Mrs. Charles B. Bryan, Tennessee, and Mrs. R. H. Edmondson, West Virginia.

Mrs. J. Morgan Smith of Alabama was elected an Honorary Vice President General. Mrs. Elroy M. Avery was re-elected editor of the American Monthly Magazine, the official organ of the D. A. R.

EX-POLICE CAPTAIN ON TRIAL.

Up with Lieutenant and Policeman on Account of a Shooting.

Former Acting Captain George C. Farr, who was in charge of the Parkville Precinct, Brooklyn, when Policeman Matthew McGrath dragged George Walker there after shooting him at his home, and Lieut. John Altenbach, who was in charge of the desk at the station house at the time, were on trial before Police Commissioner Cropsey at Brooklyn Headquarters yesterday. They were charged with falsifying the police records in connection with this shooting.

Although Walker said at the station house that McGrath had done the shooting, Farr allowed McGrath to go home. It was alleged that Altenbach changed an entry in the blotter so that it read that one shot had been fired instead of two. Altenbach testified that he had made the change at the direction of Acting Captain Farr. Commissioner Cropsey, in cross-examining Farr, apparently wanted to show that he had tried to protect McGrath.

"It's a good thing," he said to Farr, "that you are no longer in charge of a precinct; you were Acting Captain, as you say, for twenty-two months and a member of the force for twenty-six years."

The Commissioner reserved decision in both cases. Mr. Cropsey also tried McGrath on charges of assaulting a citizen.

It's Dinner and It's Ready

None Like It Served in Rome

Italian cooks are famed the world over for a certain style of spaghetti.

But never has Rome served such delicious spaghetti as our chefs have prepared for you.

The dish as we make it contains 17 ingredients. Two years have been spent in learning how to combine them.

The wonder lies in the harmony of flavor. No other cooks in the world produce anything like it.

Durum wheat spaghetti.
Herkimer County full cream cheese.
Best creamery butter.
The same expensive tomato sauce we use in Van Camp's Pork & Beans.

The recipe is secret, and no price could buy it. But your grocer has the dish complete, all ready-cooked for you.

It costs you less than to make it yourself if the recipe were yours.

Just heat it or bake it, as you like it best. There's nothing else to do.

When you serve it for dinner don't say where you got it. Wait for the comments on the "jewel of a cook."

But be sure of this: No other spaghetti will ever appeal to those who once taste this.

Order it now, before other folks know it. Your grocer has just put it in.
